CERMAK BODY ON WAY HOME

SPECIAL TRAIN BEARS CASKET, KIN, FRIENDS

Thousands in Miami Pay Tribute.

Funeral Plans

The schedule for the funeral of Mayor Cermak, as arranged by his friends and approved by his family, is as follows:

10 A. M. WEDNESDAY—Funeral train arrives over Illinois Central railroad at 12th street station.

10:15 A. M. WEDNESDAY—Honorary escort comprising members of Democratic county central committee, city council, mayor's cabinet, and department heads will escort casket to Cermak home, 2348 South Millard avenue, where body will rest over night.

8 A. M. THURSDAY—The casket, attended by same honorary escort, will be taken from home to city hall, to lie in state throughout the day and be viewed by general public.

10 A. M. FRIDAY—Escorted by delegations from civic and military organizations, the body will be taken to the Chicago Stadium, 1800 West Madison street, for nonsectarian rites by Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish clergymen, to be followed by burial in Bohemian National cemetery.

Aboard Mayor Cermak Funeral Train, West Palm Beach, Fla., March 6.—[Special.]—Anton J. Cermak was speeding northward to his home tonight; home to the city by the lake where in life he had controlled the political destinies of three million souls; home to the people who had elected him "World's Fair mayor" in the confidence that when the eyes of the world were focused upon Chicago "Tony" Cermak, the immigrant boy who worked in a coal mine, would prove to possess all the qualities worthy of a great executive.

His body, pierced by an assassin's bullet intended for President Roosevelt on the night of Feb. 15, rested in a bronze casket draped in an American flag. The people of Miami, Fla., where the mayor died this morning at 5:57 [Chicago time], had paid a splendid tribute to the man he was before the specially chartered train pulled out of the Miami station at 6 p. m. eleven hours after he had breathed his last.

Many Friends on Train.

Aboard this funeral train special as it speeds through the Florida night are many friends of the mayor who forsook the pleasures of a winter vacation to accompany the body back to Chicago to show the respect in which they held the dead man.

In drawing rooms and compartments sat the sorrowful members of the family, weeping at the loss of one who was most dear to them. All were tired and retired early.

Telegrams from persons in all walks of life were delivered to these relatives today. Messages of sympathy came from Cardinal Mundelein, Edward F. Dunne, John P. McGoorty, Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison, Gov. David Scholtz of Florida, and other wires were signed by names unknown in public life, men and women who perhaps had spent from slender funds to convey the sorrow they felt at the passing of a courageous and forthright man, who had been their friend.

Shrine and Legion Escort.

Mayor R. B. Gautier of Miami proclaimed a period of mourning from 5 to 6 p. m. while the mayor's body was being borne to the train. The cortege was headed by uniformed units of Mahi Shrine temple and the American Legion drum and bugle corps.

Through streets hung with mementos of sorrow the funeral procession passed as the American Legion escort sounded muffled drums. Thousands stood with uncovered heads as the hearse bearing the casket went slowly on its way. Flags were at half staff.

As the casket was placed in the baggage car the band played "Nearer, My God, to Thee," while the crowd stood silent and the sound cameras clicked. The crowd remained until the long train composed of seven Pullmans, dining, observation and baggage car pulled out slowly upon the stroke of six.

Four detectives who have served as a bodyguard for Mayor Cermak during his illness and four Miami policemen were stationed in the baggage car as a guard of honor.

RENTS HER BABY TO HELP WOMEN DRAW SAVINGS

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—A Wall street banker is telling how one shrewd east sider turned the banking crisis to profit. Last Friday, he said, at a lower east side branch of a savings bank, there was a long line of depositors waiting to draw their money. A woman, carrying a baby, appeared at the end of the line and pathetically begged to be allowed to get ahead. Everybody made way for her, and she got her savings immediately. Then came another woman and baby, and still another and another, and all went to the head of the line.

Finally, the paying teller put his head out the window and looked at the child in the arms of the latest Madonna.

"You go back to the end of the line," he ordered. "This is the fifth time that baby's been here today."

It developed that a foreign born mother was standing outside the bank, renting her infant to women in a hurry to get their money for 25 cents a trip.

2 DUKES IN COURT, ONE FOR PASSING $1,750 BAD CHECK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 6.—Suits against two dukes were called before Justice Sir Albert Charles Clauson today. The first was against the duke of Manchester, who gave a bad check for a debt amounting to $1,750. The other was against the duke of Leinster, who had ignored a judgment of $1,400.

On evidence that the income of the duke of Manchester is $1,500 a month, Justice Clauson ordered him to pay the complainant $250 a month.

The plaintiff against the duke of Leinster asked postponement of the case for a short time since the latter made a part payment today. The plaintiff said he believed the rest of the debt would be met within a month. A postponement of three weeks was granted.

Russia Begins to Sell Food Hoardings at Cut Prices

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, March 6.—Fifty stores selling white and black bread at 20 per cent of the "free market" rates and twenty stores selling meat at a 50 per cent reduction opened here today for all comers, irrespective of cards or passports. Their popularity was immediate. A line of 1,000 persons was counted outside one of the stores in a workers' section. This step indicates that the authorities now feel able to release part of the food reserves.

Food Markets Active; Prices Little Changed

BY PAUL POTTER.

Food merchants of Chicago, both in the loop and in outlying areas, experienced one of the busiest Mondays in weeks yesterday, with consumers making a virtual "run" on food supplies.

With the exception of a few kinds of meats and unusual vegetables, however, no rise in prices was in evidence. Grocers, both retail and wholesale, expressed the belief that there would be no immediate material rise in staple grocery prices since supplies of most of such foods are ample to feed the metropolitan population for nearly a month.

Close Live Stock Exchange.

The Chicago Live Stock exchange was ordered closed at 3 p. m. today until further notice by its directors. Receipts of live stock were about one-half those of a year ago. Stocks of beef, veal, and lamb in the coolers of Packingtown were said to be ample for several weeks, although pork supplies will last only two or three days with normal consumption.

Wholesale prices of nearly all meats advanced somewhat yesterday, lard, smoked meats, veal, lamb, and pork cuts rising from ½ to 2½ cents a pound. Pork loin advanced 50 per cent during the day's trading.

Stocks of such staples as sugar, coffee, flour, canned goods, butter and eggs were declared to be entirely sufficient to meet demands. The only difficulties being experienced were in making change for customers and in arranging for lines of credit through the retailer and jobber to the wholesaler.

Heavy Fruit Auction Sales.

Charles Irrgang, manager of the Chicago Fruit Auction, said buying of fruits and vegetables was quite brisk yesterday in the South Water market. Most purchases were for cash, or with the understanding that cash payments would be made as soon as stocks are sold to consumers. There will be 70 carloads of fruits and vegetables sold at auction this morning, a heavier than normal Tuesday's volume for this time of year.

Country loadings of foodstuffs are curtailed only slightly, according to reports received by the federal department of agriculture here. Some shippers who sent carload lots with drafts attached were holding up sales on the track in Chicago, while others released the supplies by wire.

Meetings held yesterday by officials of the milk companies resulted in the announcement that milk and other dairy products would be supplied in Chicago without a hitch so far as consumers are concerned.

"Plenty of Food in City."

"There is a sufficient supply of foods in Chicago to last four months," declared E. J. Warner, president of Sprague, Warner & Co., wholesale grocers. "Fear of a food shortage is absurd."

J. H. Lindeman of Reid, Murdoch & Co., wholesalers, also declared there is "no need to be alarmed about increased food prices or a shortage, as there is plenty of food in warehouses and a new crop coming on."

Credit is being extended by food wholesalers to retail merchants on a "normal business basis."

ROOSEVELT RETIRES FROM LAW FIRM; 2 PARTNERS CONTINUE

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—Announcement was made today that President F. D. Roosevelt has retired as a member of the law firm of Roosevelt & O'Connor, which was formed in 1924. The other partners, D. Basil O'Connor and John C. Furber, will continue practicing under the same firm name.

Although President Roosevelt was graduated from Harvard in 1904, he took his law course at Columbia university and got his degree in 1907, in which year he was admitted to the bar, and began his law work in the office of Carter, Ledyard & Milburn, serving as managing clerk until 1910. In that year he became a partner in Marvin, Hooker & Roosevelt. The firm was changed to Emmet, Marvin & Roosevelt. After he left that firm it became Emmet & Marvin.

Police Seize 106 in Raids on 2 Alleged Handbooks

Capt. George O'Connor and two men from the South State street police station, raided two alleged handbooks yesterday. In one, at 1148 South Wabash avenue, known as "The Roost," the raiders arrested ninety-eight men. At the other, 543 South Wabash avenue, they seized seven men and one woman. The 106 prisoners were held at the station.

Panhandler Asks Cashier of Bank to Eat with Him

McPherson, Kas., March 6.—(AP)—As Carl Grant walked to work this morning he was stopped by a panhandler.

Grant explained that he was without funds, being a cashier of a bank.

"Nuff said," the panhandler rejoined jovially. "You have breakfast with me."

CLEARING HOUSE HERE AWAITING WORD ON SCRIP

Stress Relieved by Currency Exchange.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The Federal Reserve bank here last midnight received an order from the treasury department authorizing Chicago banks to accept new deposits in special trust accounts. The order, which is permissive and not mandatory, was at once transmitted to the banks here.

But since the order will not actually be in the hands of the banks until this morning it was doubtful if they will be prepared to receive the new deposits today. However, an early resumption of business on a limited scale, as provided by the treasury regulations, was indicated.

As to Clearing House Scrip.

Plans for the issuance of clearing house certificates were rushed to completion by special committees of the clearing house, but up to a late hour last night authorization for carrying out the plan had not been received from the capital. Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, conferred in Washington last night with Secretary Woodin, but no agreement was reached for issuing the scrip money, according to late dispatches. The same situation existed as to New York, where 250 million dollars' worth of certificates has been printed ready for issuance.

Chicago banks are ready to place the certificates in circulation on a moment's notice, Frank R. Elliott, president of the clearing house, said last night.

Act to Keep Up Food Supply.

Danger of interruption in the city's food supply was lessened when banks began to handle and collect drafts used in connection with the shipment of foods. Authorization for this was contained in a special order issued early yesterday by the treasury. This proved to be one of the most urgent problems resulting from the general bank holiday. The financing of the shipment of perishables is taken care of by the order, bankers stated.

Chicago struggled through its first day of the national bank holiday on a cash basis. Business concerns and individuals yesterday were getting along the best they could with the meager credit and currency facilities available.

Flock to Money Exchange.

All day long the temporary currency exchange at 126 South La Salle street, opened by the federal reserve bank in Chicago, swarmed with people converting bills of large denomination into smaller bills and paper money into coins.

Thirty-four windows manned by tellers borrowed for the emergency from loop banks took care of all demands, while three armored money trucks were busy transferring currency back and forth between the federal reserve bank and the temporary annex.

Prepare to Print Scrip.

The news that plans for the issuance of clearing house certificates had been virtually completed followed two days and nights of almost constant work by clearing house groups.

It was possible, officials said, that some sort of national certificate plan might be promulgated from Washington which would make the issuance of certificates by local clearing houses unnecessary. Chicago bankers, however, considered the probability of local issuance strong enough to warrant going to the expense of ordering the certificates engraved.

Explains Certificate Plan.

"The purpose of clearing house certificates," Mr. Elliott explained in answer to a question, "is to manufacture an additional sound currency to meet the demand.

"Bank deposits of the nation were recently somewhere in the neighborhood of 40 billion dollars. With depositors clamoring for their money it soon became apparent that if everybody insisted in converting his bank balance into cash there wouldn't be enough to go around. The amount of money in circulation, even with the recent heavy additions by the reserve banks, is less than 7 billions.

"If the banks pay out currency and gold the people will hoard it. Therefore the current need in an emergency like the present one is to give them a kind of money that they won't

ROOSEVELT GIVES GOVERNORS PLAN FOR LIQUID BANKS

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt, discussing the banking situation before a conference of governors, declared his purpose today to have all new deposits in banks held in the form of cash, deposited in the federal reserve bank, or converted into government bonds.

He also revealed that whatever plan is adopted in solving the present banking crisis, it should be uniform over national and state banks, and he invited the governors to coöperate with him in bringing this about.

After the President had explained the situation which yesterday moved him to declare a banking holiday in the United States, the governors unanimously passed a resolution asking congress and the people generally to give the President full support and coöperation.

Text of Statement.

The President said:

"I have been so occupied since noon on Saturday that I have not had any chance to prepare any formal remarks.

"I start off by saying to the governors and their representatives, and as a governor myself for the past four years I am on somewhat intimate terms with the duties of governors and also with the rights and duties of states.

"The country needs coöperation between the states and the federal government. I think this has been well demonstrated by the events of the past 48 hours.

"The states acted with remarkable promptitude in preventing a panic at a time when it might have developed. The situation, however, did get to the point yesterday where some kind of uniform action seemed necessary and as you know resulted in two things—the calling of a special session of congress for Thursday and, secondly, a proclamation to take care of the immediate emergency between now and Thursday.

Several Main Objectives.

"In that proclamation there were four or five main objectives. The first one was to prevent the withdrawal of any further gold and currency. The old war statute of 1917 had not been repealed and we used it. It was an exceedingly useful instrument. The second objective was to provide some form of circulating medium for the country in addition to the outstanding currency, because a large part had been put into hiding. I have confidence the public will accept that circulating medium.

"We should provide some method by which banking can go on with new cash coming in. It is proposed through the treasury department that every bank will be authorized to open new accounts, and the money so deposited in the new accounts can be withdrawn at any time. The only way in which that money can be kept absolutely safe beyond peradventure of doubt is by using methods to keep it safe—first, keeping the money in cash the way it is put in; secondly, depositing it in the Federal Reserve bank, and third, purchasing government bonds with it.

"Recognized government bonds are as safe as government currency. They

TREASURY BAN ON OLD FUNDS STILL IN FORCE

Payment in Gold Forbidden.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
(Pictures on Back Page)

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Under a regulation issued tonight by Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin, banks will be permitted to reopen tomorrow for the transaction of business based on new deposits.

Banks electing to avail themselves of this privilege may receive new deposits, which shall be segregated from old deposits and shall be subject to withdrawal on demand without restriction.

District of Columbia banks will reopen tomorrow under this regulation. They will receive new deposits and will cash checks drawn thereon in currency. Against old deposits clearing house certificates will be issued in lieu of currency.

Treasury officials are hopeful that this erection of a new banking structure on a foundation of new deposits will attract currency from hoarding back into bank vaults.

For Banks to Decide.

It is for the bank to determine what it will accept as new deposits. All banks, reopening under this regulation, naturally will accept currency as a new deposit. It is within the discretion of the bank, however, to say whether it also will accept as a new deposit a check drawn on an old deposit in another bank or whether check to be accepted as a new deposit must be one drawn on a new deposit in another bank.

The regulation is wholly permissive. It does not seek to override state decrees closing banks or to coerce banks into reopening. Banks are free to exercise full discretion as to whether they will reopen on the conditions stipulated.

Treasury advices, however, are that numerous banks will take advantage of the order to reopen. Iowa officials are reported to have declared that the order conflicts with the Iowa decree closing the banks of that state and that Iowa banks will not be permitted to reopen during the banking holiday even to receive new deposits. The Iowa officials, however, cannot prevent national banks from reopening.

Protects Supply of Gold.

In this and other ways the banking dictatorship with which President Roosevelt has started his administration struggled, amid great confusion, to bring about a panic-proof resumption of banking and other business. Secretary Woodin issued other regulations to exempt from the banking holiday transactions necessary to maintain distribution of the nation's food supply and to permit other transactions not involving the withdrawal of gold or gold certificates.

Plans for floating the country out of its banking troubles on an issue of scrip still were hung up on snags late tonight.

Plan New York Scrip.

George L. Burr and Morriss Ernst, members of the New York state banking commission, had worked out a plan for the issuance of scrip which was acceptable to treasury officials and left late tonight to return to Albany. There the legislature was awaiting word of the results of the conference here so that the plan could be enacted into law.

Illinois bankers, headed by Melvin A. Traylor, president of Chicago's First National, remained in Washington tonight, saying that no agreement on issue of scrip had been reached. They added, however, that they hoped to conclude their conferences and leave tomorrow.

During discussions today the limitations of local scrip frequently were pointed out. Clearing house certificates issued in one city might be heavily discounted in another, it was said, and banks having deposits with their correspondent banks in New York would not be able to convert them into cash with the New York banks operating solely on locally issued scrip.

Fear Currency Inflation.

National scrip was being urged and worked upon by a group headed by Undersecretary of the Treasury Ballantine. Care was being taken to avoid placing the federal government's credit behind scrip, which would then become money and open the door to inflation through fiat issues.

A national plan whereby banks would place their liquid assets with the federal reserve banks and obtain an equivalent amount of federal scrip was being urged by some. The scrip would be issued approximately as federal reserve notes now are, but it would be less attractive to hoarders.

In order to avoid revealing the liquidity of each bank allowing the issuance of scrip up to a certain percentage of liquid assets, federal authorities are considering a flat percentage restriction on the floating of scrip. Each bank, for instance, would be allowed to issue scrip up to 25 per cent of its assets.

Congress Meets Thursday.

President Roosevelt began consideration of the emergency legislative program he will lay before the Seventy-third congress when it meets in extraordinary session Thursday noon. The President, it was learned, may appear in person before the two houses in joint session to deliver his message, by way of emphasizing the gravity of the situation.

The purpose is to rush through congress legislation giving the sanction of specific law to the banking holiday and the steps being taken by the treasury to reopen the banks under conditions safeguarding against wholesale deposit withdrawals. The Democratic leadership in congress is split wide open on the proposition of government guarantee of bank deposits.

Representative Henry B. Steagall of Alabama, chairman of the house committee on banking and currency, is leading the deposit guarantee move ment. Senator Carter Glass of Virginia is vigorously opposing the proposal. Representative Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, who will be speaker of the house in the new congress, said flatly tonight that there would be no deposit guarantee legislation.

Glass Opposes Guarantee.

"It is too late now to guarantee deposits," Mr. Glass said. "It would do no good. The banks will be reopened under new regulations by which depositors can put in money and draw checks against the new deposits without restriction."

Mr. Woodin's regulation permitting banks to reopen to receive new deposits follows:

"Deposits heretofore received by any banking institution pursuant to agreement or legislative authority providing for segregation and for repayment without restriction may be paid on demand.

"Any banking institution which was lawfully engaged in the business of receiving deposits prior to March 6, 1933, may create special trust accounts for the receipt of new deposits which shall be subject to withdrawal on demand without any restriction or limitation and shall be kept separately in cash or on deposit in federal reserve banks or invested in obligations of the United States.

Special Accounts Approved.

"Federal reserve banks may open special accounts on their books for their member banks and temporarily for non-member banks and may receive in such special accounts the proceeds of new deposits received by such banking institutions. In making deposits with the federal reserve bank pursuant to this regulation, the depositing bank shall in the case of each deposit indicate to the federal reserve bank by symbol or otherwise that the funds so deposited represent new deposits made under this regulation.

"Upon receipt of such deposits, such federal reserve bank shall credit the same in the special account of the depositing bank herein provided for and shall hold the same solely for repayment to such bank.

"Federal reserve banks shall permit the withdrawal of any part or all of such new deposits by the depositing bank without restriction provided that the depositing bank shall in such order or request for withdrawal indicate to the federal reserve bank by symbol or otherwise that such withdrawal is to be made from such special account, provided, however, that no banking institution shall pay out or permit the withdrawal of any gold or gold certificates."

Plan to Control Banks.

Briefly the eight regulations for the banks as announced today provided for:

1. Limited reopening to accept new deposits subject to withdrawal without restriction, the accounts to be kept separately in cash or deposited in federal reserve banks or invested in United States obligations.
2. Repayment in full on demand of deposits heretofore received by any banking institution under an agreement or legislative authority for segregation and full withdrawal.
3. Handling of drafts for shipment, transportation and delivery of foodstuffs.
4. Free access of customers to safety deposit vaults.
5. Making change, but without paying out either gold or gold certificates.
6. Cashing checks drawn on the treasurer of the United States, but not in gold or gold certificates.
7. Returning without restriction all cash, checks, etc., received for deposit or collection after the last closing of business hours and not entered on the books.
8. Accepting in cash or otherwise payments on account of notes or other obligations due the banks

HOOVER IS READY TO GIVE SUPPORT TO BANK PROGRAM

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—Former President Hoover, from his apartment in the Waldorf-Astoria today, called for "wholehearted support" of President Roosevelt's emergency banking program.

"The President's proclamation should receive the wholehearted support and coöperation of every citizen," he said in a statement handed to newspapermen by his secretary, Lawrence Richey.

Mr. Hoover had no other comment, nor did he discuss the details of the President's plan.

Refreshed by two twelve hour nights of rest, the former President turned today to the "personal matters" and private business which were the reasons given for his stay in New York for a short but indefinite period before going to his California home at Palo Alto.

When Mr. Hoover will leave New York remained undecided. It seemed probable, however, that he might abandon his intention of returning to California by boat and proceed overland by rail. The fishing trip in southern waters that had been planned for the first week of freedom from official duties since 1914 has definitely been canceled, Mr. Richey said.

Actor's Support Payments for Son Reduced by Court

Superior Judge James J. Kelly yesterday reduced the support money which Clifton ["Ukulele Ike"] Edwards, actor, must pay for his son, Clifton Jr., 13 years old, from $200 a month to $30 a week. Both of the boy's legs were amputated after he was injured in a railroad accident some time ago. The order was entered after a brief court hearing of evidence that Edwards' income had been reduced since his former wife, Mrs. Gertrude Ryrholm, 5041 North Mango aveinue, divorced him in 1923.

MISSOURI SENATE ADVANCES STATE DRY LAW REPEAL

Jefferson City, Mo., March 6.—(AP)—The state senate tonight voted, 19 to 12, to perfect and print the Brogan-Doran-Nolte bill for repeal of Missouri's prohibition enforcement act. The vote makes certain the passage of the bill by the senate.

Senator Joseph Brogan, St. Louis, co-author of the bill, said it probably would be called up for final passage within the next few days.

The house already has passed the Brogan-Roberts bill to legalize manufacture and sale of 3.2 per cent beer, and it has been perfected by the senate.

Carolina Kills Medical Rum Bill.

Raleigh, N. C., March 6.—(AP)—The North Carolina house of representatives tonight killed a bill to legalize medicinal whiskey. The vote was 75 to 19.

have the same credit back of them. And, therefore, if we can persuade people all through the country, when their salary checks come in, to deposit them in new accounts, which new accounts will be held in trust, and the money kept in one of the new forms I have mentioned, we will have made progress.

"All I can say is I am very grateful for what the states have done in this emergency and we want if possible to have a general banking situation: that is to say, covering national banks and state banks, as uniform as possible throughout the country and at the same time we want to coöperate with all of the states in bringing about that uniformity. I have no desire to have this matter centralized down here in Washington any more than we can help. I don't believe there is much more to say about banking.

Several Matters for Discussion.

"The letter that I sent to you took up several matters:

"Conflicting taxation between federal and state governments. Every one of you has been seeking methods to find new sources of taxation. It has been natural and human to expect that the federal government should try to find some method of raising revenue.

"A second question relates to federal aid in unemployment relief. The federal government, of course, does have to prevent anybody from starving, but the federal government should no' be called upon to exercise that duty until other agencies fail. The primary duty is that of the locality, the city, county, town—if they fail and cannot raise enough to meet the needs the next responsibility is on the states, and they have to do all they can, and if it is proven that they cannot do any more and the funds are still insufficient it is the duty of the federal government to step in.

Coördinating Work.

"We come to the question of coördinating work. It is very difficult to know in the federal government what states are doing well for unemployment relief and what states are not, and it is my thought that I can create some kind of central relief agency which will be a fact finding body, which will coördinate the work of states and act as a clearing house for the relief of the nation. I hope to get that set up in the next two or three weeks.

"The third proposition, the reorganizing and consolidation of local governments to reduce the taxation cost. That is your problem and it has been my problem for the last four years.

"And there is the question of mortgage foreclosures, especially on farm land and also on small homes. There again we haven't a national policy. Some of the states are doing it one way and other states are doing it another way. Some states and some localities are closing their eyes to existing laws and do not have any foreclosures. As yet we have no national policy for it, but I believe we can have one."

Business Hopes for Early Action to Provide Scrip

Without blinking at the fact that lack of a circulatory medium of exchange has a hampering effect on Chicago business, merchants yesterday were maintaining a hopeful attitude toward the bank moratorium situation.

A tour of the loop disclosed that those stores which had advertised special sales in attractive form were crowded both morning and afternoon. Others reported business "just fair" or "not so good."

No change has been made, it was said in several stores, in the policy of steering clear of checks for the present. However, charge customers were requested to make full use of their accounts. Buyers with cash to spend were, of course, welcomed.

Manufacturing interests also were hopeful. Thomas S. Hammond, president of the Illinois Manuufacturers' association, informed the members that it seemed sure arrangements would be made for the release of pay roll money and suggested that clearing house certificates probably would be adopted soon to tide over the emergency.

Lift Rail Restrictions.

The Illinois commerce commission late in the afternoon sent to all railroads under its jurisdiction a telegram informing them that rules which might hamper shipments during the emergency should be removed.

"Illinois carriers under authority of this telegram," the message stated, "should on Illinois intra-state shipments waive credit, storage, and demurrage rules sufficiently to protect shippers and receivers of freight during the state and national bank emergency. Special consideration should be given order consignments, thus permitting an uninterrupted flow of commerce and protecting the food supply of the state."

H. G. Taylor, chairman of the Western Association of Railway Executives, said the railroads doing interstate business were striving to find some way to get freight delivered and to arrange about demurrage charges for those unable to pay freight bills.

It was a matter of remark in nearly all sections of the city that large, old style currency and gold coins—supposedly drawn from the safety deposit box hoards—were appearing frequently. This was particularly marked at the suburban stations of the railroads.

One Railroad Takes Checks.

Checks were declined by all the suburban roads but the Chicago and North Western, whose agents were instructed to accept such orders from regular commuters known to them. Travel on the suburban trains held up well, as most of the regular riders had already purchased their monthly books before the banks were closed.

In Wilmette arrangements were started to issue local scrip in denominations under $1 to assist in the making of change. The plans were given up before they came to fruition when a local bank agreed to make change. The currency exchange downtown helped Chicagoans to solve this problem.

Many large employers of labor, confident that some sort of circulating medium will be in effect within a few days, handled their pay days as usual, giving their employés cash. Most of the loop stores, the chain restaurants, drug stores, and the telephone company followed their usual routine.

Concerns which had a week-end payday and customarily paid by check did so. It was expected by most of the companies that they would be able in a short time to find some way to make the checks spendable.

Confidence that the early issuance of clearing house certificates would mend matters considerably was generally expressed.

"In 1907 they worked well," said D. M. Yates of Marshall Field & Co. "We look for the same effect in 1933."

Mr. Yates said his company was urging charge customers to use their facilities, and added that conferences were being held on the possibility of accepting checks on account. No decision has been made yet on this matter.

Asked if any strengthening in prices of merchandise was anticipated, Mr. Yates said there was as yet no sign of it, although food prices appeared to be going up.

Store Reports Brisk Trade.

The Fair store, which had advertised heavily on Sunday, announced large crowds all day. D. F. Kelly, president, described the day's business as "excellent."

"Shortly before closing time," he said, "I made a tour through our State street store and was struck immediately by the lack of gloom on the faces of our customers. The sale was highly satisfactory."

There were also large crowds in the Mandel Brothers store, which had announced a special anniversary sale.

Many of the large stores reiterated their willingness to accept the pay roll checks of large reputable concerns, with the provision that no cash would be given in change. Instead, merchandise certificates would be given for later spending. The drawback to this arrangement is that few workers care to spend an entire pay check in one place.

Plan Credit Facilities.

The Illinois Federation of Restaurant Owners announced that plans were being worked out to extend credit to customers of neighborhood restaurants. The Independent Grocers' alliance, through President J. Frank Grimes, said its members would continue to extend credit to regular charge customers and that they would even take on new charge customers if the latter were responsible and regularly employed.

Coal dealers face their biggest problem in railroad freight costs, according to Norman Elmstrom, president of the Chicago Coal Merchants' association. If railroad rules against the extension of credit are eased, as has been urged, the benefit will be passed on to the consumers by the merchants, he said. Otherwise a cash basis would generally prevail, he asserted. Half of the retail cost of coal is freight, he said.

A few large financial acceptance companies made it known that automobiles, electric icing machines and other installment goods would not be "pulled" or taken from the owners for failure to pay during the moratorium.

Grant Delay on Loans.

Alfred P. Snite, president of the Illinois Association of Personal Finance Companies, asserted that the member companies would not solicit payment on loans during the moratorium period, and that a policy of accepting or not accepting voluntary payments would be decided on today. No checks are being accepted as payments on loans.

Good checks will be accepted by the American Airways for service by the system, according to L. D. Seymour, president.

The Yellow Cab company took a step toward credit business by announcing that ride books would be sold to individuals and companies using the service regularly and that checks from responsible buyers would be accepted.

Three large chain grocery concerns, National Tea company, Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, and Kroger Consumers, reported good sales of food coupons to industrial concerns which distribute them to employés as part payment on salaries.

Old Scrip Preserved as Souvenirs of 1907 Panic

Two clearing house certificates issued during the money panic of 1907 were brought to THE TRIBUNE yesterday by Kenneth McNamara. One, a $1 certificate, was issued by the Milwaukee Clearing house, and the other, a $2 certificate, was issued by the Chicago clearing house. They are the property of his mother, Mrs. G. P. McNamara.

board. The clearing house certificates fill this need nicely.

"Clearing house certificates are by no means fiat money. They are a form of money secured by good collateral with a safe margin, the amount of this margin depending upon the decision of the issuers. Most of the certificates would probably be of small denominations."

Loop banks yesterday had full staffs of employés at work on preparations for reopening when the holiday expires. Officers were classifying loans and investments so that if the word comes to release clearing house certificates no time will be lost in appraising the assets to be put up to secure the certificates.

During the day Chicago bankers attending the conference in Washington with treasury and reserve officials telephoned Chicago repeatedly.

Shortly after noon came the question:

"What is the most pressing need in Chicago at present?"

This word went back over the wires to the Washington conferees:

"We can get along nicely for the present if some arrangement is made to take care of pay rolls and the shipment of perishable foods."

Predict Rising Market.

At the Chicago Board of Trade there was much optimism. A membership was sold for $4,500, up $500 from last week. Professionals, inspired by currency inflation talk, predicted a rising active market when trading is resumed. At 9 o'clock tomorrow cash grain trading will be suspended. There has been no trading in futures sinces Friday.

The union stockyards will suspend trading this afternoon at 3, due to the temporary drying up of credit facilities. Packers, however, will continue their policy of buying direct from farmers.

Charles Irrgang, manager of the Chicago Fruit auction, said the three big food centers, Chicago, Cincinnati, and New York, had agreed to prevent skyrocketing of food prices.

STOCK EXCHANGE ACTS

A special committee was selected yesterday by the governors of the Chicago Stoc exchange to deal with the problems arising during the bank holiday period. A complete suspension of business by the exchange and its member concerns had previously been voted for the duration of the holiday.

Officials of the exchange declared that they would be on the alert to protect the public from the operations of unscrupulous security dealers who may take advantage of the present conditions.

The committee named by the Chicago exchange includes Morton D. Cahn, Paul H. Davis, Warren A. Lamson, M. J. O'Brien, Paul B. Skinner, Virgil C. Webster, and R. Arthur Wood.

Rupert F. Bippus, state securities commissioner, issued a statement warning investors to use extreme caution while business is suspended on the recognized exchange.

Americans Selling U. S. Short Is Cause of Drain on Gold

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Americans selling their country short and British manipulations of foreign exchange markets are at the bottom of the virtual suspension of the gold standard by the United States, it was said in official circles today.

Americans have been exporting their capital, sending most of it to England, according to officials, and England has been juggling its so-called equalization fund in such a way as to draw gold out of this country.

England's machinations are estimated to have taken 100 million dollars in gold out of this country in the last two months. No estimate can be made, it is said, of the exportation of capital by Americans, but the movement was reflected in the decline of the dollar on world markets in the few days preceding the general moratorium in this country.

Resisted Foreign Raids.

American gold stocks last summer fought off foreign raids, but the present crisis has brought a new drain in the form of American exports of funds. Much of the present difficulty is due this additional strain caused largely by Americans trading dollars for British sterling notes.

Last summer when the United States and France locked horns in a battle for gold, almost every penny of foreign balances in the country was drawn down, but America was still left with more than four billion dollars' worth of gold.

Total foreign property holdings in this country, if all were suddenly converted into gold, would not have required much more than half this sum.

From these figures experts today were deducing that Americans have been converting their own property into exportable form. Only such a movement, it was said, would have so seriously enlarged the gold withdrawals.

England's part in the present gold crisis is a by-product of the normal operation of the so-called equalization fund set up by that country when England abandoned the gold standard. The fund was originally to prevent wild speculation in the English pound sterling as long as it was no longer pegged to a definite gold value.

Used to Stabilize Pound.

Just prior to Dec. 15, the date on which England was due to pay the United States $95,550,000 on war debts, internal financial conditions and the international situation caused the pound to fall to $3.14. At about this time the fund was thrown into operation and England began to purchase its own currency on world markets in order to support its value.

The decline was checked and sterling began to rise in value. When heads of the British treasury decided that the rise had proceeded far enough they began selling the sterling which they had bought at low prices at the new high prices.

Sterling has gone over $3.50. Each pounds which was bought by the stabilization fund for $3.14 and sold for $3.50 brought a net profit of 36 cents to the stabilization fund. By this process officials estimate that Britain has regained all of the $95,550,000 in gold which she sent over b in December to meet her war d payment and perhaps a little more.

Officials emphasize that operations of the British funds were in accordance with the intended purposes of the fund.

NEW YORK STATE SCRIP APPROVED BY LEGISLATURE

Dictatorial Powers Voted Gov. Lehman.

New York, March 7.—[Special.]—[Tuesday.]—After the state legislature in Albany had enacted bills virtually giving him dictatorial powers, Gov. Herbert Lehman early this morning announced a plan for state wide scrip, good anywhere in New York state.

Sanction of Lehman's plan was announced in Washington and efforts are being made to put it into speedy effect. He proposes a state corporation to be formed today, issuing certificates against sound assets of banking institutions.

While it was said by the governor that his program does not interfere with that of the New York clearing house, local bankers foresaw certain conflict and calculated that serious delay will result.

Scrip by Thursday or Friday.

The clearing house already has $250,000,000 of scrip ready for immediate circulation and merely was awaiting approval from Secretary Woodin in Washington to reopen the New York city banks. Hope had been expressed that the clearing house certificates would get into use tomorrow.

In the absence of an O. K. from Washington and in the face of definite approval of Gov. Lehman's state wide program, the clearing house officials voiced the fear it would be Thursday or Friday before scrip would be permitted to circulate here.

Gov. Lehman's action was prompted by his feeling that the clearing house plan would protect only members of that association and would leave savings banks and institutions outside of New York City without scrip.

Woodin Gives O. K.

One of the bills authorizes the governor to suspend operation of the banking and insurance departments of the state government during the emergency. The other bills grant regulatory powers over banking and insurance.

It was indicated the federal authorities are considering the issuance of a new national medium of exchange to take the place of the ordinary currency now in the hands of hoarders or locked up in closed banks.

BANKING HOLIDAY DECREE DRAFTED BY HOOVER AIDS

Changing Administration Delayed Issue.

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—When the White House currency embargo proclamation which took effect early this morning was originally drawn, its chief declaration read as follows:

"Now, therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, President of the United States of America," instead of "Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt."

For the document was prepared by ex-Secretary Mills and his aids while Mr. Hoover was still President, and its preparation was prompted by the declaration by Gov. Comstock of the Michigan bank holiday with the certainty that other states would follow suit.

Proclamation Withheld.

The reasons why the proclamation did not become public until the government changed hands weave a story of personalities and politics which may be of historic importance. They illustrate what perils could arise during the long interregnum between a presidential election and an inauguration, a period henceforth shortened to a few weeks by the ratification of the Norris amendment.

Despite the spread of banking holidays last week, New York and Illinois banks remained open. Bankers and public officers in those states clung to the belief that momentarily steps would be taken in Washington to check the epidemic of withdrawals.

The heavy withdrawals last Friday of gold and silver currency and bullion for domestic hoarding and foreign shipment came on the last day Mr. Hoover spent in the White House. In Washington also was the President elect, awaiting the hour of his inauguration.

Both Implored to Act.

The situation in New York, Chicago and other places was reported to them anxiously by bankers and public officers and each was implored to act at once.

Mr. Mills had the proclamation ready in the name of President Hoover. Once more administration chiefs, and it is understood that these included Mr. Hoover himself, urged Mr. Roosevelt to take joint responsibility for the issuance of a public order along the lines of that which became law early this morning.

The Hoover administration further offered to make a public statement that its action was taken with the accord of Mr. Roosevelt. He declined to join or otherwise influence any move by the federal government. He pointed out that he was not yet President and that he had—with the two exceptions of the debt mission invitation to Great Britain and the endorsement of the administration's far eastern policy—steadfastly declined to assume responsibility without power.

Hoover Also Declines.

Federal reserve and other officials then turned back to Mr. Hoover. They urged him to issue the proclamation; he too declined. He said that the end of his term was but a few hours distant and that he was unwilling, under the circumstances, to exercise his power so drastically.

These exchanges between bankers, state officials and Hoover and Roosevelt occupied most of Friday and Friday night. As the night wore on a way was found to avert the dangers of the morrow and pass the situation on to Mr. Roosevelt as President precisely as it was—and no worse—at the close of banking hours on Friday.

With the consent of the President elect, the incoming secretary of the treasury, William H. Woodin, joined the federal reserve conference, which, in Mr. Hoover's behalf, was being attended by Secretary Mills and Undersecretary Ballatine.

Ask Governors to Act.

The proposal was advanced that Governors Lehman of New York and Horner of Illinois should declare a banking holiday through Monday night. This was relayed by Mr. Woodin to his chief; by Mr. Mills to his. Both agreed to indorse the recommendation to the governors. By 4 o'clock Saturday morning the reluctant consent of Messrs. Lehman and Horner had been obtained, and the national banking crisis was "frozen" until the new administration should have time to attack it.

Once President, Mr. Roosevelt carried out his promise to the American people and acted swiftly.

COURT CALLS OFF TRAFFIC TRIALS IN BANK HOLIDAY

Judge Thomas A. Green yesterday declared a moratorium on trial of traffic cases in the Speeders' court until the end of the bank holiday. James Whalen, 36 years old, 260 North Mayfield avenue, who was arrested for not having license plates, won a discharge with his explanation of his misfortunes. "It was like this," Whalen told the judge. "A man named Frank Kirshner of Michigan owed me $25 and paid me with a check on a Sturgis, Mich., bank. I bought the car with the check and some money of my own. The check was no good because of the bank holiday in Michigan. My money is tied up and I can't buy licenses."

Currency Exchange Does Rushing Business in Loop

RESERVE BANK CHANGES MONEY FOR THOUSANDS

Throngs After Cash Keep 34 Tellers Busy.

Chicagoans were supplied with coins and small bills yesterday by the 7th district federal reserve bank, which opened 34 windows in the old banking quarters of the National Bank of the Republic, 126 South La Salle street, as a currency exchange. The 34 tellers were kept busy throughout the day, paying out tens of thousands of dollars in small bills and fractional currency in exchange for bills of larger denominations. No checks or other credit instruments were cashed.

Exact figures were not made public, but unofficial estimates placed the total amount of money changed at close to $1,000,000. Three trucks were kept busy during the day bringing small bills and coin from the vaults of the federal reserve bank to be exchanged for the large bills. The federal reserve bank, it was disclosed, obtained $800,000 from the First National bank in coins in half dollars, quarters, dimes, nickels, and pennies.

Forty Policemen on Guard.

The lines started forming shortly after the doors opened at 9 a. m. Large signs in the windows said: "Denominational currency exchange. Silver and minor coins. Positively no checks cashed." Forty policemen and bank guards circulated in the foyer as the crowd pressed in, but their presence did not prevent extreme caution on the part of persons carrying brief cases, cloth and paper bags and stuffed billfolds. They clutched them tightly and surveyed the sidewalks to the left and right before they departed hurriedly.

Attendants estimated that 75 per cent of those coming for change were individuals, but the largest amounts of money were changed for representatives of business houses. A girl from a restaurant exchanged $1,000 in bills into small coins. A man from another restaurant received silver for eight $100 bills. The two largest transactions reported were for $15,000 and $6,800, but the messengers refused to disclose their identity.

Hoarders Get Change.

Money of all kinds was brought out, attendants said. There were a few gold coins and some yellow back United States gold certificates, which have been out of general circulation for about a year. There were even a few $1,000 gold certificates of the old blanket size. Other obvious instances of hoarded money coming back into circulation were bunches of $20 bills and currency of larger denominations.

There was another heavy rush in the postal savings quarters at the federal building yesterday, where $171,000 was deposited and $283,000 withdrawn on Saturday. The ratio of withdrawals to deposits was said to be higher yesterday because of the need of cash during the holiday.

Postoffice money orders also were being cashed and there was an appreciable increase in this business. Many business houses were said to be transmitting cash by this method. The limit on a postal money order is $100; there is no limit on the number.

FOOD IS ASSURED FOR 170,000 FAMILIES ON COUNTY RELIEF ROLLS

To the 170,000 families on the relief lists in Cook county the bank moratorium will cause little, if any, inconvenience, in the opinion of Joseph L. Moss, director of the Cook county bureau of public welfare. He stated yesterday that until the ban is lifted no checks made out to relief supply sources will be honored by the First National bank, depository for the relief funds, but he expected they would soon be paid in full.

In the meantime the routine delivery of foodstuffs, milk, and fuel will be continued, he added, since this part of the system operates on a credit basis and checks for supplies furnished are mailed thirty days after delivery has been made.

"Should the bank holiday continue for any length of time the situation might be different, since the outcome in such circumstances would depend upon how long credit could be extended by the firms with which business is done," Mr. Moss added.

Since credit fo rthe Oak Forest infirmary, the county hospital, and other such institutions has been on a long term basis, Assistant County Controller Michael J. O'Connor said, no difficulties will arise for them from the moratorium.

In the county treasurer's office cash was available yesterday for outstanding employes' checks, mothers' and blind pensions. Money for the purpose was raised by utilizing the monthly fee earning from various county fee offices.

Hitler's Aim to Restore German Monarchy Revealed

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 6.—The real aim of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's "third empire" will be to restore the German monarchy. This is the inference drawn from statements in Hitler's Munich organ, the Voelkischer Beobachter.

"We will not slacken the relentless struggle we have carried on for thirteen years; it will be in force until the second stage of the way from Brandenburg gate to Schloss—former imperial palace—has been covered," were the words in which the National Socialists make their first bow to the monarchy.

Hitler himself avoided the monarchists until the eve of yesterday's reichstag election when he met former Kaiser Wilhelm's wife, Princess Hermine. They conferred for an hour. The chancellor is reported to have admitted to the princess that he believed the monarchy should be restored but that the moment was not propitious—the restoration must be postponed to a more favorable time.

See Hand of Von Papen.

Hitler's advisers asserted that this was only a polite way of letting down the "kaiserin," but today's statement in Hitler's newspaper shows that Hermine as well as Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen and other members of the cabinet are beginning to influence the chancellor.

Monarchists state they fully share Hitler's belief that the restoration must be postponed "until conditions are improved in Germany." Prince Louis Ferdinand and other members of the younger Hohenzollern set are great admirers of Hitler and convinced that he is loyal to the former imperial house. Louis is on his way to Doorn to spend a month with his grandfather. He will endeavor to induce the former kaiser to place more confidence in Hitler.

The Nationalists are reveling in yesterday's victory for the combined Nazi and "monarchist" victory. In several towns republican flags were torn down from public buildings and burned in public squares. They were replaced with the Nazi swastika and imperial emblems.

Unfurl Nazi Banner.

In Baden the state government permitted the unfurling of the Nazi flag on state buildings "to avoid bloodshed," but appealed to Hitler and Dr. Wilhelm Frick, minister of interior, to order the Nazis to refrain from further acts. The Nazi leader in Baden has ordered the state government to resign and the appointment of a Hitlerite to head a new administration, but Baden officials refused.

The free city of Luebeck has been ordered by the reich government to accept a Nazi chief of police. The senate of Bremen has resigned, refusing to accept orders from the Hitler government.

In Hesse and Bremen commissioners have been appointed by the reich to guarantee the safety of that state and city.

In Thuringia the republican Reichsbanner organization was dissolved. Thuringian authorities also dissolved the Central Union of German Citizens of Jewish faith.

All schools in Germany are enjoying a day's vacation this week to "celebrate the election victory of the German nation."

Reds Fire on Nazis; Three Slain.

Three passersby were killed and ten persons were injured at Hamburg when communists fired on Nazi storm troopers returning from a celebration at which they unfurled a Nazi flag in place of republican colors on the town hall at Altona. Hamburg police attacked the Reds with machine guns.

Hitler reported to President von Hindenburg today on his victory both in the national election and the balloting for a new Prussian diet. The cabinet will meet tomorrow to fix the date for the convocation of the new reichstag in which the combined Nazis and Nationalists have a majority. After a perfunctory session the reichstag is expected to close shop for two years.

Reds and Socialists Join Forces in War on Fascism

MOSCOW, March 6.—(AP)—Two bitter political antagonists, the communists and the Social Democrats, have joined forces temporarily in an effort to present a uniform fighting front against their common Fascist enemy in Germany and throughout the world. The action was signalized by the acceptance of the comintern [the third communist international] of a proposal to take a united stand against what is described as the strengthening of the Fascist reaction as exemplified by recent events in Germany.

ECONOMIST LAUDS MORATORIUM AS CASH SAFEGUARD

The bank moratorium has placed the United States "in a position to step firmly out of the mire in which our economic blunders have landed us," Prof. Harry Gidonese of the economics department, University of Chicago, declared yesterday in a luncheon address before the Advertising Men's post of the American Legion.

"We are in a more healthy position now than we were on Friday," said Prof. Gidonese. "On the whole the moratorium was a good thing, for it protects the responsible from raids by the irresponsible. We know that our money is safe now and we have a chance to get it—a fair chance with all others."

The professor praised members of the Roosevelt cabinet and said that the President did all things possible under the circumstances to outline a constructive program in his inaugural address.

FALLS DEAD IN BUS DEPOT.

A man believed to be Lawrence Lonardo, 60 years old, of 2305 East 4th street, Brooklyn, N. Y., dropped dead last night in the Union bus depot, Roosevelt road and Wabash avenue. Tickets indicated he was on his way home from San Jose, Cal.

11,000 REALTY TAX BILLS PAID IN SINGLE DAY

Small Home Owners Flock to Treasurer.

Small home owners flocked to the county building yesterday to pay their 1931 real estate taxes. More than 11,000 bills were paid, and at the end of the day County Treasurer McDonough reported that slightly more than $2,000,000 had been collected. This was the best single day's collection of current taxes.

According to George Hagenauer, chief auditor in the treasurer's office, 45,000 individual bills for 1931 city realty taxes, totaling $7,572,397 have been paid. The total collections amount to 5.1 per cent of the total city bill of $147,089,000, and the items paid amount to 8.4 per cent of the 532,856 parcels within the city limits.

Most of Payments Small.

An examination of the paid items disclosed that only a few exceed $200. The largest single bill paid to date is that of the Straus Safe Deposit company, which amounted to $112,372. Several other business concerns have paid a number of bills, or have paid first installments on a number of bills, which amounted in the aggregate to more than this amount. An average struck for all the bills paid up to yesterday was $95.

Auditor Hagenauer said the larger taxpayers always had withheld their payments until penalty date or the day before. They do this, he explained, to save interest on their money until the last possible moment. He stated that in the 6 North Clark street substation, where the treasurer receives tax warrants in payment of bills, several million dollars' worth of such securities are accumulating.

They are kept on a "will call" system which allows the taxpayer to deposit his warrants but to continue to draw interest on them until the day of the penalty deadline. In cases where several hundred thousand dollars are involved in an individual bill a considerable amount of interest accumulates for every day the warrants remain in the hands of their owners.

Held Till Deadline Date.

These warrants, the auditor explained, are not included in the daily collections, but they will be dumped into the general collections on March 15. The various taxpayers who have presented the warrants in payment will be mailed their receipted taxbills after that time.

The treasurer and his attorney, Thomas D. Nash, yesterady completed arrangements to deposit the daily tax collections in a private vault at the First National bank. It was decided that keeping this money in the county building was too hazardous. Sunday's and yesterday's collections were placed in the bank late last evening. A heavy police guard armed with machine guns was furnished the money truck in which the cash was transferred.

Cashiers yesterday discovered that many tax payments were being made in mixed currency and coin. At the end of the day they found that $2,000 had been paid in gold pieces. Nearly $10,000 was paid in the old "blanket" size bills which went out of circulation two years ago. Another large group of taxpayers were availing themselves of the privilege of paying taxes by check.

Notes of the Bank Moratorium

Names of gold hoarders are on file at the Federal Reserve bank. During recent weeks those who drew out gold in thousands of dollars have been required to identify themselves. Officials revealed that one withdrawal totaled $500,000. As President Roosevelt's edict against hoarding is not retroactive the government will not interfere with existing hoards.

Children in 60 schools, who have been receiving free lunches through THE TRIBUNE'S Hungry School Children's fund, will not go hungry during the moratorium. Miss Frances L. Swain, director of household arts and lunchrooms, announced that merchants have agreed to continue to supply food until banks release funds deposited for the feeding of needy children.

County Treasurer McDonough and Controller Szymczak announced that redemption of city and county tax warrants will cease until the situation clears.

J. E. Wagner, treasurer of the Cudahy Packing company, returned by plane from Havana yesterday. He flew to Cuba on a business trip and on his arrival found a message urging his immediate return. He left by return plane. "I didn't even get to drink a glass of beer," he said.

J. C. Stein, president of the Music Corporation of America, heralded the moratorium as a business stimulant. In time of stress, he said, people seek relaxation and relaxation means dancing and cafe life, which increase the demand for music and musicians.

Many loop workers, temporarily without cash, took their lunches to work.

The bank holiday halted the filing of suits in the city, state and federal courts. Only a few litigants appeared to pay filing costs.

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court announced the suspension of hearings on actions to evict tenants for the period of the moratorium.

In Elgin David Welling, 16 year old student of Elgin High school, went to the rescue of merchants short of change. David had saved 11,357 pennies toward the cost of a college education. Merchants, who knew of his thrift, besieged his home and the pennies were soon distributed.

LAVAL IS QUOTED AS HAVING GIVEN HOOVER DEBTS 'ULTIMATUM'

PARIS, March 6.—(AP)—Former Premier Laval was quoted in political circles today as having said that he told President Hoover in 1931 that he never would consider cancellation of German reparations without cancellation of the French war debts and a substantial payment besides. This Laval was said to have told a group of fifty friends at a private luncheon today.

He repeated the statement that he made last December, that if there were only one vote in the French senate against payment of the Dec. 15 war debt installment to America, that vote would be his.

He also severely criticized the Lausanne agreement, which settled the reparations issue for the time being.

M. J. Insull Extradition Hearing Set for March 16

TORONTO, March 6.—(AP)—Extradition proceedings against Martin Insull, former utilities official of Chicago, were adjourned today until March 16.

DAVIS GRANTED DELAY IN TRIAL UNTIL MONDAY

New York, March 6.—(AP)—Trial of United States Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania on federal lottery charges was again postponed today, this time on the plea of his attorneys that his detention in New York at this time would deprive the state of Pennsylvania of representation during a national crisis.

Judge Johnson Jay Hayes of North Carolina granted adjournment until next Monday.

"I am reluctant to do this," he said, "but I cannot be unmindful of the fact that a national emergency exists and that every state should have full representation in the national congress."

"This postponement is granted," he added, "on the understanding that the case will go to trial next Monday."

King Still Suffering with Cold; Wales to Act for Him

LONDON, March 6.—(AP)—The condition of King George V., who has been suffering from a cold in the head, is taking a normal course, it was said tonight at Buckingham palace. However, it was thought better that the prince of Wales should hold the levee scheduled for tomorrow in place of his father, who will continue to remain indoors.

CHICAGO TO PAY 3 DAY TRIBUTE TO SLAIN MAYOR

Body Will Lie in State; Funeral Friday.

Mayor A. J. Cermak is coming home tomorrow to receive the kind of funeral honors a sorrowing community gives to a man who dies as tragically as he died. It will be a state and civic function, with the mass of the population participating.

A night with his own family in his home on the southwest side, followed by a full day lying in state in the city hall, and ending with nonsectarian services in the presence of thousands of mourners in the Chicago Stadium—these are the funeral plans, as completed yesterday by the slain mayor's friends and approved by his family.

Officials to Meet Train.

Draped in black and purple, the special train bearing the mayor's body and his bereaved family from Miami, Fla., will arrive at the Twelfth street station over the Illinois Central tomorrow at 10 a. m. Most of Chicago's and the state's leading officials will be there to meet it.

Forming an honorary escort, members of the city council and the mayor's cabinet will march on foot behind the hearse to the Cermak home at 2348 Millard avenue. The Combat Medal Men's association will provide the military escort.

Having taken the mayor to his own doorstep, his political and official associates will withdraw and the body will be left for twenty hours to those who mourn him most, his brothers, sisters, daughters, and their children. The Cermak family will be left in seclusion with its dead until next morning.

Casket to Lie in City Hall.

At 8 a. m. Thursday the honorary escort will re-form its ranks at the Cermak home. With the casket it will move to the city hall, where on the main floor at the junction of city hall and county building the casket will be placed beneath a catafalque.

The casket will be left open to permit Chicago citizens to view for the last time the countenance of the political leader whom they elected to the highest office in their gift. Plans have been made with an expectation that at least 200,000 will wish to pass the casket and bid "Tony" Cermak farewell.

The casket will lie on a dais draped in black and purple. The dais will be placed along the line running north and south which divides the city hall from the county building, where Mr. Cermak helped to govern in the county board before becoming mayor. Above the casket will spread the silken plush of a canopy in black and silver upheld by four silver pillars.

Police and Firemen on Guard.

The thousands who go to pay their last respects will enter the Washington street entrance of the building, pass down corridors lined with flowers, view the body, and depart through the Randolph street doors. Details of police and firemen will stand guard all day and throughout Thursday night.

All city and county business will be suspended while the body lies in state. The city hall will be closed through Thursday night and reopened early Friday to permit those who wish it a last glimpse of the dead mayor's face before the family bids him farewell and the casket is sealed. The procession to the Stadium will begin at 10 a. m.

The city council will meet today to adopt the resolutions necessary for suspension of municipal business and the county board is expected to do likewise with reference to county affairs.

Details of the processional to the Stadium were being worked out last night by a committee headed by Maj. John Bauder of the police department.

Plans for the Cortège.

With hundreds of civic and military organization asking the honor of sending delegations to join the procession, it appeared last night that the cortege would be one of the longest the city has ever seen. Members of the committee were hoping that none of these requests need be denied.

According to tentative plans, the procession will be led by the Chicago Federation of Musicians' band, playing funeral dirges. Other bands in the line of march will be those from the city high schools, Black Horse troop, and Board of Trade post of the American Legion. All public schools will be closed throughout the day.

In the center of the Stadium the casket will be lifted to a flower banked platform. There the clergymen of three faiths will pronounce a benediction over the mayor's body. The clergymen selected are the Rev. John Thompson, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Chicago temple; the Rev. Daniel Frawley, close friend of the mayor and pastor of St. Jerome's Catholic church at Antioch; and Dr. Louis L. Mann, rabbi of Sinai temple. Gov. Henry Horner will deliver the eulogy.

The services are expected to begin at noon. Following these, the procession will move to the Bohemian National cemetery, where the mayor will be laid at rest beside his wife, Mary, who died in 1928. Masonic rites will be conducted at the cemetery.

SOME OF PRINCIPAL EVENTS IN CAREER OF MAYOR CERMAK

Here are some of the principal events in the life of Mayor Cermak:

1873—Born May 9, in the mining village of Kladno, Bohemia.

1874—His family emigrated to America and Anton passed his first birthday in his mother's arms at Ellis Island. They came to Chicago and then moved to Braidwood, Ill., where the father got a job in a coal mine.

1880—Young Cermak went to public school and was taught by Schoolmaster George Brennan, later the boss of Illinois democracy and Cermak's political mentor.

1890—Pressed for funds, Cermak came to Chicago and worked through the winter. Then he returned to Braidwood and became a miner.

1891—Fired from the mine when he acted as spokesman for men demanding a raise, he once more came to Chicago, settled in the Lawndale district, and got work with the traction company towing cars up a viaduct grade.

1894—Started own business selling wood to neighbors. Married Mary Horeja, also of Bohemian descent.

1895-1900—Branched out in trucking business, became director of a bank, helped found a building and loan association, and established a real estate business. Went into Democratic politics, became a precinct captain, then secretary and chairman of his ward organization.

1902—Elected member of Illinois legislature. Reelected in 1904, 1906, and 1908. During this period he became secretary of the United Societies for Local Self-Government and a leader in fight against state prohibition and Sunday closing law.

1909—Left legislature to become a Chicago alderman.

1912—Retired from city council upon his election as bailiff of Municipal court, where he served one term of six years.

1918—Defeated for sheriff.

1919—Returned to city council with indorsement of Municipal Voters' league for his stand in favor of economy.

1922—Elected president of Cook county board, a Democrat with a Republican majority on the board.

1926—Reelected president of county board. He was again reelected in 1930. His régime saw the erection of new Criminal Courts building and county jail, construction of new highways, and acquisition of forest preserves.

1928—Ran for United States senator and suffered his second defeat. Mrs. Cermak died.

1931—Elected "World's Fair mayor" of Chicago after clinching leadership of Democratic party in Illinois which had been held by his mentor, George Brennan, until Brennan's death in 1928.

1933—Fatally wounded by assassin's bullet fired at Franklin D. Roosevelt, then President elect, on the evening of Feb. 15 at Miami, Fla. Died on March 6 after courageous battle for life.

243 Rookie Policemen Assigned to Regular Jobs

Chicago's first class of rookie policemen in two years went on duty last night at midnight. A few hours earlier the class of 243 members was reviewed by First Deputy Commissioner John H. Alcock at the 132d street armory, 2653 West Madison street. At the close of their drilling they were assigned for regular duty. The class gave a special exhibition of physical exercises, including wrestling and boxing as a part of their graduation exercises.

death ended just at dawn today. For 19 days he had fought on valiantly, sometimes gasping for breath, sometimes sinking into a coma, and sometimes rallying to speak cheerfully to friends and relatives.

"I was elected to be the World's Fair mayor," he had said, "and I'm going to be."

Even without complications it would have required great stamina to fight off the effects of his wound, for the bullet fired by Giuseppe Zangara had torn through his right lung and had come to rest beside his spine, where the surgeons could not reach it.

Wears Down Resistance.

The struggle was not destined to be a simple one between the mayor's physique and the bullet wound alone, for complications soon set in. First colitis, then pneumonia, and finally gangrene wore down the mayor's resistance until late last night his physicians admitted that the end was only a matter of hours.

When it became apparent that a third blood transfusion which had been attempted yesterday would not revive the mayor, the doctors summoned members of the family into the room.

It was evening now and the mayor was in a coma, but even then his eyes partly were open and from time to time he stirred. His rugged countenance was drawn with pain and gaunt from the exhaustion caused by his long struggle. The pallor of his cheeks deepened as death drew nearer.

Daughters at Bedside.

In the dimly lit oxygen room the mayor's daughters bent over him, kissing him. For a moment he seemed about to speak. One of the daughters, Mrs. Richey V. Graham fainted and was carried from the room. Reviving, she burst into hysterical sobs.

Mrs. Floyd Kenlay, another daughter, leaned close to her dying father's ear. "It's Helen, dad," she said. Mrs. Frank Jirka, a third daughter, also spoke her name.

With a great effort, the mayor spoke and they stooped to catch his words. "Vivian," he whispered. It was the name of his favorite grandchild, the 15 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Graham.

Meanwhile the sons-in-law entered the room and stood in the background looking upon the man who had done so much to elevate them to the positions which they hold. With saddened faces they emerged.

Priest as Friend Visits Mayor.

The Rev. Sidney Morrison, pastor of St. Bartholomew's Roman Catholic church, came to the death bed. He was an intimate personal friend of the mayor, who was not of the Roman Catholic faith. Father Morrison laid his hand on the mayor's head, placed a crucifix over the bed and departed.

Then Vivian arrived, adding a note of youth and freshness to the tragic scene. She placed her hand on the man's head and said, "It's Vivian, granddaddy." But she had come too late. The mayor no longer could recognize even her, and in a few minutes she went away, weeping.

At about 1:30 in the morning the mayor was taken from the oxygen room and placed in the nearby room where he has spent most of his days and nights of suffering. Physicians said that it was futile to continue to supply him with oxygen.

From that time it was only a matter of waiting. At frequent intervals the death watch was punctuated by bulletins. At 2:30 the word came: "Mayor Cermak is slowly losing ground. He is now in a coma. The heart rate has increased and the pulse has become weaker."

At 4:15 a. m. another bulletin added a paragraph to the story of the mayor's last hours: "Mayor Cermak's pulse is getting weaker and his respiration shallower."

The daughters wept softly and hopelessly beside the deathbed, while the men in the room stared at the floor, seldom letting their eyes wander to the form upon the bed. Two nurses were ministering to the dying man, gently dabbing his lips with pieces of cotton. Presently his head fell to one side. Death had come gently to release him from the agony of struggle.

Daughters at Bedside.

Besides his daughters, a few relatives and friends were with the mayor when he died. His sister, Mrs. John Kallal, his brother, Joseph Cermak, and his brother's wife. Also there were James B. Bowler and William P. Haberkorn, sergeant-at-arms of the Illinois senate; County Commissioner Charles H. Weber, and Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board. Dr. Frederick Tice was the physician present at the end.

Throughout the day hundreds of telegrams, from all parts of the country, were received by relatives of the mayor. Governor David Sholtz of Florida wired to George E. Hussey of Miami, designating him as a personal representative to extend the state's condolences to the family.

CERMAK IS PRAISED AS BRAVE OFFICIAL BY NEW YORK TIMES

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—The New York Times, in an editorial today, says:

"Mayor Cermak fought death with characteristic courage, vigor, and tenacity. An innocent victim of fate at the moment when his political fortunes were highest, he has set an example of bravery and constancy to his countrymen.

"As president of the board of commissioners of Cook county he not only sponged off a big deficit but left an enduring monument of park and forest. As mayor he fruitfully promoted humane and charitable institutions.

"He was the exact opposite of the notorious personage whom he beat so soundly in a memorable campaign. He was as eager to save as the other to spend. Thompson trumpeted, neglected, wasted. Cermak buried himself in affairs at the city hall. Patiently and manfully he tried to pull Chicago out of a deep financial hole. If the iron times were cruel to his efforts, he did as much as any man could in his place. His death leaves the city not only in mourning but in perplexity as to the means of choosing his successor.

"Mr. Cermak thoroughly enjoyed his life and work. There was a quality and a gusto in him that might be commended for reproof and admonition to many high-brow reformers. Out of the rough-and-tumble this man came to power and fame. Out of the wildest scramble of spoilsmen and job-hunters he appeared as a civil service reformer. Yet he was a master of the political machine. In a confused and difficult local political situation last year he showed rare shrewdness and tact. He remains an interesting figure for the student of municipal politics."

VENO, 'DRUG KING' IN BRITAIN, FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

ALTRINCHAM, Cheshire, England, March 6.—(AP)—Sir William Veno, prominent in London and Manchester financial circles, was found shot to death on the grounds of his residence here tonight.

Sir William, who was 66 years old, was known throughout the world in connection with the cough medicine bearing his name. He founded one of the largest proprietary medicine businesses in Britain and was known as one of the wealthiest men in England. He lived in the United States for several years.

Sir William was born in Castle Douglas, Scotland, in 1866. He was made a knight in 1920 and was known as a student of social and economic questions, as well as a public speaker and world traveler. In 1925 he headed a delegation of twenty British business men to the convention of the Associated Advertising clubs in Houston, Tex. At one time he was mayor of Altrinchman, which is twelve miles from Manchester.

W-G-N REMAINS ON AIR TO FLASH CERMAK'S DEATH

Throughout the night and up to the death of Mayor Cermak yesterday morning, W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE radio station, presented frequent bulletins on the mayor's condition between numbers of a special program of semi-classical music.

When it became apparent late Sunday evening that Mayor Cermak's death was near, Quin Ryan, W-G-N manager, ordered the program continued throughout the night. The news of the mayor's death was broadcast within 30 seconds after the message had reached the editorial rooms of THE TRIBUNE. Ever since the mayor was shot in Miami several days ago, W-G-N had maintained a bulletin service telling of his condition.

Ald. John Toman, one of a group of the mayor's friends awaiting news from Miami at a telephone in the mayor's office in the city hall, said the W-G-N broadcast of his death was heard before the information was received on the phone.

W-G-N started its regular Sunday broadcast at 9 a. m. and remained on the air without interruption. When the regular Tuesday morning sign-off announcement was given this morning at 1 a. m. the station had been broadcasting continuously for forty hours.

We announce our appointment as exclusive distributors in Chicago and suburbs of the famous—

M. W. Locke SHOES

Scientifically constructed footwear, giving a maximum of foot comfort and corrective support, designed and approved by Dr. M. W. Locke of Williamsburg, Ontario, Canada.

For many years Dr. Locke has treated patients with aching, painful feet. So successful has he been that today thousands of patients come to him from the United States and Canada—rich and poor—patients with canes, crutches, and in wheeled chairs—and, in most cases, he has cured them or put them on the road to complete recovery.

The M. W. Locke shoe is an outgrowth of this tremendous experience. It is Dr. Locke's belief that many ailments of the body arise from unhealthy feet, poor circulation and weak arches. These shoes, of his design, made by our own manufacturers, give the support where it is required, permit the bones of the feet to assume their normal position and give nature the help necessary to complete cure.

It is not our policy to give medical advice on the care of the feet. Only a physician or foot specialist is competent to do so. But if you want the comfort and corrective protection of scientifically designed footwear, we suggest you see, and learn the details of, the M. W. Locke Shoe.

We will feature 22 styles, representing four lasts, Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4, as designed by Dr. Locke. They are in the season's most popular leathers.

THE NO. 1 LAST—Tay pattern. Black or brown kid blucher oxford, 1-in. heel.

THE NO. 4 LAST—Simpson pattern; black, brown or white kid perforated tie; 1⅞-in. heel.

MR. H. W. GILHOOLY, of Williamsburg, Ontario, Canada, who has fitted thousands of pairs of Dr. Locke shoes, will be here today and tomorrow for our introductory showing. He will be pleased to assist in the proper fitting of your shoes. In addition, our own staff of expert fitters will be in attendance today and at all times to see that you are fitted correctly with the last best suited to your foot.*

CHOICE OF ACTING MAYOR PUZZLES CITY'S LEADERS

4 Cermak Aids May Act Until Election.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Confusion of opinions over the filling of the vacancy caused by the death of Mayor Cermak prevailed yesterday among the politicians and city hall lawyers. The uncertainty revolved around the question of who shall run the city until a special election can be held and whether the city council is to elect a pro tem. mayor from among its own number.

The Democratic central committee is to meet this morning to take up funeral arrangements, and some informal discussion is expected over the question of a pro tem. mayor. Gov. Henry Horner and County Chairman Pat Nash are expected to be back from Washington for the meeting. The Republican ward committeemen meanwhile met yesterday afternoon at the Bismarck hotel to talk over the situation.

Council Majority Democratic.

Continuation of the Cermak policies at the city hall, Democratic leaders declared, is the main thing to be sought. Of the present aldermen, 32 out of 50 are Democrats, and the Democratic organization maintains that it will be able to control the procedure of the council, inasmuch as the holders of the big patronage offices are so far working together in the party organization.

In case the city council decides to pick an alderman as mayor pro tem, party leaders yesterday declared two conditions would have to be adhered to. First, the mayor pro tem. would have to pledge himself not to become a candidate for mayor in the special election; second, he would have to promise that he would continue the Cermak policies and interfere as little as possible with the present setup of the machinery at the city hall.

Doyle Favored in Gossip.

Ald. Thomas A. Doyle [13th] was mentioned in the city hall gossip as being favored by a considerable bloc of committeemen in case the council elects a pro tem. mayor. Others are Ald. John S. Clark [30th], head of the finance committee; Ald. James B. Bowler [25th] and Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th]. Republican aldermen spoken of are Ald. John A. Massen [48th] and Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th]. After the mayor's death Ald. Doyle was spoken of as perhaps least likely to succumb, if elected pro tem., to the temptation of trying to build up a personal organization.

The idea of an interregnum persisted among some of the Democratic chiefs. Under this plan affairs of the city would be administered until a new mayor is elected by the four cabinet members who have been running the government since the day Mayor Cermak left for Miami. They are: William Sexton, corporation counsel; M. S. Szymczak, controller; Henry Sonnenschein, the mayor's secretary, and Oscar Hewitt, commissioner of public works. They were designated by the mayor to act before he left and from his sickbed the day after he was shot he telephoned that they were to remain on the job.

Advocates of an interregnum take the position that it would cause the least disturbance in the Cermak policies. As to a mayor pro tem, there is controversy as to whether he would be clothed with powers to sign warrants and bonds.

Fear Scramble for Job.

While the Sargent citizens' committee counseled that there be a "moratorium on politics and all selfish political ambitions," there were indications under the surface of a coming scramble.

Special emergency bills applicable to the election of a successor are expected to be presented at Springfield. So far there has been no agreement as to what they shall cover.

Prevailing talk yesterday was that passage of a bill may be sought under which no primaries would be held, but the nomination of candidates would be through party conventions, with provision for independent candidacies. Politicians said a primary would open the way for a mad rush. In case conventions should nominate, the Democrats say they have several good possibilities for the ticket. In yesterday's talk, Corporation Counsel Sexton and Col. A. A. Sprague appeared to be in the lead in the sentiment expressed by committeemen.

As it stands tentatively, the Democrats seem to favor holding the special election for mayor at the time of the June judicial election.

Republicans Seek Delay.

Opposition to an immediate election of a successor to Mayor Cermak was voiced by the Republican ward committeemen. Word was sent to Springfield asking Republican legislators to oppose any emergency legislation on the subject. Resolutions adopted said Democrats have been holding conferences with a view of an early election without the appointment by the city council of a pro tem mayor.

Fourteen Republican aldermen then went into caucus to pick a Republican member of the city council to support for mayor. They got nowhere, and adjourned subject to the call of Ald. Oscar Nelson.

A meeting is to be held Saturday morning at which the Democratic central organization is expected to map out a definite program. In the afternoon the city council is expected to meet to deal with the question of a mayor pro tem.

Among those spoken of yesterday as leading potential candidates in the special election were:

ZANGARA WILL FACE DEATH IN CHAIR AS ASSASSIN OF CERMAK

Miami, Fla., March 6.—[Special.]—The Dade county grand jury today returned an indictment against Giuseppe Zangara charging first degree murder. Conviction carries the penalty of death by electrocution.

State's Attorney Vernon Hawthorne said that Zangara will be rushed to trial for the murder of Mayor Cermak who died early this morning as a result of a wound sustained on Feb. 15, when he was struck by an assassin's bullet intended for Franklin D. Roosevelt. Judge Uly O. Thompson said Zangara will be arraigned tomorrow.

Shortly after the shooting Zangara was sentenced to four terms of 20 years each for attempted assassination of the four persons, other than Mayor Cermak and Mrs. Joseph Gill, who were wounded on the night of Feb. 15.

WORLD'S FAIR STAFF MOURNS CERMAK DEATH

"Chicago's World Fair has lost one of its most powerful allies and one of its most faithful friends."

This was a universal expression at A Century of Progress from President Rufus C. Dawes down to clerical and guard forces when word reached the exposition of the death of Mayor Cermak.

Members of the exposition staff recounted the services rendered the fair by Mr. Cermak, who had often told his desire to serve as "the World's Fair mayor."

Speaking for the administrative staff of the fair, E. Ross Bartley, director of promotion, called the trip of the mayor to Europe last summer "the greatest single aid given the exposition."

"Millions in Europe learned of Chicago's approaching centennial and of the international exposition to be held in observance of it through Mayor Cermak's visit," Mr. Bartley said.

"Not alone did he render a great service to the fair, but he presented Chicago in its true light. There have been far fewer references to Chicago as gangland's center since his trip."

CUSTOMS MEN WILL ENFORCE GOLD EMBARGO

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Customs inspectors will enforce the embargo on the export of gold, the treasury announced today. All persons leaving the country through customs ports technically will be searched to determine whether they carry gold or contraband. The same regulations apply as to those entering the United States.

CITIZENS' COMMITTEE COUNCIL FOR MAYOR, IS BRITTEN'S PLAN

Washington, D. C., March 6.—Representative Fred A. Britten of Chicago, dean of Republicans in the lower house of congress, declared today that the situation was too critical in Chicago to permit a partisan political campaign to choose a successor to Mayor Cermak.

"The words Republican and Democrat should be forgotten while the very best available men and women meet from time to time for discussion and settlement of Chicago's needs," he said.

It is Mr. Britten's opinion that in case the Chicago city council elects a mayor pro tem. the citizens' committee on public expenditures, under its general chairman, Fred W. Sargent, should be designated as an advisory council to the new mayor pro tem. with the understanding that no new obligations be entered into, no unusual expenditures made, no new additional employes be appointed, and no new business of importance negotiated without first having had the approval of the committee.

Start Bankruptcy Action Against Building Owner

Involuntary bankruptcy proceedings were started yesterday in the federal court against the Schiller-Lake Shore Building corporation, owner of the 1400 Lake Shore drive building. The petition was filed by the law firm of Kamfner & Halligan on behalf of three petitioning creditors who are holders of gold notes, payment on which, they say, is in arrears. According to the petition the corporation owes $4,262,449.57 to note and bond holders.

FORGET POLITICS IN CITY'S CRISIS, SARGENT URGES

Says Election Now Would Impede Recovery.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

"The time has now come for a political moratorium in Chicago," said Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western railroad and general chairman of the citizens' committee on public expenditures, as he squared away at his desk yesterday morning to face the problems of his own business and the situation confronting his city as a result of the death of Mayor Cermak and the declaration of the bank moratorium.

There was nothing of uncertainty, apprehension, or fear in his attitude. The situation has to be met, and that is all.

"We will come out of it all right," he said with particular reference to the financial situation. "President Roosevelt has done a great and wise thing. I do not know what his legislative plans are, but his first stroke has been one to inspire confidence. We need a loosening of credit, an end of hoarding which has been forced upon the banks. Soon the people will realize that they are coming up from the bottom and will gain confidence again.

Calls for United Effort.

"As to Chicago, we must all pull together to save the city from confusion and bring it to that financial security which it is approaching. We must forget personal ambition, selfish motives, political animosities, and bring a united fornt to bear on this immediate situation. One thought alone should guide us now—the good of Chicago.

"This good demands that we should not be thrown into the turmoil, excitement and uncertainty of a political campaign at this time. We have been advised that the city council may select one of its own members to act as mayor. There are able men there ready to carry on the Cermak policies.

"We should not permit an election at this time to interfere with our plans to put the city on a sound financial basis. The world is looking to Chicago now to find a way out of the financial and tax chaos. We began to take hold of this a little earlier than the others and we are further ahead. We see the way to a reestablishment of the city's credit. Mayor Cermak was working with us. We had his pledge that he would balance the budget and not issue tax warrants above 50 per cent of the 1932 tax levy. A bond issue falls due on Jan. 1. We cannot allow the school teachers, police and firemen to go unpaid much longer. W. had this almost arranged when the bank moratorium interfered.

"A political campaign would make it harder to sell these warrants, harder to refund our bonds, and would be a bad thing for The Century of Progress. The election should be postponed as long as possible, certainly through the fair.

Committee Issues Statement.

On behalf of the committee a statement was issued, signed by Mr. Sargent as general chairman, Ernest R. Graham, chairman; D. F. Kelly, chairman of the advisory board; Robert E. Wood, Sewell Avery, Rufus C. Dawes and Charles S. Dewey, chairman of the tax warrant sales committee, as follows:

"In these times of great difficulty Chicago has suffered a major calamity in the death of its mayor. Since he took office Anton J. Cermak endeavored with all his force to bring order out of the chaotic conditions that had existed in our city.

"His efforts and those of his department heads, aided by the city council, have brought very definite and beneficial results. Aside from an increase in efficiency of the ordinary functions of government, Mayor Cermak, to meet this period of financial and economic stress, caused substantial reductions in the cost of government.

"As compared with the tax levy of 1930, the levy for 1931 is reduced on an average of 8 per cent; that of 1932 on an average of 15 per cent; and the budget that is about to be made for the current year will produce a saving in the tax levy of approximately 33 per cent. These results have been accomplished with the loyal support of Mayor Cermak's policies by the finance committee and the city council.

"Not only the best interests of the city necessitate a continuation of economies in government and efficient administration, but the public is in no mood to tolerate waste or extravagance nor the serving of personal interests.

"The policemen, firemen, school teachers, and other municipal employes must be paid. The revenue of the city must be collected, which is only possible if the citizens, believing that expense of government is being reduced and assessments are fair, pay their taxes. These were the policies of Mayor Cermak. They must be continued. There must be a moratorium on politics and all selfish political ambitions. Chicago with its Century of Progress is in the eyes of the world. Its credit is in the balance. Nothing can be permitted to count except the city's welfare."

UTAH HOUSE LAUDS CERMAK AS 'GLORIOUS PEACE TIME SOLDIER'

Salt Lake City, March 6.—(AP)—The Utah house of representatives today telegraphed its condolences to the family of the late Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago, who died in Miami, Fla., today.

The message ordered sent by vote of the body said:

"Soldiers of war literally shield their country with their bodies. Mayor Cermak, as a glorious peace time soldier, offered his body in sacrifice that our beloved President might be spared. The entire membership of the Utah house of representatives offers its condolences and grieve with you in this tremendous hour."

LOOP BUILDING COMPANY SUED FOR $1,000,000

Suits for $500,000 each were filed yesterday in the Superior court by the Walgreen company, chain druggists, and by Arthur S. Bowes, head of its real estate department, against the State-Washington Stores company, owner of the building at 32 North State street.

The plaintiffs charge that they were libeled by the charges made by a previous suit for $500,000 filed by the building company on Nov. 26, 1932, in which it was charged that the Walgreen company and Bowes were conspiring to force the building company into receivership by refusing to pay rent, and by attempting to persuade other tenants to withhold payments.

The suits filed yesterday assert that these charges are untrue, and that they injured the name, reputation, and credit of the present plaintiffs.

LEADERS OF CITY PAY TRIBUTE TO MAYOR CERMAK

Express Sorrow at Death of City's Executive.

Mayor Cermak's death brought forth a flood of tributes, not only from those who felt the passing of a personal friend, but from others who found in his life and political career an epic of the American democracy, in his political struggles the emergence of a personality that Chicago peculiarly needed, in his struggle with death a heroic drama.

Among these expressions of sorrow and estimates of the Cermak influence upon the city the following are presented as representative of a sentiment that seemed to extend throughout the city:

JAMES SIMPSON—I feel a deep personal loss in the untimely death of Mayor Cermak, and my sincere sympathy goes to his family. His death as a tragic calamity Chicago can ill afford to bear. There was no sham or hypocrisy about Mayor Cermak. He was a practical politician and proud of it. His efforts in behalf of our city were intelligent, honest, and effective. He was a leader among those in public life who both preached and practiced the doctrine of economy in government.

"His Record an Inspiration."

GEORGE W. ROSSETTER, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce—Mayor Cermak, in his unfortunate and untimely death, leaves behind him a record that should be an inspiration to those intrusted with the responsibility of carrying on the great reconstruction work for our city that he had made, the one outstanding aim of his career as our municipal leader. Undaunted by almost impossible conditions, he practically single handed not only did much to reestablish the credit of Chicago but greater still to win for our city nationally and internationally a new and more genuine respect.

BISHOP GEORGE CRAIG STEWart of the Episcopal church—Chicago has lost a capable leader in the passing of Mayor Cermak. He is an example of the conscientious official who gave everything to the upbuilding of his city. His impress upon the community will be lasting.

RUFUS C. DAWES—Anton J. Cermak was elected, as he said, as the "World's Fair Mayor," and he has fulfilled every promise of the obligation implied by that title. His helpful coöperation at all times, his keen interest in our plans and activities, his wise and sympathetic advice, his personal influence and activity as an international ambassador for A Century of Progress, have created a debt of honor which we can never repay. His memory will be cherished and his name will go down in history as Chicago's World's Fair mayor.

"Leader and Rebuilder."

COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK—Chicago will always remember with gratitude Mayor Cermak's service to the community under conditions little less than appalling. He found the credit and government of the city a mass of wreckage and he went to work with courage and good judgment to bring order out of chaos. He rallied in leading citizens to advise and help, and loyally supported them. He cut expenditures drastically, which is usually a painful and even dangerous thing for a politician to do. He stood up bravely for the good name of Chicago at home and abroad. He was a leader and rebuilder sorely needed in the city's ordeal and all Chicago grieves at his loss.

CHARLES P. MEGAN, president of the Chicago Bar association—I regard the passing of Mayor Cermak as an unqualified misfortune to the city. We had at least at the leadership of the party a good man who had crowded out the politicians; the kind of man we could go to with a proposition to put out the cheap politicians in selection of candidates for the bench.

CHIEF JUSTICE PRYSTALSKI, Criminal court—Mayor Cermak was my friend and I am grief-stricken over his death. He was a credit to the country of his birth—Bohemia—and to the country that he adopted in early youth. Can any further comment be made on his character than that when he was shot he told the next President of the United States that he was glad it was he and not Mr. Roosevelt who was a victim of the madman's bullet.

"A Sterling Patriot."

JUDGE THOMAS J. LYNCH of the Criminal court—It is too terrible to contemplate. Chicago has lost its most able political executive and the whole United States will mourn the loss of this sterling patriot.

J. F. SMIETANKA, consul general for Czechoslovakia in Chicago—Judging by the number of cablegrams that have reached this office, the Czecho-Slovak newspapers here, and Mayor Cermak in Miami, the interest in him in Czechoslovakia is tremendous. Every one, from President Masaryk, who has known him since 1918, down, is proud of him, and news of his death will cause great sorrow.

HAROLD L. ICKES, Secretary of the Interior—Mayor Cermak's loss is equivalent to the death of a great leader in battle. What he has done for Chicago its citizens will realize to a greater degree as time goes on. It took courage of a high order to set his hand as he did unfalteringly to the task of holding down outgo to income and of rescuing Chicago from the financial chaos in which he found it.

JUDGE GEORGE E. Q. JOHNSON—Mayor Cermak fitted into the office of mayor at a critical time in the history of Chicago because he brought into the office great experience in the administration of public affairs, a great political acumen, and could therefore deal with the affairs of the city in an efficient way. His death must be deeply deplored by all citizens.

"A Pretty Good Man."

CLARENCE DARROW—I am sorry to hear of the mayor's death. I think it will mean an added expense to the city and considerable confusion will result. I knew Mayor Cermak pretty well for a good many years, and I always have liked him. I'd have liked to have seen him finish out his term; on the whole he was a pretty good man.

PRESIDENT ROBERT M. KELLEY, S. J., of Loyola university—Chicago has lost a vigorous and competent administrator in Mayor Cermak.

DR. LOUIS L. MANN, rabbi of Sinai congregation—The death of Mayor Cermak is a tragedy. His many friends both here and in all parts of the United States will mourn his passing. The school teachers especially will never forget him because of his devotion to their cause and to strengthening the cause of education during his last hours.

"The Greatest Calamity."

COMMISSIONER OF POLICE JAMES P. ALLMAN—The mayor's passing is the greatest calamity that could have happened to the city of Chicago.

VICE PRESIDENT FREDERIC WOODWARD of University of Chicago—Mayor Cermak's death deprived the city of its chosen leader at a critical time. The people had hoped that he would be able to bring about important improvements in the conduct of public affairs. This obligation will now fall upon other shoulders. Let us hope they will be square and sturdy.

JOHN McKINLAY, president of Marshall Field & Co.—In the death of Mayor Cermak Chicago has lost a courageous, skillful administrator of its municipal affairs—one who was gradually bringing order and efficiency where previously chaos reigned. The city will be fortunate, indeed, if it can find a man to fill his place.

G. O. P. Body Expresses Grief.

The Republican city central committee yesterday adopted a resolution expressing grief at the death of Mayor Cermak.

"The untimely death of Mayor Cermak by an assassin's bullet, intended for the chief executive of our nation, has visited deep sorrow and distress upon this great city," states the resolution. "The entire membership of the committee is keenly sharing this great loss with Chicago's entire citizenry, and especially with the members of the mayor's family.

"The committee extends to the members of the mayor's family and to the people of Chicago their heartfelt sympathy and condolence upon their bereavement. May they find solace in his life of usefulness and achievement, and in the heavenly reward that he justly deserves."

ROOSEVELT JOINS OTHER LEADERS IN TRIBUTE TO CERMAK

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today joined with many other leaders of both parties in Washington in lamenting the death of Mayor Cermak of Chicago. The President announced his regret that he could not attend the Cermak funeral at Chicago, and said that his senior military aid, Lieut. Col. Campbell B. Hodges, would attend as his representative.

The sentiments expressed by Mr. Roosevelt and other leaders in Washington follow:

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT—It is needless to say that the news of the death of Mayor Cermak affects me very deeply and very personally. Aside from the tragic chain of events of which his death is the result, a very warm friendship and a very high respect for Mayor Cermak's ability, friendship and loyalty to his friends would have made his loss a heavy one to me under any circumstances. The brave fight he made shows clearly the wonderful courage of the man. The country at large and the great city of Chicago in particular, will miss a strong and resolute character.

GOV. HORNER—I am crushed with the loss of so loyal and devoted a friend. Chicago loses a great man whose leadership is sorely needed in this crisis, and it will be difficult to find a man to wield his mighty bow. I am leaving for Chicago immediately, having determined to give up the governors' conference here.

REPRESENTATIVE HENRY T. RAINEY—The city of Chicago and the state of Illinois have lost a great citizen and a great executive. His place will be difficult to fill.

SENATOR WILLIAM H. DIETERICH of Illinois—I join all citizens in sorrow at the loss of Mayor Cermak. I think the loss is almost irreparable at the present time. He was the only man who understood the difficult financial problems confronting Chicago and the only man big enough to cope with them.

SENATOR LEWIS CHOSEN AS WHIP OF UPPER HOUSE

Pittman Is Selected for Pro Tem. Chair.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—In Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Chicago, Illinois will have another of its sons in a position of leadership in the coming session of congress.

Senator Lewis was elected whip of the Democratic senate majority at a caucus today which also saw the election of Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas as Democratic senate leader and the adoption of a rule of party authority more stringent than has been the case for many years past.

Radicals Rebellious.

By a vote of 50 to 3, the Democratic senators agreed that the vote of any future caucus upon any measure recommended by the President should be binding upon all except those who excused themselves from voting for cause. It was further agreed that a simple majority, instead of the more customary two-thirds majority, should make the action of the caucus binding and that two-thirds of the whole number of Democratic senators should constitute a caucus.

In the adoption of the resolution the Democratic leadership of the senate met its first show of rebelliousness from within its own ranks when three of the radical wing—Senators Long of Louisiana, McGill of Kansas, and Costigan of Colorado—voted in opposition.

In addition to Senator Robinson and Senator Lewis, the caucus chose Senator Kendrick of Wyoming as assistant leader, Senator Key Pittman as Democratic candidate for president pro tempore, Edward Halsey as candidate for secretary of the senate, Chesley W. Jurney as candidate for sergeant-at-arms, and L. L. Biffle as secretary to the majority.

Has Experience as Whip.

At last week's caucus of Democratic members of the house Representative Henry T. Rainey of Illinois was nominated for the speakership, a nomination equivalent to election, since the Democrats in the house outnumber the Republicans almost two to one. In the senate the party lineup is 58 Democrats, 36 Republicans, one Farmer-Laborite, and one vacancy.

Senator Lewis was nominated for whip by Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, former incumbent, who resigned because of coming duties as next chairman of the military affairs committee. To the Illinois senator it will be a familiar post, because he was Democratic senate whip during the Wilson administration.

DISCUSS WAYS OF MAKING 3 PCT. BEER PALATABLE

Advanced methods in the art of brewing beer, which are being worked out by former brewmasters with the object of making 3 per cent beer as palatable as the old beer of from 3½ to 4¼ alcoholic content, were discussed yesterday at a reunion of the Society of Wahl Brewing Technologists held at the Hunters' club, 934 Willow street. A limitation of 3 per cent probably will be placed on brewers when beer becomes legal, it was explained.

A dozen graduates of the classes in brewing technology formerly conducted by Dr. Robert Wahl, 74 years old, at the Wahl institute, 145 North Clark street, attended the meeting. They included Edward Burke, of the institute's first class in 1891, and president of the Burke Brothers brewery.

Paul Gerhardt, architect, described a typical modern brewery as it will be built following repeal of the 18th amendment.

DEMAND MORE RELIEF, BATTLE CAPITAL POLICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Demonstrators who had been marching and yelling a moment before suddenly became innocent bystanders today as the clubs of Washington police cracked down on the heads of about 200 paraders demanding more idleness relief, and relief equality between white and colored persons.

The parade was the outgrowth of a meeting of the self-styled "United Front Committee for Unemployment Insurance and Immediate Relief." Communist agitators exhorted an audience largely composed of Negroes to demand that President Roosevelt keep his promise to remember the "forgotten man" by granting more generous relief.

Bearing banners, the paraders headed for the district building to present their demands to the District of Columbia commissioners. They immediately encountered a wall of police armed with clubs, riot guns, and tear gas. Clubs swung as the marchers advanced. One marcher carried two small children and loudly proclaimed his right to walk where he pleased. The children were seized by police matrons and the marchers arrested.

Thirty-eight persons, three of them women, were arrested and booked for parading without a permit. Half a dozen required hospital treatment for cut scalps.

While the marchers and police were battling, President Roosevelt was making known to District of Columbia authorities that he personally has no objection to the communists parading as long as they do not interfere with normal traffic and do not make their demonstrations the occasion for activities that might incite disorder.

QUIZ HUMPHRIES ON SLAYING OF UNION OFFICIAL

CRIMINAL COURT.

Walter Fetter, murder, sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Michael Feinberg.

Murray Humphries, public enemy No. 1 on the new hoodlum list, and Charles Fischetti, cousin of Al Capone, both out on bond pending their appeal of one year sentences for gun toting, were questioned at the detective bureau last night about the murder of Dennis H. Zeigler, labor official.

Both denied any knowledge of the killing. Zeigler, 57 years old, secretary of the Hoisting and Portable Engineers' union, Local 569, was shot to death on Feb. 25 near his home at 3716 North Tripp avenue. Chief of Detectives Schoemaker after questioning Humphries and Fischetti about this crime, asked them of several bombings. Getting denials all around, he ordered them locked up for the night.

The two hoodlums were arrested yesterday afternoon by Sergt. Thomas Curtin as they were entering a restaurant at 47th street and Cottage Grove avenue.

MRS. ROOSEVELT URGES 'COURAGE, COMMON SENSE'

Establishes Precedent at Press Conference.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today urged women, along with the men of the nation, to exhibit that "courage and common sense" which, she feels, the times so decisively demand.

Nor should that courage and common sense be segregated: this type for the man; that for the woman. She was very emphatic about that today at the first press conference which she, or any other presidential wife, has ever held at the White House. Wouldn't a message merely to women be a bit presumptuous, she wondered. Hadn't her husband already given a message to the American people? And aren't women a part of the people?

She thought so; therefore declined to differentiate.

Duty of Both the Same.

What she did say, however, when asked for a reaction to the present crisis, was this:

"The women's duty is exactly what the men's duty is at this time. The time requires courage and common sense on everybody's part."

That was her formal statement. She made many informal statements as she sat on a dark red velvet sofa in the red room of the White House and passed candied grapefruit around to the 35 writing women seated on the gilt chairs, squatting on the red carpet, before her.

She was sorry she couldn't receive in her upstairs sitting room; but she had just moved in, and you know what unpacking means.

She found the new home very delightful, could tell more about its particular charms after she had got better acquainted with it.

Precedents to Be Preserved.

She might slash a trivial formality by escorting her guests to the door; fundamentally she wasn't going to upset precedents.

She was holding these press conferences for three reasons: For the convenience of the Washington newspaper women whose pencils she regards as valid and important instruments of intelligence; to save her own time by concentrating all the question marks into one specific hour each week; but, most of all, for women of the nation who, she believes, have a right to know something of the mistress of the White House.

All things political she will leave to her husband. That is definitely understood.

All things social she will leave to her secretary to post up on a bulletin board for the information of the press.

Outlines Her Policy.

But those things that are both personal and, as she understands the rôle of President's wife, public, she will discuss with the reporters.

After holding the press conference Mrs. Roosevelt was luncheon hostess to the governors and their wives now in the city. This afternoon she and her daughter, Anna Dall, were guests of honor at the tea given by the Washington Newspaper Women's club. And before she went to bed Mrs. Roosevelt took Maggie, the Scottish terrier, out for a romp.

SIX NEW AIDS FOR ROOSEVELT O.K.'D BY SENATE

Prof. Moley for the State Department.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Six important aides in the Roosevelt administration were confirmed by the senate today without a word of objection.

Those confirmed are: Prof. Raymond Moley of Columbia, member of Mr. Roosevelt's "brain trust," as an assistant secretary of state.

William Phillips of Massachusetts, as undersecretary of state, who will be directly in charge and accountable to Secretary Hull.

Wilbur J. Carr of New York, reappointed an assistant secretary of state.

Henry Morgenthau Jr. of New York, member of the federal farm board.

William F. Stevenson of South Carolina, member of the federal home loan bank board.

T. Dwight Webb of Tennessee, member of the home loan board.

Other Names Later.

Missing from this list was the name of Lewis Douglas, former representative from Arizona, who has been appointed director of the budget. His name will be presented later; so will be that of Prof. Rexford G. Tugwell of New York as assistant secretary of agriculture.

Following a quorum call, to which more than 70 members responded, Vice President Garner laid the nominations before the senate.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas said: "It is essential for the senate to dispose as promptly as may be of the nominations."

McNary Serves Notice.

Senator McNary, leader of the Republican minority, agreed to immediate action, but gave notice that hereafter no other nominations may be confirmed by unanimous consent without reference to committees for study.

Immediately after the nominations were confirmed en bloc, on motion of Senator Robinson, the senate adjourned at 11:08 a. m., closing a special session into which it had convened at 12:01 p. m. Saturday.

TWO AUTOMOBILE DEATHS RAISE 1933 TOLL TO 143

There were two deaths in Chicago yesterday as the result of automobile accidents, increasing the Cook county traffic toll since the first of January to 143. The victims:

Peter Ross, 70 years old, 3172 Pine Grove avenue. Died in John B. Murphy hospital several hours after he was struck by a Yellow cab at Belmont avenue and Broadway. Richard Melody, 3228 North Clark street, the driver, was held by the Town Hall police.

William McDavitt, 50 years old, 5440 Prairie avenue, a Negro. Killed at 53d street and South Park way. The driver was arrested.

ENDS LIFE WITH GAS.

Peter A. Frimand, 63 years old, a retired real estate dealer, committed suicide yesterday by inhaling gas in the basement of his home at 316 Fourth avenue, Wilmette.

TWO COUPLES TO OBSERVE DOUBLE GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Max Teller, 4718 Ellis avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Weiscopf of Boston today will celebrate their golden wedding anniversaries. The couples were married in a double ceremony in Chicago on March 7, 1883. Mrs. Teller and Mrs. Weiscopf are double cousins, and before their marriage bore the same name of Fannie Weil. Their fathers, Moses and Marcus Weil, were brothers and their mothers were sisters. The families settled in Chicago in 1848, the brothers forming a partnership in the tanning business.

The parallel of family history continued for Mrs. Teller and Mrs. Weiscopf throughout their married life. Each of the couples have three children—two boys and a girl. The Tellers are spending their 50th anniversary with their grandchildren and children, Elmer, Morton, and Mrs. Jake Nieman, at the home of the latter in Detroit. The Weiscopfs will celebrate in their Boston home with their children, Le Roy, William, and Mrs. Helen Mayer.

NEW SECRETARY FAVORS NAVY UP TO TREATY LIMIT

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—As his first official act in his new position, Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson today advised the ranking admirals of the navy department that he favored building the fleet up to the tonnage limits permitted by the London naval treaty as rapidly as economic limitations warranted. A total of 287,000 tons of naval ships could be completed under the treaty before Dec. 31, 1936.

Arriving at the navy department at 10 o'clock, the new cabinet member immediately sent out a call for an immediate meeting of all chiefs of bureaus, the head of the navy general board, the chief of naval operations and other ranking admirals. Secretary Swanson stated frankly that he was of the opinion the fleet would have to be strengthened in view of the general world situation and the fact that so many ships were nearing the age limit.

The new naval head warned, however, that under present economic conditions it would be impossible to prosecute a building program at a rate which would make it possible to have a treaty fleet by the time the London pact expires.

BRITISH REBEL AT SEIZURE OF COWS TO HELP CHURCH

Farmers Halt Auctions; Courts to Rule.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 6.—The agrarian rebellion in Great Britain against auctions for the collection of tithe payments resulted in an order nisi today against Richard Edwards, a farmer near Wrexham, Wales, for alleged contempt of court.

The auctioneer attempted to sell Edwards' cattle last week under county court order, but no sale was possible because of disturbances created by a crowd of 1,000 farmers.

At the entrance to the farm the following notice was posted:

"God save us from these raiding priests
"Who seize our crops and steal our beasts;
Who pray, 'Give us our daily bread,'
And take it from our mouths instead."

Edwards made speeches, led the crowd in singing and disrupted the sale. He pointed to the few police present and declared he did not care if the authorities sent the army. A London bidder was advised by the auctioneer to keep quiet for his own safety.

AN ANCIENT CUSTOM.

The payment of tithes by British farmers originated hundreds of years ago. Their first form was as voluntary gifts by land owners who pledged that forever afterward their land was to give a certain amount of its yield for the support of the local parish clergyman.

This practice, in turn, can be traced to such customs of biblical times and the giving of one-tenth of every farmer's or herdsman's yield to the Hebrew priests in the days of the temple.

Once a tithe was pledged on a piece of English land, it remained always, and purchasers of the land acknowledged it as an annual charge. As time went on, it became customary for the farmer to arrange with his clergyman to pay him in money instead of wheat or other produce. In 1836 parliament made the substitution of money for produce obligatory.

Parliament Fixes Rate.

After the war the rising cost of living brought considerable hardship to the farmer and parliament stepped in in 1929 and fixed the rate once and for all, divorcing it entirely from the land. Then came the precipitous decline in the farmer's income, which again "played hob" with the tithe payments. The result has been a series of disturbances lasting nearly two years.

All over England farmers adopt somewhat the same methods of interfering with the sales of the forced collections of tithes. For instance, they allow the bidding to progress until it stops and when the auctioneer asks who made the last bid about fifteen men claim to have done so. Or some one will bid a ridiculous sum like $2,500 for a cow and when the auctioneer calls for the bidder, he will say he has only 16 cents to his name. For good measure, the auctioneer is sometimes showered with mud at the height of his "barking."

NEW GRAND JURY IS PICKED BY HAT DRAWING METHOD

The names of members of the March grand jury were drawn from a hat yesterday before Chief Justice John Prystalski in the Criminal court. The method of selecting the jurors was adopted in accordance with a recent Supreme court ruling that too little chance has governed former selections. Previously the chief justice had selected the jury from an alphabetical list of veniremen. Jasper N. Tankersley, 5660 Blackstone avenue, western manager of the Macmillian Publishing company, whose name was the first to be drawn, was appointed foreman.

MIXED MILITARY AND CIVIL RULE SET UP IN GREECE

General Heads Cabinet in Crisis.

ATHENS, March 6.—(AP)—A crisis in the Greek government resulting from yesterday's general election and the establishment of a military government was solved, at least temporarily, by the appointment tonight of a mixed administrative cabinet under the leadership of Gen. Othonaios.

Members of the supreme military council and civilians composed the group. This arrangement was decided upon during a conference by President Zaimis, the veteran Premier Venizelos, and former Premier Tsaldaris, whose party won a slight majority in the election.

General Hands Over Power.

The cabinet has the sanction of Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, head of the 1922-'24 revolutionary government, who earlier today announced the establishment of a military government "to avoid the possibility of disorder." Gen. Plastiras handed his power over to the new cabinet, which will function until a successor convenes.

Gen. Othonaios in 1922 acted as president of the Greek revolutionary commission which tried and executed five cabinet ministers. Since then he has taken a leading rôle in affairs of the nation, particularly those involving the dynasty question.

Gen. Plastiras, who was driven into exile in 1924, in proclaiming a military government, had said that the slight majority won by Tsaldaris would not permit the establishment of a stable government. He promised tranquillity, economic reconstruction, and social consolidation.

Venizelos' cabinet resigned at midday and it was even reported that President Zaimis might resign.

CAPTURED BY SOLDIERS.

Gen. Plastiras, who handed over his power to the mixed administrative cabinet, was a leader in the revolution of 1922. In October, 1925, when Premier Pangalos ordered his arrest, Plastiras hid in a friend's house. Troops with machine guns surrounded the residence. He attempted to escape, but was cornered. He threatened the guards who captured him and death "to those governing Greece."

The general was deported on a destroyer to Italy. A year later he was arrested on Jugo-Slavian soil and interned in Belgrade because he was a political refugee and could not be returned to Greece.

PARAGUAY URGED TO DECLARE WAR IN CHAMBER VOTE

ASUNCION, Paraguay, March 6.—(AP)—The chamber of deputies tonight unanimously approved a formal declaration of war against Bolivia in the Gran Chaco border warfare. The senate previously had given its assent to the proposal.

For months Bolivia and Paraguay have fought over the Gran Chaco, with many casualties on both sides.

The administration of President Ayala was by the legislative action authorized to declare war when it deems such a move feasible.

DIES AS RESULT OF FALL.

OUST WHEELOCK AS TRUSTEE OF INSULL TRUST

U. S. Judge Upholds Ettelson; Raps Lawyers.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday voided the election of Attorney W. W. Wheelock as trustee of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., the $250,000,000 investment trust created by Samuel Insull in 1928 and now bankrupt.

The judge's decision marked another victory of Samuel A. Ettelson, former corporation counsel, who first blocked the confirmation of Calvin Fentress as trustee and then objected to Mr. Wheelock. Another election will be called for today before Garfield Charles, referee in bankruptcy, at which, pursuant to the judge's order, counsel for various Insull protective committees will refrain from suggesting candidates.

Judge Silences Lawyers.

If the assembled Insull creditors are unable to agree on a nominee without help of counsel the judge ordered that a trustee be appointed by the referee. This is the action which Ettelson has been advocating since he entered the case as counsel for his wife.

In his findings Judge Wilkerson referred specifically to the Insull Debenture Holders' Committee of One Thousand, whose vote in behalf of holders of $3,216,000 out of $3,396,000 in claims at previous elections resulted in election first of Mr. Fentress and later Mr. Wheelock. This committee is represented by Attorneys Harold F. White and Lewis F. Jacobson, whose powers of attorney the judge instructed the referee to disregard.

Referring to the creditors' meeting at which Mr. Wheelock was elected, Judge Wilkerson declared that "said meeting was under the domination and control of attorneys for a group representing claims obtained by advertisements and letters sent out by a committee of creditors, which described itself as the 'Insull debenture holders' protective committee of 1,000.'"

Finds Conflicting Interests.

After pointing out that the principal asset of the bankrupt company lies in claims the creditors already have filed against the banks, Judge Wilkerson ruled that there was "a clear conflict of interest between attorneys for the debenture holders' committee and the trustee in bankruptcy, who must represent impartially the rights of all creditors."

"This conflict," the judge held, "is of such a character as to prevent the use in the election of a trustee of the powers of attorney obtained in the manner thus stated. The method resorted to in obtaining deposits of claims in other respects transcends the limits of what is legally and professionally permissible in such cases."

With reference to professional conduct, the judge laid particular stress on the fact that one of the protective committees had advised the Insull investors that their "only hope of recovery lay in depositing their claims with that committee." The judge had pointed out at a hearing prior to his ruling that the law recognizes all investors equally.

JUDGES NAME GREEN ACTING U. S. ATTORNEY

Judges James H. Wilkerson, John P. Barnes, and Charles E. Woodward of the United States District court yesterday appointed District Attorney Dwight H. Green to continue in office until his post is filled by appointment of President Roosevelt. Mr. Green was made district attorney by President Hoover in a recess appointment, but the senate failed to confirm the appointment.

Balloon Soars Six Miles; Mercury 74 Below Zero

WARSAW, Poland, March 6.—(AP)—The Polish military balloon Polonia, which participated in the 1932 Gordon Bennett cup race, was reported today to have reached an altitude of 32,808 feet. At that height the temperature was 74 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. One of the crew of two officers suffered frostbite.

REST OF WORLD IGNORES BRITISH ARMS EMBARGO

London to Take Up Issue at Geneva.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 6.—Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, told the house of commons today that no other nation has followed Great Britain's lead in imposing an arms embargo against China and Japan and that "this leaves Britain in a situation which cannot be allowed to continue."

"This is one of the first issues that Prime Minister MacDonald and I will take up this week at the world disarmament conference," he said.

Maps Course of Action.

Prior to the meeting of parliament, the cabinet met in special session. A communique said that the government would decide on a course of action at the arms conference and that the present financial stagnation in the United States would not be discussed. It was further stated that MacDonald and the foreign secretary will make a desperate effort to save the arms conference from a complete breakdown.

The situation in the United States affects the disarmament situation in so far as it had been hoped that Britain would have the active support of the Washington administration. It is feared now, in the light of President Roosevelt's declaration that internal affairs must be dealt with first, that no instructions will be sent.

War Debts Problem Delayed.

It is also realized here that the question of war debts must go by the boards for some weeks, as the United States has much more pressing problems to grapple with now.

George Lansbury, leader of the Labor party opposition, asked MacDonald if he would make a statement on the British policy with regard to debts and whether the British government proposed to take any action concerning the financial crisis in the United States.

The prime minister replied that the situation is too uncertain to make any statement on debts and that "while the British government is following sympathetically the troubles in the United States no action seems to be called for." It is conceded here that the debts conference will be delayed for some time.

John A. Farwell Ordered to Increase His Alimony

The Appellate court yesterday ordered John Arthur Farwell, sportsman and member of a pioneer Chicago family, to increase his alimony payments to Mrs. Loretta R. Farwell, 163 East Walton place, from $150 to $350 a month. The opinion confirmed a previous ruling to that effect by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude.

MANY REPORTED SLAIN AS FIGHTING RAGES IN JEHOL

Chinese Form Lines for "Last Stand."

PEIPING, China, March 6.—(AP)—China's defeated army, driven back from Jehol City, has formed a defense line against a possible invasion of China proper and will make its last stand 20 miles south of Koupeikow, Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang's headquarters said today.

The town of Koupeikow guards a gate through the Great Wall 65 miles northeast of here and 50 miles south of Jehol City.

Fighting still continues in the province of Jehol, the Chinese reported. There was an engagement at Hsifengkow pass, 45 miles southeast of Jehol City, and another at the town of Weichang, near Chihfeng. Japanese headquarters said a force of 700 Chinese was wiped out in the latter engagement. The Japanese put their own casualties at 10 dead and 29 wounded.

Hunt Vanished Governor.

Marshal Chang's headquarters had word this morning that Gen. Tang Yu-lin, governor of Jehol, had been seen near Koupeikow. A detachment of troops was sent there to arrest him on a charge of desertion, but he had gone when they arrived.

The conquest of Jehol puts the Japanese within seventy miles of Peiping by good motor highway, neutral military observers pointed out tonight.

Possession of the conquered province gives Japan command of the Khingan mountains, both north and south, as a defense against a possible thrust from Russia, and also removes the risk of a flank movement through Jehol into the Mukden plain. Now Japan can penetrate inner Mongolia from Jehol through the neighboring province of Chahar.

Fear Further Invasion.

Simultaneously the loss of Jehol has deprived the Chinese of a base of supplies and reinforcements for the irregular warfare in Manchuria.

Having at last gained possession of the passes into Chihli plain, the Japanese now are in a favorable position to descend on north China at will. The invasion of Jehol has revived among Chinese here the fear that the Japanese may advance to the Yellow river when the occasion offers.

MANIAC KILLS TWO, WOUNDS 10 IN STREET OF CLEVELAND, OHIO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., March 6.—[Special.] Three men were killed, ten wounded here today as Herman Klink, 29, a maniac, spread death with an automatic rifle. He killed Louis Kelley, a tailor and Roy Kneale, a street car inspector. Klink was slain by a fusilade of police bullets.

The wounded are: Patrolman Herman Pahler, Robert Slonager, Albert Marquis, Joe Sapko, Arthur Maribuher, Gilbert Dodd, George Mikula, Verl McGinty, William Wengats and Alexander Dorko. Sapko was reported to be dying, while Pahler and Marquis also were seriously wounded.

Kelley was the madman's first victim. As the tailor came out of his house after lunch he was shot down without warning. Residents rushed to the street at the sound of the shot. They were greeted by lead from Klink's rifle.

Klink shot Kneale as he stepped from a street car. By this time police squads were racing from all directions and the madman finally fell, with ten bullets in his body.

It was learned later that Klink had brooded over the belief the U. S. was persecuting him for not paying an income tax when he had no money.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 84; recovered, 77; stripped, 22 [from police records for twenty-four hours ending at midnight Sunday].

Court cases—John Tolman, Edward Haisman, and Roy Gallas held to the grand jury for auto larceny by Judge John Gutknecht.

16,947 VISIT FAIR GROUNDS SUNDAY; 2D BEST RECORD

More persons paid admission to A Century of Progress exposition grounds last Sunday than have been recorded on any day, with one exception, since fair preparations began, totaling 16,947, officials of the fair said yesterday. Construction of buildings and installation of exhibits will proceed according to schedule despite the national bank holiday, Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the exposition, said. "We are confident we shall be able to follow our regular program without serious interruptions," he said.

Luckies Please!

Monte Carlo, Monaco

In every corner of the world, both here and overseas, wherever you find joy in life, 'tis always "Luckies Please"

Character and mildness... the Lucky combination

Wherever you find joy in life... there you find Lucky Strike. For Luckies offer you Character—tempting flavor and the full, smooth quality of the finest tobaccos—the "Cream of the Crop".

But that's not enough. A cigarette should be mild. And so these fine tobaccos are subjected to the famous "Toasting" process. It is "Toasting" that makes Luckies mild—just as surely as fine tobaccos give Luckies character. And for these two reasons—character and mildness—"Luckies Please!"

because "It's toasted"

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

ANTON CERMAK.

Anton Cermak was chosen mayor at a critical moment of the city's affairs, assuming responsibilities and facing problems more difficult than any in the city's annals. A regime of unprecedented recklessness and almost unequaled corruption had left municipal finance and administration in a state of demoralization, funds exhausted, credit destroyed. Mayor Cermak took up what seemed an almost hopeless task of rehabilitation with courage and vigor. His choice of key men in his cabinet was of first rate material, notably Frank Busch for corporation counsel and A. A. Sprague for commissioner of public works, James P. Allman for police commissioner. When Mr. Busch retired another excellent choice was made, William H. Sexton, and upon Mr. Sprague's resignation, Oscar Hewitt. At the same time he invited leading citizens into his counsels and gave them his coöperation and support. The work of rehabilitating the credit of the city and of the school board has been one of the most arduous and difficult in any city's history, and it is far from accomplished, but it could not even have started without Mayor Cermak's loyal support and assistance. Contrasting the deplorable situation of government when he took office with the progress made since, gives a measure of honorable accomplishment which places his mayoralty high in the annals of the city. With unshaken faith in the city, its vitality and its destiny, Mayor Cermak worked ceaselessly to restore its institutions, its civic health, its good name.

For this service Anton Cermak will always be cherished in the memory of our community.

To the larger community of his fellow countrymen the life, personality and career of Anton Cermak have a wider significance. Coming as a boy from an alien land, he entered fully into the spirit of American life. Without money or friends or any worldly advantages, save the sturdy qualities of his ancestry, qualities manifested finally in his heroic fight for life, he struggled upward to the high place he occupied when his career was brought to a tragic close. His achievement was of a piece with American life, its large opportunity, its inspiration to effort and ambition. It presents a design familiar in American history, in the rise of American leaders throughout our nation's story from the farm and the cabin of the humble worker to places of eminence and responsibility. It is another reminder that Americanism is not a matter of derivation, is not the monopoly of the first comers, but is a development of American life for all who will enter into its inspiration and its opportunity.

A SNARE SET FOR MR. ROOSEVELT.

Senator Norris, having supported the Democratic party in the campaign, is now at work organizing a "progressive" opposition. He has the support of the lesser La Follette among the so-called Republicans and of Costigan of Colorado among the Democrats. A half dozen others among the wild jackass group will probably be corralled before long, though Borah, for the moment at least, is stand-offish.

It is profoundly to be hoped that the new President will not be taken in tow by this group as Mr. Hoover was at the start of his administration. To placate the so-called progressives Mr. Hoover succeeded in stultifying himself and his party, but as if that were not a price high enough to pay for support, Mr. Hoover soon found that the wild jackasses were still jackasses and still wild. All he had succeeded in doing was to alienate the regulars in his party without gaining the support of the men whose favor he had sought. It was humiliating; it restricted Mr. Hoover's usefulness to his country and it was fatal to his political future. Congress was out of hand in a time of crisis when, above all else, the President required its cooperation if he was to succeed in his task of rescue.

Mr. Roosevelt is confronted by much the same situation today. If he yields to the temptation to woo and win the members of the progressive bloc, more accurately described as assistant communists, he will find that in short order they will jilt him as they will jilt any responsible leader.

ANOTHER RACKET FOR HUEY.

The reported capture of the once respected Rivers and Harbors congress by Huey Long, if verified, will dispose of that body's influence in the nation. As a Washington dispatch points out, the congress under Long's control will not be interested in the valley or the country but only the ostensible interests of Long's political bailiwick. In fact, it will only be concerned with Long's advantage.

As a lobby for pork for Long it will deserve no consideration from congress. The broad interests of the valley, including the real interests of Louisiana, must be protected and advanced by other agencies. The old association, now nothing but a Long racket, will go into the discard as a respectable influence.

THE PRESIDENT ACTS.

The President has acted with admirable promptness. He has seen the immediate situation truly and has taken emergency measures required to meet it. But now, as always, the final responsibility rests upon the American people. If, as we have every reason to believe, they will meet the crisis in the spirit in which the President has met it, there will be a minimum of disruption of industry and commerce. If the people yield to fear the resumption of normal business conditions may be needlessly delayed.

A frightened man can be counted upon to do one of two foolish things. Either he will thrash about in a panic of activity or he will run and hide. Translated into the terms of the present crisis, that means that the coward will either attempt to hoard money or supplies or both or will lapse into a complete funk, refusing to believe that the present difficulties will lift within a few days. Both procedures can only result in a prolongation of the present troubles. What is needed above all else is the calm assumption on the part of the American people that the crisis is temporary and that the proper course of conduct is the normal course. Normal buying, normal credit extensions and normal confidence in the future will do a maximum of immediate good. Conduct born of fear can only hamper the President, the treasury, and the banks in their task of restoration.

The firmness which has been displayed in Washington is most reassuring. If Mr. Roosevelt had not issued his decree suspending specie payment and placing an embargo on gold there would have been something to worry about. The fact that he acted without shilly-shallying indicates as plainly as anything can that he knows what it is all about and is not afraid to take drastic action for the protection of the people of the United States. If either measure had not been adopted the result might have been such a drain on the country's gold stock as would have made the task of reorganization infinitely more difficult. As it is, we have an immense stock of gold and we have it where we want it, in the vaults of the treasury and the federal reserve banks, where it can serve the needs of the whole nation rather than of a few frightened individuals.

The confidence which the President engendered with his decree was reinforced by his summoning of congress to meet before the week is out. This provides a measure of Mr. Roosevelt's political astuteness. He is not afraid that congress will get out of hand. He knows that a new congress, meeting in the midst of a crisis, must accept his leadership, not only because a congress containing so many new faces must be without its own leaders for a time but also and more especially because public opinion now will force congress to do promptly what it might dawdle with for months under less trying conditions. This is the golden moment to slash expenditures and place the treasury in an impregnable position. There is no doubt that congress will follow the President and, on the basis of his exemplary management of affairs thus far, no doubt that congress should follow him unhesitatingly.

RESPONSIBILITY OF PARTY LEADERSHIP.

The tragic death of Mayor Cermak imposes upon the leadership of the Democratic party in Chicago the heavy responsibility of selecting a fit man to succeed him. The affairs of the municipality, though improved and under way toward more improvement, are still in a critical state. It is of great moment to the community that the man chosen by the council to be mayor pro tem. and the candidate or candidates presented to the people for mayor at the special election shall be men of unimpeachable character and devotion to the city's welfare.

If there could be a coalition for some citizen of the highest qualification it would give assurance to the public and simplify the problem in keeping with the present emergency, which ought to put partisan self-interest on the shelf until the city's acute difficulties are removed. But if this is impracticable, the leadership of both parties should realize that they are on trial, that the citizenship demand paramount consideration of the city's welfare in the choice of candidates, and this responsibility lies upon the Republican organization as well as upon the Democratic, if party honor and the respect of the community are to be considered. If there are to be two candidates the voters should be given the opportunity of choosing between two men of the first quality. At no time in the life of Chicago has there been greater need of a mayor who can be relied upon to insure economy and carry on reconstructive work to its conclusion and who will lay firmly the foundations of honest and competent government. It is an inspiring task for the right man and the right man must be found and put to the task.

Editorial of the Day

TALE OF TWO CASES.

[Los Angeles Times.]

A youth born in Russia, thence carried to China by his parents, finds his way to America and enrolls as a student at the Trojan university. Somebody discovers that his visa has run out and machinery is set in motion to deport him.

Deport him where?

Russia does not own him—he is not a communist. China is not his native land. He comes to the president of his university, "a man without a country." Every avenue of help is exhausted, but the authorities are obdurate. Law is law! And rightly so!

He slips over into Mexico. The sister republic receives him. Soon he is told that the Mexican quota for entry into the United States is not filled. He may enter. "How soon?" "In sixty minutes, if he will!" He wills and has fifty-nine minutes to his credit!

Now he is back at his studies again and has taken out his first papers of citizenship. His love for America shames many bred and born.

Another case in hand! A local attorney is invited to speak at a gathering. In the course of his address he is questioned and heckled. To his surprise he finds he is in a communist center. He tells them the way to settle their grievances is at the ballot box. They yell, "To h— with the ballot box! We want revolution!"

There seems to be something awry when inoffensive actors and earnest students are deported while alien radicals rage for revolution.

"RUSSIA ARRESTS 70 on Charge of Plotting Famine."—Headline. The Reds are getting into their stride. By next winter they'll probably put two or three hundred comrades against a stone wall for conspiring to cause a blizzard, and if there's ever an earthquake in Russia it will be just too bad. About two thousand kulaks will be thrown into the hoosegow for having grabbed the earth with their bare hands and rocked it to and fro just for devilment. It is also understood from Moscow that the secret police are close on the tracks of the foul fiends who caused the last eclipse of the sun.

NORTH EXPOSURE.

The wind was blowing from the north today.
I did not wish to open wide the door.
I only noticed when she walked away
That she was very old and very gray.

I did not need the needles that she sold,
And so I shook my head and closed the door.
I wish she had not been so thin . . . and old . . .
I wish the north wind had not blown so cold.

We went right into the nearest store and bought a half dollar's worth of salted peanuts and cigarets.

ENGLAND IS—STILL ENGLAND . . .

Up from the long illness, Dick, confronted by a pyramidal tower of neglected events, the most important headline being, "England Does Not Default." Odd: how close (so I was thinking) that headline drew the imperial austerity of No. 10 Downing street, London, to the aching corridors of the Veterans' hospital out at Hines! For suddenly I was recalling how, years ago, the ununderstandable brother, doyen of Ward C, there in the pallor of a winter's day that seemed alien to time itself (for most of those in Ward C had long since given up such unnecessary things as the measurement of time) told me how, during a walk down through a sweet silence that had come upon the old Roman road near to Pozieres in Picardy, he had read these lines carved crudely on a rough-hewn cross:

You are from England? Then how is England still?
England is still England, thanks to you who died upon this hill.

Months later I was to stand beneath the whimpering trees in that vast stretch of consecrated silence bordered by Belmont avenue and the River road and watch a mother give back to Mother Earth that which England had once given her, and which in turn she was returning in a rather frayed A. E. F. tunic. And now I know why the trees suddenly ceased their whimpering, for phalanx after phalanx of the immortals who ever have kept England still England were thundering out of the September gray to watch a small bit of American soil become forever a precious part of their England—the long-bow men from Crecy, their Lincoln green still sodden from that far-away passage of the Somme; now the Black Prince and his ruddy-faced levies whose tautened yews played such a terrible dirge for continental knighthood at Poictiers; Henry of Monmouth and men of the West Counties fresh from the glories of Agincourt; Cavendish and men of Devon coming down the Thames under sails of damask and cloth of gold—and, pressing close upon them, the Old Contemptibles who willingly found journey's end in all that Mons and Ypres and Vimy Ridge imply. . . .

Still England . . .

Soon a tardy May will bring back the blue campanella, the purple scabious, and the orchid to the Downs and the undulating witchery of the ancient Malvern Hills: an eternal beauty now deep in winter's respite, but stirring in its eagerness to catch the magic of its own reflection in an old tin hat, once deeply mudded down, now burnished like unto the noon-day sun. And who is there to say that the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles shall ever shine so brightly or give back such an eternal reflection?

THAT FELLA DOWN IN STREATOR.

AND ONLY YESTERDAY when we were looking at a flat with an eye to moving May 1 the landlord asked suspicious like: "Any children?" "No," says we sadly. "But that dog," said the landlord, pointing to the hound. "I don't rent flats to people with dogs." "Oh," said we laughingly, "you don't now, but we are in great hopes that before long you will rent us a flat even if we have children by that time, two police dogs and a Great Dane, three billy goats, two mountain lions and a flock of ducks for the bathroom." He scowled and made no answer. We shall see. Meantime, if the owner of the flat you are looking at says children not allowed you are perfectly safe in giving him a loud and raucous laugh.

How to Keep Well By Dr. W. A. Evans

TOBACCO AND BUERGER'S DISEASE.

It is well known that men with Buerger's disease should discontinue the use of tobacco. Physicians disagree as to other methods of treatment of this disease, but they are in accord that tobacco is harmful and must not be used in any form.

Buerger's disease is a disorder in which the legs cramp and give under a man. The cramp generally comes on during walking and other uses of the leg, being in contrast to the cramps which so frequently trouble old persons at night. The trouble may progress to the point where it causes gangrene, and amputation is not infrequently necessary.

It is caused by a chronic inflammation and thickening of the walls of the blood vessels of the leg, accompanied at times with some formation of clots. In many cases there is spasm of the muscles of the vessel walls. Physicians have ways of testing the circulation in a case of this disease to determine how much of the trouble is due to spasmodic contraction of the blood vessels and how much of the obstruction is due to thickening of the walls from inflammation and clotting.

The physicians in attendance choose between cutting certain nerve roots, alternating hot and cold leg baths, alternating raising and lowering of the legs, application of radiant heat and other forms of heat, and protection against exposure to cold. As has been said, they all agree as to the need of quitting tobacco. Some physicians go so far as to advise everybody with any sort of leg cramps to discontinue the use of tobacco.

Drs. Harkavy, Hebald, and Siebert undertook to find the reason for the harmfulness of the tobacco habit in this disorder. They found that 83 per cent of a large number of cases of Buerger's disease were sensitive to tobacco, as shown by skin tests. Using as a control a group of 102 habitual smokers without cramps, they found that only 10 per cent were sensitive to tobacco as shown by the skin test.

The various skin tests were made with tobacco teas in which specimens of Burley, Maryland, Virginia, and Turkish tobaccos were used. All acted alike. There is no reason for thinking a man who used a Maryland tobacco could switch to a Louisiana Perique or a Wisconsin leaf and continue his habit with impunity. These scientists came to the conclusion that there was some similarity, or even relationship, between hay fever, nettle-rash, asthma, and Buerger's disease. There is a large element of allergy in all of them, including the last on the list.

It seems probable that most of the cases of all these diseases develop from a single group of persons—those with a tendency to such disorders as hay fever and asthma. Some of the cases of Buerger's also have hay fever.

LONG DISTANCE GUESS.

Mrs. T. L. P. writes: My husband works in the oil field and our only means of fuel for heat and cooking is natural gas. At times there is quite a lot of sulphur and a terrible odor is prevalent. Will the fumes from this gas injure our nasal passages? We have had sinus trouble as an after-effect of the flu.

REPLY.

If there is any harmful effect it is probably constitutional rather than local to your nose. The effect of smelly gases is usually psychic. The probability is that the gas inhaled is not responsible for the trouble. The dilution is great and the amount inhaled is small. That is a long distance and loose guess. If you are of a different opinion ask for an investigation by your state health department.

ALKALINE SYSTEM.

P. S. writes: 1. My system is alkaline and should be more acid. What should I eat?

2. Are oranges, tangerines, and grapefruit acid or alkaline?

REPLY.

1. Assuming that you are right, eat both lean and fat meat, butter and other oils, cereals and breads.

2. They cause an alkaline ash. When eaten they are acid.

ATROPIC RHINITIS.

B. S. writes: 1. What is atropic rhinitis?

2. Can it be cured?

REPLY.

1. Another name is ozena.

2. Some say it can be. Nobody says it is easily cured.

WARNINGS IGNORED.

Chicago, March 2.—[Friend of the People.]—The building at No. 817 on our street has been reported to the city hall and the inspector notified, but so far no action has been taken. It isn't safe for people who live close by. The neighbors have difficulty in renting their flats because of this unsafe and unsightly structure. B. Z.

This building has been under our observation for some time. The owner having failed to comply with our notices to put this building in good and safe condition, the matter was placed in the law department for prosecution. The owner now agrees to repair and make building safe. We will continue to give this the proper attention and enforce the ordinances.

JOHN E. ERICSSON,
Deputy, Department of Buildings.

PROPERTY TRANSFER.

Chicago, March 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a cottage clear of debt and, being a widower advanced in years, I would like to have it transferred to my children. There are four of them, two boys and two girls. 1. Can I deed this property to the four collectively or [2] only to one? 3. Can a notary public draw up the papers for the house and some personal property or [4] is it necessary to employ a lawyer? B. F.

1. Yes, but the deed should be delivered so as to become effective during your lifetime. If you wish the transaction to become effective only on your death you should handle the matter by will.

2. See No. 1.

3. Depends on the notary.

4. There is no statute requiring the employing of an attorney on such employment, though ordinarily it is wise to secure expert advice.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TERMS DEFINED.

Chicago, March. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please tell me the difference between [1] capital punishment and [2] corporal punishment. Also, what constitutes a [3] felony and a [4] misdemeanor? W. R. V.

1. This means the death penalty.

2. This means merely a punishment inflicted on the body, such as a flogging.

3. A crime punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary.

4. Infractions of law punishable by smaller fines or imprisonment.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 7, 1917.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The fight for a cloture rule in the senate which would prevent future filibusters like the one that killed the armed neutrality bill got under way. Modification of the senate rules as urged by President Wilson virtually was agreed on last night by a conference committee of senators, five Republicans and five Democrats, named by party caucuses earlier in the day. The change proposed would put the power in the hands of two-thirds of the senators present at any time to shut off debate and prevent dilatory tactics. The committee will meet again today, probably before the senate convenes at noon, and is expected to reach a final agreement on a resolution embodying the cloture proposal.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — President Wilson's decision whether or not to arm, convoy or otherwise protect American ships from German submarines is still hanging fire. Attorney General Gregory continued his examination of the statutes—particularly the piracy act of 1819—seeking to determine finally whether Mr. Wilson may arm ships legally. Though in an offhand opinion, given several days ago, Mr. Gregory told the President the power was his, the attorney general has not yet submitted his formal ruling.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Austria's reply to the American request for a clearer definition of her attitude in the submarine situation was stated officially here today to leave the door open for further negotiations, delaying temporarily at least the break which has been regarded as inevitable since the severance of relations between the United States and Germany. Although in substance the long communication upholds and defends the unrestricted warfare waged by Germany, it is couched in most friendly terms and points out that "Austrian submarines solely are operating in the Adriatic and the Mediterranean, and therefore an encroachment on American interests hardly is to be feared."

WAR SUMMARY. — Paris reports that all enemy attacks in the Verdun sector were repulsed and the French grip on reconquered positions in this sector was unshaken. London reports further progress northwest of Ires. Berlin reports the repulse of British attacks on the right bank of the Somme. Petrograd reports the pursuit of the Turks withdrawing from Bijar in the Caucasus. The Moslems appear to be withdrawing all along the line. Resumption of violent fighting on the Italian front is reported from both Rome and Vienna. Each side claims victories at various points. No report of ships sunk by German submarines was received during the day.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Wilson nominated Hunter Liggett, now a brigadier general in the army, as a major general to take the place made vacant by the recent death of Maj. Gen. Frederick Funston. Col. Francis J. Kernan of the Twenty-eighth infantry was advanced to the grade of brigadier general.

CHICAGO.—Five hundred aliens, a record number for the Superior court, took out their first papers at the weekly session of the naturalization clerk. Groups sponsored by the Polish National alliance and the immigration department of the Y. M. C. A. were sworn in a body.

HENRY TAKES ON A COUPLE OF TRAILERS

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

A PROMISING PLAN.

Chicago, March 5.—There is a danger that under the prescribed restrictions hoarding will continue. I propose the following plan:

Any depositor should be entitled to receive, not later than in a month's time, an equal amount of his frozen deposit, if he deposits a sum in cash into his bank on or before March 15. In other words, if I deposit $500 in cash now, I shall be entitled to draw an equal amount from my frozen deposit, or $1,000 in all. In this case I would get a certified check or a similar scrip repayable in cash [for $1,000 or in smaller danominations—free of tax?] in a month's time. There may be a limit set for such transactions; e. g., to the amount of $1,000 for each depositor, and preference given to their repayment. Such scrip will naturally get universal acceptance almost as cash.

This arrangement will help the banks to liquefy their assets in the meantime and will stimulate return of the hoarded cash. A governmental action should supervise and guarantee this arrangement. At any rate, there is no danger in trying such a system.

A SMALL INVESTOR.

TO STRENGTHEN THE BANKS.

Chicago, March 4.—Let me suggest that when new banks are organized it be under laws clearly and effectually establishing the liability of the stockholder.

When one subscribes for $100 of the capital stock of a new bank compel him to put up with his cash subscription of $100 a share an equivalent amount of federal or good state bonds. These bonds would be held in escrow by state or federal authorities. The stockholder could realize on the interest coupons, but he could not withdraw the bonds. Nor could he dispose of the stock until the purchaser had put in escrow a like amount of bonds. Thus there would be no necessity for suits against stockholders in failed banks. The deposited bonds would automatically protect depositors. Think of what this protection of depositors would have meant during the last three years.

W. K. MCKAY.

THE REBUILDER.

Chicago, March 4.—Nehemiah is known as "The Builder." He is famous for having restored strength to the walls of Jerusalem, but, while he was considerate of his people's prestige and security among foreign powers, he was concerned even more about the canker worm which served to undermine national unity: He condemned class oppression. His manner of contending with it was perhaps the model for our former champion, "T. R."—Roosevelt's swinging of the w. k. "big stick."

At his inauguration our new champion, President F. D. Roosevelt, recorded plans of procedure that teem with the character of fundamental principles employed by Nehemiah. Mr. President, I respectfully submit for your guidance the example for true leadership of "The Builder," who proved himself a real champion at leading his people out of a predicament quite identical in several ways to ours at this time.

GEORGE P. NITZ.

A WOMAN IN THE CABINET.

Oak Park, Ill., March 2.—Just in case he didn't see it, won't you please reprint Gaar Williams' excellent cartoon which appeared on the editorial page of THE TRIBUNE a few spaces below "Constant Reader's" letter regarding a woman in the cabinet?

Strange, isn't it, how some of these apparently already overburdened human beings feel the duty of censuring the President's selection of cabinet members. Strange, too, that a mere man should object to Mr. Roosevelt's appointment of a woman of such exceptionally broad experience in labor and social welfare activities as secretary of labor.

"Constant Reader" must be a mid-Victorian bachelor. He needs to be enlightened. The Almighty didn't endow men with a monopoly on brains and ability.

As for Mr. Roosevelt's wife "putting in her oar," say listen, "Constant Reader," don't you know even Solomon frequently took his wives' advice? And as for the suggestion that two labor heads be appointed . . . tut, tut, man, you ought to run for congress if you don't think taxes are high enough now. E. C. N.

THE LENDER'S DIFFICULTIES.

Brookfield, Mo., Feb. 25.—Will the farm mortgage moratorium so widely advocated be general or applied only to mortgages held by the wealthy insurance companies and real estate dealers?

There are many farm mortgages held by the original owners of the land as security for the unpaid balance of the selling price.

This is usually the only resource of the farmer who retired, perhaps tempted by the high price at one time prevailing, but more likely because he was unable to carry on with farm labor almost unattainable and only at a prohibitive wage.

If his income from this source is stopped by the moratorium what will he do?

Land and loan companies—in this state, at least—induced wage earners to invest their savings in shares in loans on farm lands in the era of high prices. Now these same wage earners are in the ranks of the unemployed, needing their money—their hard earned savings—as badly as the farmers to whom it was loaned. Must they stand in the breadline, getting neither principal nor interest? MARY CORNEY.

Abbey Troupe Gives Sober Murray Play

"Autumn Fire" Gives Actors Emotional Roles.

"AUTUMN FIRE."

A drama by T. C. Murray, given by the Abbey Theater company of Dublin in the Harris theater March 6, 1933.

THE CAST.

Owen Keegan.....Michael J. Dolan
His Daughter.....May Craig
His Son.....Arthur Shields
His Brother.....P. J. Carolan
Mrs. Desmond.....Maureen Delany
Nance.....Eileen Crowe
Molly Hurley.....Kate Curling
Tom Furlong.....Denis O'Dea

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The repertory of the admirable company from the Abbey theater of Dublin reached its most somber bill last night in T. C. Murray's "Autumn Fire," a grim, slow moving drama that ends in an agonized tragedy of the spirit. Murray is the soberest of the many playwrights who have contributed to the Abbey's history. His work has little of the native humor that has been so characteristic of the school, and derives, plainly enough, from the influence of continental Europe of the neo-Ibsen period, when dramatists were solemn analysts of the many sorrows that can harrow the hearts of mankind.

This play, dealing with an old farmer who marries a young wife, to the distress of his adult children and his eventual self-torture by jealousy, was written by Murray in 1924. The theme seems to have been in the air at that time, for Eugene O'Neill's "Desire Under the Elms" bears the same date, and Sidney Howard's "They Knew What They Wanted" was another product of that year. Murray's other major pieces, "Birthright" and "Maurice Harte," may be remembered by followers of the Irish players during their American tours some twenty years back; they also were devotedly grim.

Here is the story of Owen Keegan, an intelligent small farmer who is as brisk and keen as any lad in the county of Cork, although he has a grown son and daughter. He can break a wild horse or captain a hurley team, and so in the warm autumn of his life he happens to fall profoundly in love with a pretty girl of the neighborhood, and she with him, quite as honestly and sincerely. His daughter, a frustrated old maid with a bitter heart, resents the match, openly; and so does his loyal son, silently, for a better reason—he too is wild about the girl. Nevertheless, Owen, the old man who thinks he is young, marries the girl; and is happy for a while.

In the third act the tragedy breaks. Owen has been crippled by a horse, and is a broken, perhaps a dying, man. His wife and his son are thrown much together in the work around the farm. A clumsy, well meaning brother arouses his jealousy of their association, the sour old maid completes the job, and the passionate old man, overhearing an affectionate but innocent leave-taking between the suspects, tears the house down over his head. He banishes his son, casts out his wife, and ends the play in an emotional frenzy that calls for high tragic acting.

The part gets the acting it demands from Michael J. Dolan, alert and persuasive in the first and second acts, when Owen is in the Indian summer of his romance; haggard and intense in its tragic aftermath. Mr. Dolan is an excellent actor well tempered in the Abbey tradition, for he is a survivor of the first American tour, and in "Autumn Fire" he finds his greatest opportunity in the repertory. May Craig, usually a comedienne or servant girl rôles, also comes into her own in this cast as the embittered sister, whom she portrays with striking effect. Eileen Crowe, as the candid, clean-minded heroine, Arthur Shields as the earnest son, Maureen Delaney, as a serene old peasant woman, Kate Curling as a pastoral sapper, and P. J. Carolan as Owen's rough brother are also effective.

The American Theater society announces that its Chicago season of five plays, four of which have been given at the Erlanger theater, will be completed, and that the fifth play will be named within a few days. It will probably be "When Ladies Meet," a comedy by Rachel Crothers, which has been one of the outstanding dramatic successes of the season in New York.

A bulletin from the New York headquarters of the society states: "The delay in completing the Chicago season has been due to the difficulties encountered in obtaining plays of sufficient merit to meet the organization's standards. Chicago subscribers are advised that the tickets which they hold for a fifth play will be exchanged for others after the booking has been announced."

Movie Studios May Halt All Production Activities

Hollywood, Cal., March 6.—(AP)—Unable to meet pay rolls because of the financial stringency, motion picture executives met here today in an emergency conference and announced they contemplated closing altogether. Because of the present emergency the studios are considering stopping "all their work," said the brief statement issued for the six studios. Pay rolls have been met up to this time with money from New York.

Good moratorium!

This one's apparent aim in life is to hurry up congress in the matter of beer. Though its indirect arguments are naïve and nutty, they spell propaganda, just the same—propaganda that is being received with relish by Roosevelt audiences.

Husky voiced, large schnozzled James Durante and Dead Pan Keaton vie for honors in this lively number. Keaton does most of the vying, and Durante, so far as I'm concerned, gets all the honors. Durante is unique, spontaneous—a natural comic. Keaton is funny if you think he is—but he invariably finds and leaves me as unsmiling as he is himself.

So—in my opinion, "What, No Beer" would have been more rib tickling than it is if so much deference in the matter of production had not necessarily been lavished on his peculiar form of humor. However, as is, "What, No Beer" is hilarious entertainment.

Most of the action occurs in and around a brewery where Durante and Keaton embark on the manufacture of beer.

Their encounters with the law, the public, and gangsters—who conceive the remarkable idea that the moronic Buster is a "master mind"—are characterized by laughable incident. The romance 'twixt Buster and a racketeer's moll furnishes "heart interest" that is of no particular value to the picture as a whole.

Mr. Keaton, pursued by a runaway army of beer barrels he has stupidly released from his truck while stalled on a hillside, is a laughable sequence. And the episode in which the public responds enthusiastically to a frantic summons to drink up evidence proves another bright moment.

Mr. Durante is here, there, and everywhere, being insanely optimistic and unfailingly wrong. Supporting players do creditably and direction was neatly accomplished.

"What, No Beer" must have been a godsend to Hollywood extras. Thousands, I would say, participate in the evidence-imbibing episode.

See you tomorrow.

Calls Concert by Milstein a Great Success

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Nathan Milstein is an extraordinary violinist even in this age when the art of violin playing has progressed to an extraordinary extent. He gave his first Chicago recital last night, though he is by no means a stranger to the city, since he has several times appeared as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

A recital program may be and frequently is a more severe test of an artist's ability than an appearance with an orchestra, for an orchestral soloist has everything in his favor in the way of display, while a recitalist must start from the zero hour and build up his own accomplishments.

Mr. Milstein made a superb job of his upbuilding last night. He would seem to have won the vote of every one. He played Corelli's "La Folia" and Bach's Sonata in G minor for unaccompanied violin for the approval of his brothers of the craft, then passed to the Glazounow Concerto and a group of short numbers for the sake of those who are not technicians of the instrument but regard violin playing as an important part of music making.

In both he was an undoubted and great success. He has a tone that is a marvel of loveliness, a technical equipment that is equally a marvel of easy efficiency. He also has something that goes beyond tone and technic, for which tone and technic are merely the servants. It is an ability to approach a composition and reproduce it in terms of great and inspiring art. Even though his technic has the flash of a rapier, it almost never flashes for the sake of its own glory, but because the flash becomes a definite and logical light in the musical picture.

His audience was a large one. It would probably have been larger had not circumstances of several preceding days made it difficult to purchase tickets.

Frederick Stock and Dr. Allen D. Albert, the latter the assistant to the president of A Century of Progress, will address a massmeeting of the Chicago Friends of Music to be held in Orchestra hall next Friday afternoon immediately after the Chicago Symphony orchestra concert. Dr. Albert will discuss plans for music at the exposition and will tell of the cooperation of the Friends of Music with the music committee of the exposition. He will be introduced by Mrs. Arthur Meeker, acting chairman of the membership campaign committee of the Friends of Music.

The rally is intended to set at rest the rumor that the Friends of Music have abandoned their campaign. They admit that it will be impossible to carry out the project of erecting a Temple of Music in time for the exposition, but they state that they are still in the field for the furtherance of music in Chicago.

Hang New Painting of Junior League President

This painting of Miss Margot Atkin which Mrs. John Satterthwaite has just finished will be seen by Junior league members and their friends for the first time today at the Casino. Mrs. Satterthwaite, who is a transfer to the Chicago league from Akron, O., is well known as a portrait painter. She won a gold medal for her work at the Philadelphia sesqui-centennial exposition and if there were any gold medals to be awarded in the exhibition which opens today she undoubtedly would receive one for the splendid likeness she has painted of Miss Atkin.

The exhibition, which is sponsored by the arts and interests committee of the league, will be open from 11 to 5 each day to league members and their guests.

Proper Care Keeps Knife Blades Keen

Division of the Cutlery Labor Recommended.

BY MARY MEADE.

"Who did what with the paring knife?"

Does that phrase click familiarly in your ear, or at your house are the paring knives always on deck when you want them, the bread knife sharp and the butcher knife spotless?

If so, congratulations. But for the rest of us here are some assorted pointers on the subject of kitchen cutlery that I've discovered give a real boost to cooking efficiency and end by saving large chunks of time and temper.

Knives, as you well know, if you've been cutting up this and that very many years, are as temperamental as prima donnas. They refuse to work if they're too hot, if they're rubbed the wrong way or if their tempers are grated upon. They lose their keenness and become dull and blunt if forced to hobnob with a crowd of others, not to mention frequently biting the hand that hunts for them underneath the spoons and can openers.

But there are other knife troubles, too. I should say our biggest difficulty in that line is [A] that most of us have too few knives or at least too few kinds of knives; [B] that the knives we do own are too often of poor steel and poorly constructed; and [C] that we haven't learned to keep life in our knives by the proper care.

First for the number and kind of knives—not that we can possibly get along with—but that will make for the greatest safety, efficiency and pleasure in kitchen adventures.

Paring and other vegetable preparations call for a paring knife. And because there may be others working in the kitchen now and again, or simply for your own convenience, at least two good little knives are a wise investment. Actually, there is a very small part of the blade of a paring knife which we use, so a knife with a short blade and a sharp point is the best bet. Also, it saves palm cramps. If yours is a potato eating family hunt out not just any old paring knife, but one which fits your hand. If the handle is not long enough to extend part the palm of your hand, you will have to slide the knife down so you can hold it firmly. That brings the back of the blade against your finger and is likely to result in a cramped hand. A fairly long handle that fits the hand will solve this difficulty.

Another vexing note sounds when that nubby little paring knife you just added to your collection parts company in the middle and refuses to be spliced. Here's the answer. When you buy a knife, make sure that the handle is fastened securely to the blade and will not come off. The surest way to determine this is to see to it that the blade runs through the handle. If it does, and you can see the little rivets through the handle, it should be firmly fastened. If you cannot, it may loosen. Nowadays, however, there are certain handles that are fused merely with the ends of the blades, and are perfectly satisfactory.

But a paring knife is too weak to be used as a slicer for cold ham and vegetables. And a carving knife is too thick and sturdy. For a good many uses a slicing knife is the answer. It looks much like a paring knife, but has a longer blade and is pliable and thin. But that doesn't do away with the need for a carving knife. A thicker, less flexible blade is the solution—and a good handle is important.

Then about bread knives. Constant cutting up of the staff of life is pretty wearing on a carving or butcher knife, and I've found that the best bread knife for staying sharp over a period of time is one that is serrated—made like a saw.

Next, how is the sharpening problem at your house? Dull knives are a nuisance and often a menace, and constant clattering about with other metal utensils is the quickest way to dull them. A wooden drawer with wood brackets on the sides into which knife blades may slip is one good answer. A shallow knife drawer with individual compartments for each knife is another. It won't take any longer to put them away than it will to hunt for them later.

An emery stick, emery wheel, or a metal disc sharpener should be on hand to help in the sharpening of knives. These last contrivances are excellent if carefully used.

Finally, did you ever see your mother heat her knife blades on the edge of a stove or over a flame so that they would cut better? Well, don't you do it. Overheating ruins the temper of a knife blade, and it is this temper which makes steel able to hold a sharp edge.

You Can Find Suits with Air of Distinction

Many Uncommon Models Shown in Shops.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Uncommon clothes are not as rare, not nearly as hard to discover as certain pessimistic shoppers would have you think. They can be found and any one can find them if they like to prowl around shops, wander up and down the streets of shops and stores.

You will see suits that fairly take your last breath with their distinctive outlines, their intricate manner of being a street, afternoon and even dinner costume all in one. For instance, a knockout black three piece affair made of that black wool with just a suggestion of bottle green or overshading the black . . . the slim, straight skirt hangs long and smartly without a single plait or flare . . . the short jacket is as trim as a uniform and the third part, the knee length coat, flares swankily with flat, rather loose sleeves, a couple of well hidden flat patch pockets, brass buttons, and a collar as faultlessly tailored as a man's coat.

With this you buy the new spring color accent, bright, cheery wide waled collar and vest effect of yellow pique. This yellow contrast is quite the most eye-filling color contract, and until you see what it does for a suit of this description you have been missing things.

For sheer swank you might like a striped suit that is striped with a fine line of white . . . a semi-rough wool of black with thin, unwavering stripes of white spaced a good three inches apart.

A two piece suit of this black with white wool comes in a simple model for street wear in two pieces, a skirt and a short hip length jacket that is as crisp and fresh and daring as an early spring daffodil. White pique trims this outfit with small, flat tailored bows, facings on the coat and cuffs . . . this is the kind of a suit you wear with pale green, bright yellow and string colored sweaters, or with delicate lingerie blouses [for a perverse and unexpected contrast] or soft chiffon blouses of flesh or pale blue with yards of tucks and lace edged ruffles.

For a new dance dress try the flowered chiffon frock worn over a silver silk slip . . . a flowered chiffon with a dusty gray black background liberally sprinkled with gay field poppies, blue cornflowers and daisies and good green leaves. A huge plaited jet of the same flowered chiffon winds around the neckline and the dress fits smoothly and slimly down to the knees where it flares entrancingly wide around the ankles.

If you like white evening jackets which frost the top of very new dance dresses look for a certain model of brick red silk spattered with tiny white blossoms . . . it is another model with bias seaming and loads of material used for the lower flared section of the skirt. But the frivolous white jacket makes the costume! It is fashioned like the top of a caped coachman's coat, two wide ruffles swirl around the shoulders to give you that width that makes a 1933 model.

The material is heavy and stiff enough to snap the ruffled capes into dashing scallops that delightfully frame the face as well as definitely contrast the red and white printed dress. The brief remainder of the jacket fits as snugly as possible over the ribs till it ends and buttons at the high waistline.

Junior League to Extend Credit for Exhibit and Lecture Today

Adopts Special System for Members and Their Guests for Opening of Art Show.

BY JUDITH CASS.

NOT having the price of admission need not deter any of the Junior leaguers from attending the illustrated travel talk and tea that will be given this afternoon at the Casino to open an exhibition of fine arts, for the arts and interests committee yesterday voted to put a credit system into coöperation.

Any Junior leaguer without the cash may sign on the dotted line for herself and her guests—50 cents for herself and $1 each for guests—at the door and the league will not issue bills for the amount of these charges until the banks have had their holiday and have let depositors have at least 5 per cent of their deposits.

"The credit applies only today," Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, a member of the committee, was careful to explain yesterday in making the announcement. "Admission to the exhibition Wednesday and Thursday is only 25 cents, since it is to be just the exhibit on those two days, but today there will be the travel talk and tea. We expect members and their friends to have at least a quarter, so we won't extend credit Wednesday and Thursday."

The talk, given by Miss Beatrice Borland, is to start at 3 o'clock and its intriguing title is "Banging Through Sumatra and Persia." The exhibition will be open from 11 to 5 on all three days. Mrs. Alfred M. Wolfe, chairman of the arts and interests committee, and the others of the committee, Mrs. Cramer, Mrs. Arthur D. Bissell, and Mrs. Norman Pritchard, will preside at a long tea table gay with urns of spring flowers after Miss Borland's talk. The things in the exhibit, which will include oil and water colors, sculpture, miniatures, prints, posters, and photographs, judged worthy of blue ribbons will be sent to the American Junior league art conference in Philadelphia.

Offer Credit at Fashion Lecture.

An "I. O. U." will be accepted in lieu of a dollar bill at the fashion talk Mrs. Botsford Young is to give this afternoon at the Belmont hotel for the benefit of the scholarship fund of the Chicago Junior School, too, for the committee in charge doesn't want any one who would like to hear Mrs. Young discuss "A Smart Wardrobe Within Your Budget" to have to stay away because of the lack of cash. The talk will start at 2:30 o'clock and during the serving of tea there will be a fashion show.

Invitations were received yesterday to the marriage on March 25 of Miss Florence Carr, daughter of Robert F. Carr, and Edgar Lewis Marston II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hunter S. Marston of New York. The service is to be read at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon at St. Chrysostom's church, after which there will be a reception at the Casino. Mr. Marston and his bride will be at home after May 1 in Lake Forest.

Although their names are included on the list of members of a committee in charge of a concert the Chicago chapter of the International Society for Contemporary Music will give on April 2, the John Alden Carpenters will not be here for the concert, for they are not sailing from abroad until March 30.

Announcements of the concert went out yesterday and modern music lovers are looking forward to it with keen anticipation, for it is to be a program of chamber music composed by internationally famous composers, all living.

The program is being arranged and will be conducted by Rudolph Ganz. Arthur Bissell is chairman of the committee in charge and Frederick A. Stock is honorary chairman. The oth-

FOLLY ISLAND

By Wallace Irwin

SYNOPSIS.

Bart Burgess, while marooned in a catboat on Peconic bay, fifty miles from his Long Island home in Wyattville, meets a girl in a canoe who lives on a nearby island. Bart learns that she is one of the Bayleys, who have lived in seclusion on the island fifteen years. The father travels. Less than a week later Trevor Burgess, Bart's father, dies suddenly from a heart attack. He confesses in a letter left for Bart to being a bigamist. The Bayleys of Folly island are his second family. They know him as Matthew Bayley. He asks Bart, for his invalid mother's sake, to guard the secret, and leaves a fortune to provide for the Bayleys. Bart calls on Mrs. Bayley, posing as a lawyer, and finds her a lovely woman. She tells him, in confidence, that Alice isn't Matthew Bayley's daughter. When Bart realizes he loves Alice he resolves to stay away from Folly island. He becomes engaged to Lora Sackett, a distant relative and recent divorcee. The Bayleys visit New York and Bart sees them. Ingalls Frederick Warren, spoiled child of a new made fortune, known as "Nosey Ingy," has invited Alice to Wyattville. Bart tells Alice of his engagement. Alice and her mother are guests of the Warrens for the annual Wyattville flower show. Mrs. Burgess has the Bayleys in for tea. Alice sees a photograph of Trevor Burgess. Bart suspects his Aunt Augusta and Ingy Warren of stumbling on his father's secret and inviting the Bayleys to Wyattville to expose it. Mrs. Constance Farnham is included in the intrigue.

INSTALLMENT XLIV.

A VENOMOUS STORY.

At a corner of the garden Bart turned and saw that his mother was gazing after him. Small, upright, and frail, she met his eyes with a smile. "She's proud of me," he thought. "Proud of me. Good God, why?"

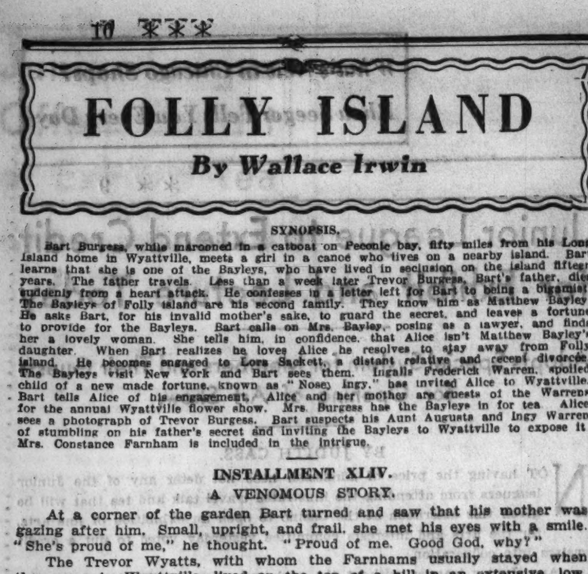
The Trevor Wyatts, with whom the Farnhams usually stayed when they were in Wyattville, lived on the top of a hill in an extensive, low, colonial style dwelling which they chose to call a farmhouse. The butler showed Bart into a wide hallway, decorated with an old English wallpaper that showed Boston harbor before the tea party.

After a dry Sahara of waiting Mrs. Farnham, in an angular sports costume, came in. Again he had the impression of narrowness. Narrow hips, narrow shoulders, and narrow eyes that edged into a nose that had lengthened, he felt, with growing years.

"How do you do, Mr. Burgess. I'm sorry I kept you waiting. Won't you sit down?"

Interrogation in her narrow, dark eyes.

"Mrs. Farnham," he began, "my family and yours have the honor of being related." This sounded so much like the mildewed speech of a Kentucky



"You have asked me for the facts," said Mrs. Farnham colonel that he plunged in with the raw question, "What do you know about Mrs. Bayley?"

Mrs. Farnham's face was all drawn in, the muscles of a cobra about to strike.

"Why do you ask, Mr. Burgess?"

"It's a matter of business."

"I'm not interested in that." The woman was drawing a glove over a narrow hand. Then slyly she looked up and asked, "Did Mrs. Bayley send you here?"

"I came of my own accord."

"Then she's been telling you her side of the story."

"I know part of it. It's very important I should know the rest."

"You'll learn nothing to her advantage. Be sure of that. Evelyn has chosen to lead that sort of life, and hopes, no doubt, to escape the penalty. If you have come to ask about her, probably you have a good reason."

"The best reason in the world, Mrs. Farnham."

Still she hesitated, her eyes boring into him with a dull glitter.

"You were there when I met her yesterday?"

"Yes."

"That was the first time we'd met—after how long? Nearly sixteen years. She wouldn't have come, you may be sure, if she'd known I was going to be there."

"Why not?" shooting at random.

There was a cunning wait; the undecided serpent, considering whether to coil or wriggle away. Then coldly she replied:

"Well, Evelyn can afford to be brazen, I suppose. She's free now, since the girl's 18. The court gave me custody until then, but Evelyn Condon's managed it so—what's her name now?"

"Evelyn Bayley," said the confused listener.

"Evelyn Bayley can move among the new rich people who care to take her up. But there's a legal side to it, and I don't intend to let it rest. This woman, who chooses to call herself Mrs. Bayley, is still outside the law."

There was a hiss in that statement, the whirr of warning. Mrs. Farnham knew that Evelyn Bayley had married a bigamist. But why was it so important to her?

"I've come here to persuade you," said Bart firmly, "not to carry this matter any further."

"O!" Her neck arched to strike. "I thought it was a matter of business."

"It is. I was told that you knew all about Mrs. Bayley. I hoped you'd tell me."

"I will." Dry leaves rustled under the coils. "She was an Evelyn Condon."

This contributed nothing to what he wanted to know, except uneasiness and confusion. He had come to ask what Mrs. Farnham knew about his father, and her spite was centering on Evelyn Condon. They had been talking at cross purposes, these two . . .

A pause, a twisted smile. "Evelyn was an actress in a disreputable stock company. Possibly she has told you otherwise, Mr. Burgess. But I made a careful investigation—very careful—before she took my only son away from me."

If she paused for effect, it was quite a different one from what she had intended. The woman who chose to call herself Bayley had taken Mrs. Farnham's son away from her. . . . An idiotic sequence. What had this to do with anything?

"You have asked me for the facts," said Mrs. Farnham with her narrow smile. "Well, I'll tell them to you. Please don't interrupt me. Evelyn Condon's parents were some sort of wandering Irish people. Her father was an officer in the British army—so she said. Well, some very queer customers come over here with that story. And I don't believe her mother was related to Lord Blythe. Too many impostors come to Philadelphia with those tarrydiddles. When Mrs. Condon and Maj. Condon died I didn't notice Lord Blythe coming forward to bury them. The actors took up a collection. . . ."

Mrs. Farnham was now charmed with the story, presenting her side of it. She writhed as she talked, striking, striking, striking.

"It would have been all right if she had let Arthur carry on an affair with her, this Evelyn Condon. But marry her! Of course her eye was on the main chance—to move out to Radnor and be one of us! The little adventuress. Arthur was wild, yes. He was only 22. I'm sure that she made him more dissipated by marrying him."

"How old was she then?" asked Bart, a faint light beginning to dawn.

"She said she was 18; but she was older—she knew too much for 18—a very calculating person. Naturally she was disappointed when I wouldn't recognize her—wouldn't have her in the family. I know that Arthur, if he had lived, would have seen his mistake and come back to us. But the baby——"

"O, yes." Bart spoke quietly, but his nails were digging into the sides of his chair.

"I was more than willing to take care of the baby—after Evelyn tormented poor Arthur until he met his death. He was a good boy before she got hold of him." Strangely enough, there was pathos and tragedy in her dark face. Bart would have come in with an excited question, but she went spitting on, "They say he had been drinking when the car crashed. If so, you may be sure that she was the cause of it. . . ."

"How long ago was that?" he managed to break in.

"Sixteen years."

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you can no longer use, please tell me. I can place such things with needy families. Address Sally Joy Brown, The Tribune, Chicago.

Shoes for Left Foot Offered.

"I have a number of woman's new shoes, size 6, for the left foot which some invalid may be able to use. They are all of excellent quality, have been made to order, and are mostly oxford in style. Please let me know if someone would like to have them.

"MRS. M. G."

BEAUTY ANSWERS

If there is any question pertaining to beauty and personal hygiene upon which you wish advice write to Antoinette Donnelly, The Chicago Tribune. Enclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

MRS. F. H.: EXERCISES ARE better performed in the morning. At night the body is usually tired, and the needed amount of vigor is lacking to put into the performance.

GLORIA: ROUGE ON THE CHIN shortens it, and the too short chin can be lengthened with a slightly lighter shade of powder than is used on the face.

Clever Gals Use One Perfume in All Cosmetics

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

One of the nicer little details of "painting the lily" is what Lily does with her perfume. Today all cosmetic articles, or nearly all are perfumed. The cold cream has a definite scent of its own maker's choosing. Powder is scented. Hand lotions are often scented.

It goes without saying that a girl who creams herself with one scented cream, powders herself with another fragrance, her hankies and lingerie being wrested from drawers with still another whiff of flowers, and who sprays herself the last minute with an atomizer, is going to set up quite a little cosmetic counter with every move.

In one of the trade papers I read a little story about a comment made by a grizzled old veteran in Grasse, the perfume making center of the world. The talk was on 1933 trade conditions. Said the man: "Food they don't need, clothes they can get along without, but perfumes—women will buy as much as ever."

The beauty of our day is that women can afford to keep on indulging this feminine need and indulging it esthetically. There's no doubt that there is bootlegging going on in the game and women are being deceived. But, following the good old rules of putting one's faith in the manufacturer with the reliable name, a woman can not only be sure of the perfect article, but she can be accomodated in small sized bottles.

Just a word about applying perfumes, one with which you may be familiar, but perhaps forgot: The most intriguing way perfume can be used is to spray it on the flesh before the clothes are donned, after the bath.

MINUTE MYSTERY

CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

AN OLD RACKET.

"You gentlemen," said Prof. Fordney to members of the Bankers' association, "must be more alert if you are to squelch the many bank rackets now flourishing.

"For instance, I was standing third in line at the First National bank yesterday morning when I noticed a man dressed in morning clothes, standing on the opposite side of the room, pick up a blotter that had just been used by a wealthy woman.

"While I was watching him the man in front of me had spread open his newspaper and was intently perusing it. Glancing over his shoulder I noted the headline, CHECK FORGED BY MEANS OF BLOTTER. As I was reading the article the phone in the cashier's cage rang and I heard Wilkins, to whom I always make my deposits, say in an excited voice, 'In the safety deposit vault? I'll take care of them immediately, Mr. Newins.'

"Apologizing to the man at the window, and calling to me, 'Be with you in a minute,' he was gone. Again I turned to watch the gentleman in the frock coat. He was still apparently studying the blotter. My curiosity was aroused and I had just stepped out of line when the cashier returned and yelled that his cage had been robbed.

"While there were almost a hundred people there at the time the robber would have made his getaway had I not signaled to a guard who nabbed him.

"It's an old trick."

"You're right, professor," interrupted a member, "and I know how it's accomplished."

DO YOU?

Your dentist knows that life itself may depend on the care of your teeth.

NO wonder he is so vigilant, skillful, concerned. Your teeth may be steadfast guardians of your health, or vigorous agents of disease. Just which they are is up to you.

Teeth kept healthy do their work properly. Unhealthy, neglected teeth may free virulent poisons, causing many systemic conditions.

That's why you should see your dentist frequently and regularly—at least once every six months, three is better. Follow his advice to the letter; you will never regret it.

And, when pain occurs, use a Poloris Dental Poultice and see your dentist as soon as possible. Poloris has been prescribed by dentists all over the world for 19 years.

Visit Your Dentist Frequently

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: A Hidden Motive

WELL-ER- I'M SORRY I INTERRUPTED YOU TWO- I'LL RUN RIGHT ALONG-
DON'T BE SILLY, WINNIE - I'VE GOT A DATE! I JUST RAN INTO HAL-ER- MR. RICHARDS! I MUST GO-
WELL, GOODBY MABEL-ER- MISS GOOD! I'LL BE SEEING YOU
M'M'M - I NOTICE YOU TWO CALL EACH OTHER "HAL" AND "MABEL"
OH NONSENSE- LEAVE MABEL OUT OF THIS! SHE MEANS ABSOLUTELY NOTHING TO ME!!
LET'S JUST TALK ABOUT YOU - AND RONNY PENN!!
OH, WHY ALWAYS INCLUDE RONNY?
RONNY PENN IS A VERY WEALTHY FELLOW, ISN'T HE? HE CERTAINLY SEEMS TO CARRY A LARGE CHECK-BOOK, DOESN'T HE?
NO, I'VE NEVER SEEN RONNY PENN WRITE A CHECK! HE HAS DOODLES AND DOODLES OF CASH, THOUGH!
WHY IS HAL RICHARDS ALWAYS QUESTIONING WINNIE ABOUT RONNY PENN? THERE MUST BE A REASON ????

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

Isn't this straight line dress with dolman sleeves stunning? It's the kind of a dress that adapts itself to many daytime occasions, the type most women like and nearly every woman can wear. A dull finished crinkled crêpe makes up well, and soft woolens and rough silk crêpe are other mediums.

The pattern, No. 3253, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material with ⅝ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

How to Order Clotilde Patterns.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin [coin preferred; wrap it carefully] for each number, and address your order to Clotilde Patterns, Chicago Tribune, P. O. WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained the visiting governors and their wives at luncheon today in the White House.

Mrs. Roosevelt, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Curtis Dall, and her house guest, Miss Nancy Cook of New York, and her secretary, Mrs. Malvina Thompson Sceider, was the guest of honor at a tea given this afternoon by the newspaper womens' club of Washington, in the lounge of the men's press club. Mrs. Roosevelt wore a tailored suit of very dark blue, the jacket being little more than hip length and semi-fitting. A frill of white filled in the neck and she had white cuffs and white gloves, and a small low crowned hat with a narrow brim. Mrs. Dall wore a suit of lighter blue with figures in still lighter blue and a turban of blue. She also had a white collar and cuffs.

Mrs. Garner, wife of the Vice President, was entertained at luncheon today at the Shoreham by Mrs. Fred M. Vinson, wife of the representative from Kentucky.

The secretary of labor, Frances Perkins, was entertained at tea yesterday by former Representative Ruth Bryan Owen.

ers on the committee are Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Charles H. Hamill, Mr. Ganz, Augustus S. Peabody, and Dr. Wesley La Violette, president of the chapter. The concert will be given at 4 o'clock in the Blackstone theater.

There were two things at the presidential inauguration in Washington Saturday that impressed Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, wife of the new secretary of the interior, more than anything else. They were both innovations.

Between trains yesterday — Mrs Ickes had just arrived from the capital city and was leaving the next hour for Springfield—she told of the chapel service preceding the inaugural ceremony and the induction of the cabinet members into office Saturday after noon.

Mrs. Ickes' two sons, Raymond and Robert, returned to the Ickes' home in Winnetka yesterday.

Cancel Garden Show at Lake Forest.

The Lake Forest flower show, which for many years has been given in the late Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick's Villa Turicum, has been canceled this year because A Century of Progress opens in June and the Garden Club of America will meet here. According to Mrs. Howard C. Phillips, president of the Lake Forest Garden club, plans are being fairly well rounded out for the meeting, which will take place here from June 26 through June 29.

Mrs. Woodberry S. Agar Jr. and Miss Geraldine Swift are greatly concerned with spring hats this week, not their own, however, but those they will sell on Friday at the White Elephant Rummage shop, 27 East Ohio street, for the benefit of the Children's Memorial hospital.

Miss Charlotte Chandler, daughter of the Buckingham Chandlers of Winnetka, will go to New Orleans early next month to spend the Easter vacation from the Roycemore school with her aunt, Mrs. Charles Crawford. Mrs. Chandler was with Mrs. Crawford during the Mardi Gras festivities and just returned last week to Winnetka.

For the first time in the history of the Mardi Gras balls a person not a resident of New Orleans was asked to participate in the court at the Mystic ball this year, and that person was Mrs. John Gould Ralston of Dixon, well known in Chicago society. Mrs. Ralston, a beautiful brunette, took the part of the Princess Royal, wearing a gold satin gown and a diamond tiara.

H. F. McCormick Delays Visit.

Harold F. McCormick has postponed his trip to Palm Beach, where he will visit his son-in-law and daughter, Maj. and Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard, until about March 20.

Ira Nelson Morris arrived in Chicago yesterday from Washington, where he attended the inauguration, and is at the Morris apartment at the Lake Shore Drive hotel. Mrs. Morris, who came home from abroad with her husband and was in Washington with him, now is at their country place in Manchester, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Porter Jr., who got back from a few weeks in Florida on Saturday, are staying at the Ambassador East until they can find a suitable apartment.

Walter W. Crawford and Frederick I. Spencer arrived by auto yesterday from a visit at Rose Cottage, Mrs. Ralph A. Richardson's home at Gaylord, Va. Mr. Crawford married Frances Richardson and Mr. Spencer Bluford Richardson. A week from today John D. Richardson II. is due back, but Mrs. Richardson with her two daughters and their children and Mrs. John D. Richardson, Mr. Richardson's mother, won't come north until late in the spring.

Lieut. Frank B. Tours has arrived in Hongkong, China. His wife and their 2 year old son, who have been with her mother, Mrs. Charles Howard Besly, in Hinsdale since Christmas, are going to join him in July.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand Walker, who motored to Palm Springs, Cal., and took a house for the winter season, are not expected home until May 1. But Mr. and Mrs. Kimball Salisbury, who have been in Bellaire for a fortnight, came home yesterday.

Three Events To Be Today.

Three events on today's calendar—a literary tea by the Friends of American Writers, a luncheon by Chicago's ladies of the consuls, and a program meeting of Le Cercle Francais.

Mrs. Graham Aldis, Mary Hastings Bradley, Mrs. Frank G. Logan, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Miss Ruth Russell, Miss Alice Gerstenberg, and Miss Herma Clark are a few of Chicago's literary lights who will have tea with the Friends of the American Writers at the Woman's University club.

The wives of the consuls are to entertain at noon at a luncheon and bridge at the Belden Stratford hotel. Mrs. Berthold Singer will be hostess.

And the members of Le Cercle Francais will meet at 2 o'clock in the Fine Arts building to hear Mlle. Dorcas Perrenoud, director of the French House at the University of Chicago, give a monologue of French poetry. Prof. Andre Allix of the University of Lyon at Lyon, France, will have another part in the program.

Evanston's Cradle will benefit by the proceeds of a musical to be given tomorrow afternoon at the Skokie Country club. The artists will be Helen Bickerton, Raymond Koch, and Helen Hawk Carlisle.

Dr. Arthur H. Compton is to introduce his old friend, Prof. Auguste Piccard, tonight at Mandel hall at the University of Chicago. Prof. Piccard is to tell about his ascent into the stratosphere and he has promised to have on the platform a model of the "gondola" to his balloon.

The junior board of the Chicago Home for Convalescent Women and Children will meet at 11 o'clock this morning at the home of Mrs. Walter D. Monroe, 4811 Kenwood avenue.

Mrs. James J. McKenna will be hostess to the board of the Sunbeam league at tea tomorrow at her residence, 3750 Lake Shore drive. Plans for the league's annual card party April 18 are to be outlined.

Smart Parisienne Chooses Stripes for Her Stroll in Bois de Boulogne

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Stripes are as popular with fashionable women in Paris as they are with ambitious soldiers. Walking in the Bois de Boulogne about every third woman you meet is wearing stripes. Either she has on a suit that is made of striped material or a striped dress.

Lots of smart women are wearing striped frocks of the two-piece kind, which are made to look like suits. The Lucile Paray frock, in our sketch today is very popular in the highest circles in Paris. It is made of grege smooth woolen pin striped with brown, and the stripes are used to make a decorative pattern both on the hip-length jumper blouse and on the skirt. The stripes are worked diagonally on the blouse and sleeves, and on the round yoke at the shoulders they travel in circles.

The small standing collar wears its stripes horizontally, while on the band down the front they are vertical. The casual way in which the grege tie is pulled through slits, below the throat and not even tied, is part of the chic of this dress.

There is a brown leather belt at the waistline with a small silver hook and bars to fasten it.

The four-gore skirt of this dress has three set-on bands on the lower part of the front gore, bands on which the stripes are worked vertically, and which serve to hide two box plaits. The skirt itself is made of the goods with the stripes placed diagonally.

Too Many Are Size 16 in Body and Mind, Also

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Is a 16 size the mental measure, too, of women who feverishly pursue the size 16 in silhouette? Margaret Culkin Banning, well known writer, in a recent magazine article pronounces the 16 size mental verdict on the feverish dieteer and passionate beauty shop patron.

Let others argue with Mrs. Banning on the justice of her charge from the beauty standpoint. The emotional effect on the female of the species intrigues our interest, as revealed by Mrs. Banning.

One gathers from this observer that woman's brains—and heart—suffer a "weight" shrinkage in proportion to the silhouette thinning of the 16 size idealist. Emotionally and mentally these women who live to be told that they haven't changed a bit in twenty years are adolescents. The half grown emotional capacities of youth are their standard. To be popular, to be attractive to men to be a knockout or even a cute number is the test of a woman's power to these women. Regrettably, Mrs. Banning sees these high school emotional capacities setting a standard outside and beyond its own active circle.

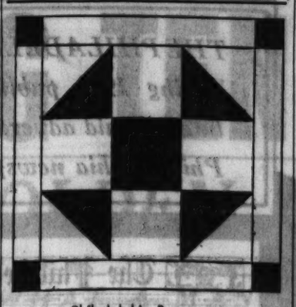
To live to be told at 35 that you look like a young girl is not only an anachronism but a messy waste of life. A waste of every intervening year—and a blight on the years to come. Apropos a story credited to Willa Cather that tells of the meeting between a young woman and one older.

"But, how very beautiful you are," exclaimed the young one. Responded the older woman: "But I should be beautiful. I'm 72." This we believe is the basis of Mrs. Banning's quarrel with the woman who loves to think she hasn't changed since she was 21 and has no intention of changing.

Morally, the silly creature is not vicious, Mrs. Banning concedes. She's only gaga, but dangerously gaga if this juvenile minded sister of some thirty-odd years is allowed to affect the fashion of morals and thought of today.

While we don't agree with Mrs. Banning that her numbers are as menacing, nor her influence as far flung as pronounced, still we meet the type. Her arrested development is what we mostly remember her by—not her Diana lines nor her peachbloom skin. Which is pronouncement enough on the futility of pursuing the ingenue rôle in adult life.

Quilt Pattern Is as Plain, Simple as the Quakers



Philadelphia Pavement.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Philadelphia Pavement.

The design "Philadelphia pavement" does not represent the street pavement of Quakertown, as you might suppose, but rather the tesselated entrances of so many of the old, old homes of the city. Designs similar to the pattern illustrated were inlaid in the floor by arranging little angular or square shaped blocks of different colors after the fashion of mosaic work.

The design is as plain and simple as were the Quakers themselves, but nevertheless it is one of unusual interest and charm.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street.

Parents Can Aid Children to Strike Balance

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

It would be much easier to give advice to parents if you could say flatly, "this is always the way to manage"—if you could lay down hard and fast rules and let it go at that. But if you know children at all—and that means if you know human nature, too—you can't do so. Practically every statement you make can be or should be qualified.

So, after saying yesterday that we should accept our children as they are and not try to make them over, I immediately want to tack a tail to that statement which will keep the inexperienced mother or father from going to an extreme.

It is true that we do want to let our children work out their own destinies as much as possible, according to their native endowment. But because they have to live in a world of people, because they are going to be confronted later with certain practical aspects of living, we must be the ones to keep an eye on the scales and help them to strike a balance.

The girl who is talented and self-sufficient may need to be encouraged to have friends at her house, to go to other children's homes, to respond to overtures of friendship, to accept invitations to parties. On the other hand, the boy who is very sociable, who is above all things a "good mixer" who never wants to do those things which are only done alone, must be helped to develop personal resources so that he can find something within himself that is rich and satisfying. That may be a fondness for reading, the waking of a sleeping talent of some kind such as music, the uncovering of a collecting instinct, or manual skills.

So the child who is overly emotional must be helped to a more impersonal or objective attitude. The one who is naturally too retiring must be brought out of himself.

Use Left-over Meats to Make Delicious, Inexpensive Dinners

These New Dishes Are Easy to Prepare and Wonderfully Different

A little pork, veal, or chicken can become the basis for a complete meal . . . unlike everyday meals . . . and very economical.

You can prepare delicious chop suey, chow mein, or any of countless Chinese dishes in your kitchen. The whole secret is real Chinese vegetables and sauces—packed in convenient and inexpensive tins by La Choy.

Try Chinese chop suey. Surprise the family—and please them. Buy a can of La Choy Sprouts. The simple recipe for chop suey is on the label. All you need is a little meat, a stalk of celery, onion and the Chinese sauces.

Many women keep La Choy Soy Sauce and La Choy Brown Sauce on hand. They add new zest to all stews, soups, gravies and omelets.

Remember the name—La Choy. Try these real Chinese vegetables and condiments in delicious new dishes. Sold by all good grocers. Packed in a spick-and-span American factory by La Choy Food Products, Inc., Detroit, Mich.

Toilet Sanitation
MADE SIMPLE

BEWARE of toilets that are streaked and stained. Germs breed there. The bowl is unsightly. It takes no end of ordinary scrubbing to insure sanitation. But a little Sani-Flush does this work for you.

Just sprinkle a bit of Sani-Flush in the bowl (follow directions on the can)—flush—and the job is done! Stains, odors and germs are swept away. The hidden trap no brush can reach is sanitary.

At grocery, drug and hardware stores, 25c. (Another use for Sani-Flush—cleaning automobile radiators. See directions on can.)

"DID I TELL YOU ABOUT MY OPERATION?"

"I'M A CUP of Sanka Coffee. I've had my sleeplessness removed. They did it by removing 97% of my caffein.

"But they didn't take away any of my flavor. For caffein is completely tasteless—absolutely odorless. It has no more to do with the flavor of coffee than the seeds have to do with the flavor of an apple.

"And it has nothing to do with that friendly glow, either. That comes from warmth, pungency, and the good old coffee flavor—of which I've got plenty!

"In fact, caffein plays no part except that of villain—a villain who robs so many people of sleep, rubs their nerves the wrong way, and lets loose imps in their digestive systems.

"If you're one of these people, you'll like me better without caffein. Now you and Old Man Coffee can be friends once more!"

Sanka Coffee is real coffee—all coffee—an exceptionally fine blend of choice Central and South American coffees. Only the caffein (97% of it) is removed. If coffee keeps you awake, makes you jittery, change to Sanka Coffee. You'll find that Sanka Coffee gives you all that you've liked in coffee, and takes away all that didn't like you.

Packed in vacuum-sealed cans, Sanka Coffee comes to you as fresh and fragrant as the day it was roasted. Your grocer sells it with the guarantee of absolute satisfaction or your money back. Or send in the coupon and 10¢ for a sample can. You make it as you always make your coffee—boil, percolate, or drip. Sanka Coffee is a product of General Foods.

Sanka Coffee has been accepted by the Committee on Foods of the American Medical Association with the statement: "Sanka Coffee . . . is free from caffein effect and can be used when other coffee has been forbidden."

32 BATTLE TOMORROW FOR GOLDEN GLOVES TITLES

CASH OR CHECKS GOOD FOR SEATS AT FINAL BOUTS

Thrills Assured in All Divisions.

Fight Facts

Event—Finals of sixth Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament.

Place—Stadium, 1800 West Madison street.

Time—Tomorrow night, 8 o'clock.

Admission—75 cents, $1.50, $2.20, including tax; all seats reserved.

Number of boxers—32, four in each weight.

Number of bouts—24; 16 semi-finals and 8 championships.

Contestants—Report at Stadium between 2 and 6 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to weigh in and for medical examination.

Prizes—Diamond studded golden glove for each champion; silver glove for each runnerup; bronze glove for each alternate on Chicago's intercity which meets New York's Golden Gloves team at Stadium March 29; trophies for out of city and Chicago teams scoring most points in finals.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Cash or check! That's the motto for the finals of the sixth annual Golden Gloves tournament tomorrow night at the Stadium. If you're one of the many fans who have seen previous Golden Gloves shows, the intercity team battles or the international tournaments with France and Germany, THE TRIBUNE believes that, moratorium or no moratorium, you should be permitted to see the 1933 finals.

If you have a checking account, your check will be accepted in payment for two tickets. Bring a canceled check dated on or after Feb. 1, however, so the signatures may be compared. Tickets are available at THE TRIBUNE Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, and at room 530, Tribune Tower. Your canceled check will be returned to you.

Prices 75 Cents to $2.20.

Those who have established their credit with THE TRIBUNE as advertisers or in other ways, also will be permitted to pay for Golden Gloves tickets by check. They may buy any number of tickets.

Ringside and center mezzanine tickets are $2.20. Other mezzanine tickets and the first balcony tickets are $1.50 while the second balcony is priced at 75 cents, tax included.

The best 32 amateur boxers ever brought together in a Golden Gloves tournament are ready for the finals. These boys are the cream of 5,000 amateurs who have fought through tournaments in 23 cities, the Catholic Youth tournament, or Chicago's four qualifying meets.

The pairings for the semi-finals, which start tomorrow night's program at 8 o'clock, will be made just before the fights. The lineup for the semi-finals is a matter of luck, but no matter how the boys are drawn, all bouts will be topnotch.

Would you like to see Freddie Caserio fight Bill Treest? Or Treest or Caserio meet Jim Cummings? And don't forget the dark horse in the middleweight class, Ellis Bradley of Quincy, Ill. This division alone will furnish enough action to warrant purchase of a ticket. All in all there will be 16 semi-finals and the eight championship fights. All bouts will consist of three two minute rounds.

How About Pacek vs. Wiater?

How would you like to see a bout between John Pacek of the C. Y. O. and Adolph Wiater of Green Bay? Pacek hits as hard as Jack Allen of Cleveland, but Allen couldn't land his famous right on Wiater during their quarter final bout. Perhaps Pacek will. As a light heavyweight last summer Wiater defeated the champion of Germany in the international series at Soldiers' field.

Then Ario Soldati of Rockford, Ill., and Jack Kranz of Gary, Ind., must be considered in the heavyweight class. Kranz won the 175 pound Golden Gloves title in 1931. That Chicago team, by the way, whipped New York, 13 bouts to 3.

Max Marek, the C. Y. O. team champion, hasn't forgotten last year's Golden Gloves finals. Vernon Miller of Davenport won a close decision in three rounds. Close decisions always are disputed decisions, and Marek has waited a year to prove he's a better man than Miller.

Harvey Diesch of Milwaukee and Edward Yde of Dubuque, Ia., are dangerous light heavies. They must be good to reach the semi-finals of the tournament.

Here Is a Great Battle.

Billy Celebron of Rockford, who is representing Trafton's gymnasium, and Henry Rothier, C. Y. O. welterweight champion, will put on a scrap which undoubtedly will be one of the features of the night. Rothier won the Golden Gloves lightweight title last year and then whipped the champion of Germany last summer.

Leo Rodak, now a featherweight, who has won both the flyweight and bantamweight Golden Gloves crowns, may hang up a still greater record by taking his third championship tomorrow night. Irving Goldstein, that surprising youngster from the west side, George Van Der Heyden, a Belgian lad from South Bend, Ind., and George Dungey of Peoria, Ill., are Rodak's rivals.

160 POUNDS OF PUNCH

Bring on those Golden Gloves middleweights! Billy Treest of Joliet is ready for 'em. Billy must beat Fred Caserio and Jim Cummings of Chicago and Ellis Bradley of Quincy tomorrow night in the final round at the Chicago Stadium.

Checks Are O. K. for Golden Gloves Tickets

Bank holidays need not interfere with your plans to see the finals of the Golden Gloves tournament at Chicago Stadium Wednesday night. Bring along a canceled check written since Feb. 1 to show you have a bank account and The Tribune will accept your check for tickets.

Thirty-two remain in the competition for amateur boxing's greatest prize. They are the survivors of a field of 5,000 from 24 cities in seven states. They have no reputations to protect, no reason to hold back. They will be in the Stadium ring to fight.

Tickets may be obtained at The Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, from 9 a. m. to 11 p. m. and in room 530 Tribune Tower from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.

The prices are $2.20, $1.50 and 75 cents, tax included.

Stribling Disqualified for Holding in Charles Bout

PARIS, March 6.—(AP)—William L. [Young] Stribling of Macon, Ga., was disqualified for holding tonight in the eighth round of a heavyweight match with Pierre Charles of Belgium. The contest was the dullest fight witnessed in Paris in many years. As early as the second round and again in the third session the referee warned Stribling against holding.

REAL BASEBALL ON BOOKS TODAY FOR WHITE SOX

Al Simmons Is En Route to Pasadena Camp.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 6.—There will be plenty of excitement tomorrow around the premises where the White Sox are in their second week of training. The hired hands will engage in their first baseball game of the year. It will be the opener of a series of three intra-camp battles in three days, and Manager Fonseca is expecting everybody to bear down and show something.

Word arrived this morning that Al Simmons, who had been suffering various ailments at Hot Springs, Ark., for a month, was actually on his way here. A telegram from Simmons' doctor said that the patient was in excellent condition, barring the restoration of some extracted teeth. Simmons has promised that he would be ready to step right into the thick of whatever was going on when he arrived, which means that he might be in left field for the regulars Wednesday afternoon.

Won't Divide Regulars.

Instead of following the usual course in the intra-camp games, Fonseca is going to have as many prospective regulars as possible on one team. That probably will be tough on the Goof outfit, which because of a shortage of man power will be aided, or hindered, by some local semi-pros who are working with the squad. The regular infield will be made up of Fonseca at first, Hayes at second, Appling at short, and Dykes at third. Swanson, Haas, and Kress will make up the outfield, reading from left to right.

Just how the pitchers are to be divided up for tomorrow isn't certain. Only the rookies will see action. Five of them sure to be called on by one or the other of the teams are George Murray, from the Dallas club; John Wilson, from Buffalo, Carl Boone, formerly an American Association notable, and Clarence Fieber, the tall 19 year old southpaw.

Fieber is well along in his conditioning so will be pitted against the regulars to give them some practice against lefthanded foolers. In the daily batting drills so far the regulars have been pained to no little extent by their failure to hit the youngster's stuff.

Gregory, Frasier Cut Loose.

The rapid advances being made by the pitchers under the soothing sun prevailing hereabouts was evidenced today when Paul Gregory and Vic Frasier, both of whom are being counted on to take their regular turns during the season, cut loose with curves and a little speed. Both will be worked this week-end in the two exhibitions against the Pasadena Merchants, a team which is supposed to be fairly classy.

The appearance of Gregory and Frasier in these affairs is expected to put them in trim for the two games with the Cubs next week at Wrigley field, Los Angeles.

Everything done by Frasier so far has borne out the belief that he is going to be a valuable player. In 1932 he couldn't produce the fast ball hop which made him such a worthwhile chattel in 1931. The strength needed to get that little extra jump on the fast one wasn't there. That's why the enemy almost knocked his ears loose whenever he appeared. Recovery of his health is supposed to have eliminated this deficiency.

AWARD WESTERN WOMEN'S GOLF MEETS TO COAST

The Women's Western Golf association yesterday awarded its 1934 tournaments to the Pacific coast.

The major championship tournament was awarded to the Los Angeles Country club, with the open tournament going to Portland, Ore. Dates will be set at a meeting of the association in October.

Selection of the club to hold the open championship was left to the Portland committee.

Just Mention Any Basketball Record; Joe Reiff Holds It

Joe Reiff, Northwestern's sharpshooting basketball captain, who wound up his college career against Minnesota last Saturday, set enough scoring records to keep the boys busy for years to come.

His total of 167 points for the season just closed is a record for individual scoring in the Big Ten. He accomplished this feat by dropping in 53 field goals and 61 free throws.

393 for Three Years.

These points give him a total of 393 points for three years, also a record. These points were scored in 36 games for an average of 10.8.

Reiff's three year record for Big Ten games follows:

1931	43	36	14	122
1932	36	32	16	104
1933	53	61	16	167

Reiff's mark of 122 points for his sophomore year, while not a record at the time, gave him high point honors for that season. The following year he was held to 104 points. This was the year in which Johnny Wooden of Purdue was setting an individual scoring record of 154 points.

Starts Season Slowly.

Joe got off to a rather inauspicious start this year, being held to 6 points in the opening game against Illinois. He came back with 11 points against Purdue in the following game and then piled up 29 points against Chicago.

Reiff's average toppled in midseason when Indiana held him to 4 points and two days later he accumulated only 7 against Minnesota. However, in the remaining five games he scored 86 points, which was sufficient to top Wooden's mark by 13 points. Joe scored 72 points in nonconference games, bringing his total for the year to 239.

In three years of Big Ten competition Reiff had the low total of 46 personal fouls called against him, which is also believed to be a record for players competing in every game. This is an average of 1.2 fouls a game.

Shoots with Either Hand.

His success as a scorer is largely due to his being an excellent shot with either hand, enabling him to pivot either to his right or left to get a try at the basket. In addition, he possessed sufficient finesse to evade the most persistent guard. This technique was especially noticeable on the pivot line, where he frequently broke away from his guard, whirled, and lifted a one hand shot through the hoop.

There his height of 6 feet 2 inches came to his aid. Added to these physical characteristics was his coolness under fire. Always unruffled, he oftentimes took advantage of an opponent's momentary lapse to make a break for the basket.

Johnson Takes Second.

Second to Reiff in conference scoring honors this year was Elmer Johnson, Northwestern's star center, who piled up a total of 114 points.

Johnson, who hails from Schiller Park, Ill., also has been a regular for the last three years. The fact that he was playing on the same team as Reiff kept him out of the limelight. He ranks as one of the greatest centers in Big Ten history.

Like Reiff, Johnson also was an effective scorer from the pivot line. His back hand shots from this spot were unusually effective. In addition to starring in basketball, Johnson is also captain of the baseball team. He is one of the outstanding pitchers in the conference.

Sea Lions Give Concert for Nautical Cubs

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 6.—Comparative relaxation was enjoyed by the Chicago Cubs today following their arduous week-end endeavors, which included two victories over the New York Giants. Some of the athletes reported slightly sore muscles, notably Bill Jurges, who played in Saturday's game against the Giants, and Carroll Yerkes, who hasn't pitched in competition so far this year.

Manager Charles Grimm continues to treat his lumbago with high respect, but expects to play his first competitive baseball of the year in the game with the Giants at Wrigley field, Los Angeles, next Friday afternoon. Charley really isn't suffering, but seems to like the bench managing idea right well. So far the lineup hasn't suffered through his absence, for Harry Taylor has been fielding well, which was expected, and also has been hitting the ball often, which wasn't expected.

Sea Lions Are Plentiful.

The routine drill today was preceded by the annual glass bottom boat trip, made more interesting this year by the tremendous increase in the sea lion population off the south end of the island. More than 2,500 of the mammals hang out in a small area three miles from the Cubs' hotel. Schools of six or eight sea lions had come to Avalon to serenade the athletes, but few imagined there were such swarms until the trip this morning.

Regulars Meet Yannigans Today.

It was apparent from the noisy carryings on that the animals do not like the Cubs. One old bull, who seems to be the main fellow, has a voice like Babe Ruth's and was especially offensive in his anti-Cub demonstration this morning.

Tomorrow there will be no nature studying for the players, however. The regulars, given a severe tanning by the Yannigans in the one intra-club game played since the arrival of the second squad, will try to do better tomorrow and they'll have a chance again Wednesday, their last full day in the Avalon training camp.

After the two camp games Manager Grimm will make his pitching selections for the impending Giants' games in Los Angeles. There are twelve pitchers available and it is probable that nine will be used in the three game series with the New Yorkers. Manager Grimm indicated, however, that he may step up the work a little, using only two pitchers in the Saturday game and two on Sunday.

Hawks to Oppose Ottawa Tonight in Tail-End Game

The Blackhawks make their next to last home stand of the season tonight when they play Ottawa, last place team in the international division of the National Hockey league, at the Chicago Stadium. After the game both teams will go to Ottawa where they conclude their season's series Thursday night.

Tonight's game finds the Hawks battling for what seemingly is a lost cause. In all probability no amount of success now will land the Chicagoans in the Stanley cup playoffs. Defeat by the Toronto Maple Leafs while the Bruins were winning Sunday night dropped the Hawks six points behind the Boston sextet.

Bloomington, Ind., March 6.—[Special.]—Indiana sent Northwestern into a tie with Ohio State for the Western conference basketball championship tonight by defeating the Buckeyes, 40 to 28, in one of the three games which ended the Big Ten season.

It was the second defeat of the conference season for Ohio State which had been leading the race since the opening of the 1932-'33 competition. Northwestern closed its season on Saturday with a record of ten victories and two losses. Iowa was the only other team to halt the Buckeyes.

Glen Hodson, senior Indiana forward who scored 17 points, was the thorn in Ohio State's side. Indiana was ahead at the half, 19 to 13. By avenging Ohio's earlier 35 to 28 victory the Hoosiers concluded their conference schedule with six victories and six defeats. Lineups:

WISCONSIN, 28; CHICAGO, 16

Wisconsin's basketball team defeated Chicago, 28 to 16, in the season windup at the Midway fieldhouse last night. While they themselves remained in eighth place the Badgers thrust Chicago firmly into the Big Ten basement, where the Maroons will languish with Minnesota until next season.

Dull throughout, the game was particularly pallid in the first half, during which poor passing and feeble marksmanship by the Maroons left them without a field goal at half time. One Maroon pass went to the referee, who was in the clear under the basket. Wisconsin, meanwhile, rolled up six baskets, using its height advantage for four follow-up shots and led, 17 to 2.

Chicago had the better of the second period play. Parsons poked in three goals and four free throws to lead the evening scoring and to finish his college career fairly high in the conference individual rankings. Lineup:

MICHIGAN, 27; PURDUE, 22

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 6.—[Special.]—Michigan overcame a seven point lead here tonight to defeat Purdue, 27 to 22, and gain a tie with Iowa for third place in the Big Ten. The Wolverines were trailing, 13 to 8, when the first half ended. Lineup:

WISCONSIN AT LOYOLA

Loyola university closes its 10th season of basketball tonight at the Loyola gymnasium meeting the University of Wisconsin five in a return game. The game is the feaure of Loyola's first homecoming since November, 1930.

Wisconsin outlasted Loyola at Madison last month, 28 to 26, after building up a 21 to 13 lead in the first half. Loyola hopes to reverse that decision and close its season with 14 victories in 21 starts. This record would give Coach Leonard D. Sachs a ten year record of .700.

YANK HOLDOUTS FLOCK TO SIGN AS BANKS CLOSE

Dickey, Lazzeri, Cook Come to Terms.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 6.—[Special.]—The reflex of the banking situation today struck the camp of the Yankees and sent three players scurrying from the holdout ranks. Bill Dickey, the best catcher in 1932, arrived from Little Rock and announced that he had mailed his signed contract, which calls for $10,000, to Ed Barrow, secretary. Barrow called up from New York and said he had received acceptance of terms from Tony Lazzeri and Dusty Cooke.

The club thus is left with only three holdouts—Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, and Red Ruffing. Ruth went fishing this morning and said that he would not recede from his demands.

BROOKLYN REBELS GIVE IN.

Miami, Fla., March 6.—[Special.]—Joe Gilleaudeau, vice president and treasurer of the Brooklyn Dodgers, today discussed contract troubles with two of the club's major holdouts. His first conversation was with Danny Taylor, already in uniform and just finished with the opening calisthenics, and the second was with Alfonso Lopez, just arrived. Gilleaudeau had nothing to announce, but there were strong indications that Lopez had been satisfied and that Taylor soon would be. Lopez will be in uniform tomorrow, making the squad complete with the exception of Hack Wilson, Joe Stripp and Jimmy Jordan.

PIRATE REGULARS WIN.

Paso Robles, Cal., March 6.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Regulars took an eight inning training camp game today from the Yannigans, 4 to 2. Joe Ward, rookie catcher, batted in the Yannigans' runs after Thevenow singled and Padden reached first on Piet's error. Score:

Yannigans	000	000 02—2	3 1

Batteries—Hoyt, French, and Ward; Birkofer, Chapman, and Grace, Finney.

SHOTTON PREDICTS PENNANT.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 6.—[Special.]—Philadelphia baseball fans are stirred up by the prediction of Manager Burt Shotton that the Phillies will capture the National league pennant this year. He says that the presence of Mickey Finn, former Brooklyn Dodger, at second base, will give the team at least 12 more victories than in 1932.

FRISCH STANDS FIRM.

Bradenton, Fla., March 6.—[Special]—It was reported today that Frankie Frisch's holdout is preventing the Cardinals' appointment of Rogers Hornsby as manager of the Columbus club of the American association, which in 1932 was led by Billy Southworth, now a coach of the New York Giants.

The Columbus job lies between Hornsby and Bob O'Farrell, both former managers of the St. Louis National league club.

MARANVILLE STILL MISSING.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Regulars of the Boston Braves reported to Manager Bill McKechnie here today but several players, notably Rabbit Maranville, veteran infielder, and Bill Urbanski, shortstop, still were missing.

MACK VETERANS WIN.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics played their first game of the training camp season today, the Regulars taking a 9 to 1 decision over the Yannigans in six innings.

DIVIDE RED SOX STAFF.

Sarasota, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Manager Marty McManus today divided the Boston Red Sox pitching staff into two groups. The rookies worked out during the morning session and the regulars came out for the artenoon drill.

BOSS JOINS INDIANS.

New Orleans, La., March 6.—(AP)—Harley Boss, a rookie who is expected to give Eddie Morgan a tussle for the regular first base assignment of the Cleveland Indians, arrived at the Tribe's training camp today. Rain caused a temporary suspension of workouts.

Fred Caserio, Inc., Booms in Stock and Sock Marts

BY FRENCH LANE.

There's one stock which the boys in the brokers' offices along La Salle street and at the Chicago Board of Trade will not sell short.

Turbulent days may have upset other issues. The bulls have been slaughtered and many of them even devoured by the bears. Yet the hungry bears have been afraid to make a meal of the one pet issue on the street.

The name of this stock is Fred Caserio, Incorporated. Fred is one of the boys who has chalked up all those sad quotations on the big blackboards during the depression days. Even the devastating tidings which he from day to day was compelled to reveal, did not affect his popularity. This popularity is measured not by the news that he spreads but by the gloves he has been swinging in amateur boxing for the last four years.

Fred Caserio, Incorporated, is in a very solid condition and is as popular as ever. This will be demonstrated at Chicago Stadium tomorrow night when the hero of the issue doffs his big black velvet robe and starts fighting on toward a diamond studded golden glove.

It was Caserio who captained the Chicago team in the intercity matches against New York back in 1931. And it was that team led by Caserio which gave New York one of the soundest thumpings ever administered in an intercity struggle.

Last year Caserio remained out of Golden Gloves competition because he wanted to win a place on Uncle Sam's team which was to fight in the Olympic games. He won Central A. A. U. and National A. A. U. championships. In the Olympic trials he finished second by a narrow margin.

Caserio faces the toughest competition of his career to become Chicagoland's 1933 middleweight champion this year. Jim Cummings of Chicago, Billy Treest of Joliet, and Ellis Bradley of Quincy oppose him.

Roguish Eye All Set to Win That $50,000

Roguish Eye is fit and ready to run the race of his life in the $50,000 Cuban Grand National handicap at the Oriental Park track in Havana next Sunday afternoon. This was the cheering news received yesterday by his owner, Ald. John J. Coughlin.

The only thing that worries Chicago's alderman from the first ward is "will he be able to be on hand to collect the spoils."

"Right now it doesn't seem possible that I will be able to make the trip to Cuba and be there in time to see the race," the alderman said last night. "But from everything I can hear from my trainer Roguish Eye will win the stake."

Was a Great Two Year Old.

The alderman last night was busy endeavoring to employ one of the star riders of the country to ride his horse.

Roguish Eye has been one of the freak horses of American racing. As a 2 year old, back in 1928, he was one of the great juveniles in the country. He was beaten but an inch in the $100,000 Belmont Futurity by Marshall Field's High Strung.

Since then he has started twice. He ran both these races at New Orleans during the present winter season, winning both of them and smothering horses which ran against him. This prompted Owner Coughlin to send him to Cuba to strive for the first $50,000 race ever offered there. The horse arrived in Cuba about four weeks ago and has been showing sensational speed trials.

What He Has to Beat!

To win the Cuban race Roguish Eye must beat nearly all the best handicap horses that have been racing this winter. Chief John, owned by John Marsch of Chicago, probably will be the favorite. St. Brideaux, Kincsen, Pigeon Hole, Larranaga, White Clover II., Curacao, and Cathop are some of the other probable starters in the race.

"That $50,000 prize will surely help relieve the depression in the First ward," Coughlin said last night. "But I would like to be there to collect it."

Buddy Hanford scored a triple at Hialeah Park yesterday with Clean Play, Prince Drake, and Action, the last named being winner of the featured race.

FOUR CHICAGO BOYS TO SEEK BIKE RACE TITLE

Chicago boys are expected to play a big part in the six day bicycle race which starts in the Stadium Sunday night. There are four Chicago youngsters in the race and one youth from Kenosha, Wis., known to the cycling fans of Chicago. They are Mickey Rodak, Tony Schaller, Steve Wagner, Al Klingbell of Chicago, and Bobby Thomas of Kenosha.

Rodak will be paired with Torchy Peden, who won ten six day races last year; Schaller and Klingbell will ride together, while Wagner probably will team with Manera. Thomas will be paired with Norman Hill.

Alfred Letournier and Gerard Debaets, winners of the New York race, are expected to be one of the strongest teams.

GREENE DEFENDS DIVING TITLE IN MEDINAH POOL

The Central A. A. U. swimming and diving championship meet in the Medinah A. C. pool at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night will bring together outstanding divers of the central states.

Al Greene, junior national high board and Central A. A. U. low board champion, will defend his low board title against Jim Wilkie and Ken Willard, both of Northwestern university.

Boxing Show at White City Is Postponed

Pep Kerwin, White City promoter, canceled his boxing show scheduled for last night because of the death of Mayor Cermak. Marty Sampson and Bud Saltis, who were matched in the eight round windup, expect to go through with the bout next Monday. Jackie Sharkey will cancel his eight roundmatch with Jackie Stewart, because he is signed to fight Sammy Levine at the Coliseum March 15. A contest between Jack Moran and Eddie Gill may replace the Sharkey-Stewart bout at White City.

The Illinois athletic commission met yesterday at the regular weekly meeting and immediately adjourned because of the death of Mayor Cermak. Joe Triner, chairman, and Packey McFarland and George Getz voted a resolution of sympathy to be sent to the mayor's family.

Izzy Gastanaga, New York heavyweight, yesterday canceled his agreement to box at the Coliseum March 15. King Levinsky, Tommy Loughran, Walter Cobb, and Hans Birkie refused to box Gastanaga unless they received a guarantee, which the Coliseum promoter refused. All were offered percentage. Johnny Pena and Varias Milling have started training for their 10 round contest.

Gastanaga will return to New York today or go to Oklahoma City, Okla., to face Babe Hunt on March 20.

Virgil Bemi and Red Chinski, local lightweights, will meet in a five round bout at the Midway arena, 6115 Cottage Grove avenue, tonight. Jackie Parker and Ossie Jefferson, middleweights, will clash in the five round semi-final. Four round matches are to bring together Laddie Tonelli and Ray Maxwell and Fred Garbelle and Eddie Meyers. Johnny Coulon also has matched Hasaan Ahmed and Frank Walsh for a wrestling exhibition.

An amateur show is to be offered at the Catholic Youth Center Thursday. Eight contests will be arranged. Bob La Monte, Hank Kepp, and Gerald Mathieu will appear.

THREE EASTERN PLAYERS TO SEEK PINGPONG TITLE

The entries of three veteran eastern players were received yesterday for the national amateur pingpong championship tournament which will open in the grand ballroom at the Palmer house Friday. They are Abraham Kraukauer, New York university, who last week won the eastern championship; Phil Miller, and Samuel Silverman.

Coleman Clark, Chicago, national champion, was seeded No. 1 in the draw. James Jacobson, New York, was given No. 2 position, while another easterner, W. C. Wells Jr., was seeded No. 3.

Henrys Beat Joliet, 28-14, in N. A. A. U. Basketball

Kansas City, Mo., March 6.—(AP)—The Wichita Henrys, defending champions, advanced to the second round of the National A. A. U. basketball tournament by defeating the White Cigar team from Joliet, Ill., 28 to 14, tonight.

Michigan Best Bet to Capture Indoor Title

Michigan's track strength appears formidable enough to enable the Wolverines to recapture the Big Ten indoor title, which they lost last year to Indiana by five-sixths of a point, when the championship meet is held in the University of Chicago field house Friday and Saturday.

Indiana is not out of the running but Michigan apparently has too much numerical strength and too many certain points for the Hoosiers to come through with another upset. Another Brocksmith could do it for Indiana, but Charles Hornbostel, this year's outstanding middle distance runner on the Indiana squad, is not expected to repeat Brocksmith's phenomenal work. Hornbostel and Ivan Fuqua together, however, may replace the missing star.

Illinois May Finish Second.

It will not be particularly surprising if Illinois beats Indiana for second place, despite the victory of Indiana in a recent dual meet. Illinois has its strength concentrated in several events, particularly the shot and pole vault, and is more certain of the majority of its points than is Indiana.

The Michigan team should place in eight of the ten events on the program. Indiana figures in nine of the events and Illinois in seven.

Indiana can be figured from a minimum of 22 points to a maximum of 27 and a fraction, while Michigan, at the lowest, appears capable of getting 27 points and a maximum of 30. Illinois probably can score between 24 and 26 points.

Any of Three Can Win.

With the usual number of upsets and accidents that always occur in a big meet, any one of the three leaders can win.

Preliminary consideration of the meet indicates the following positions in the various events:

60 YARD DASH—Bennett, Ohio; Thornton, Minnesota; Fuqua, Indiana; Ward, Michigan.

70 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Keller, Ohio; Erlenton, Michigan; Scheifler, Minnesota; Pantland, Michigan, or Sandbach, Purdue.

440 YARD RUN—Fuqua, Indiana; DeBaker, Michigan; Christiansen and Kennicott, Illinois; Allen, Michigan; Dean, Iowa; Cullen, Chicago, about on a par for the other two places.

880 YARD RUN—Hornbostel, Indiana; Turner, Michigan; Sears, Purdue; Brown, Ohio.

MILE RUN—Woolsey, Illinois; Hornbostel, Indiana; Popejoy, Purdue; Howell, Michigan.

TWO MILE RUN—Watson, Indiana; Hill, Michigan; Wright, Wisconsin; DuFresne, Illinois, or Currell, Minnesota.

POLE VAULT—Seely, Illinois; Lenington, Illinois; Divich, Indiana; Lovshin, Wisconsin.

SHOT PUT—Cook, Illinois; Kamm, Illinois; Biddinger, Indiana; Neal, Ohio.

HIGH JUMP—Ward, Michigan; Mosio, Michigan; Smith, Wisconsin; Walsh, Indiana; Jens and Duggins, Northwestern; Osty, Illinois, probably tied for place positions.

MILE RELAY—Michigan; Ohio; Illinois; Indiana.

BANK HOLIDAY FAILS TO HALT PREP TOURNEYS

A poll of district managers of the annual Illinois state high school basketball tournament yesterday brought an overwhelming vote to go ahead with plans to hold the tournaments this week.

The poll was taken at the request of several officials because of the bank holiday. C. V. Whitten of Chicago, general director ot the state championship meet, polled the managers of each district. They replied that the district events could be held.

Bright Shirt, Gun Fill Needs of Seminole

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Big Cypress Swamp, Fla., March 6.—The Seminole Indian, as we are seeing him down here in the dreary everglade and cypress swamp region of southern Florida, is undoubtedly one of the most primitive redskins in our country today. Scattered over the flat everglades—a marsh about the size of Connecticut—and westward through the big swamp, these Indians still are the primitive hunters.

The Seminole male wears neither hat nor shoes. His only garment is a knee length shirt, belted at the waist and buttoning from neck to stomach. It is the brightest garment that can be imagined. Many colors vivid in hue and ranging from black to blue, and varied shades of red and orange go into this loose garment.

Guns Replace Bows.

Although cities and towns, airplanes, big automobiles, and all of the other things that go with civilization and gay winter resorts are at the edge of the Seminoles' wilderness of water and land, they are still a primitive race. Guns have replaced bows and arrows, the squaws have their sewing machines, and old flivvers have become a part of the Seminoles' possessions, but they still live by the hunt.

Wild deer, turkeys, and other game must be hunted for the table. Alligator hunting and the trapping of raccoons furnish a little income.

Today we have had a chance to see some of the game which the Seminole hunts when he wants fresh meat for his table. In order to pitch our little green tent in a cabbage hammock in Lard Can strand we had to travel many a rough mile in a flivver through the heart of the Big Cypress swamp.

Ducks Dip into Ponds.

We could look across the saw grass prairies and cypress hammocks and watch flocks of ducks dipping into the ponds. Signs of deer were evident around some of the hammocks. Non-game water birds were abundant. Weaving flocks of snow white herons slowly flew across the bright blue sky. Just after our car had negotiated the deep pools in the Okaloacoochee slough we flushed a pair of sandhill cranes.

PREP FIVES MEET TOMORROW FOR PLACE IN FINALS

3 Playoffs Scheduled in Catholic League Today.

GAMES TODAY.
[Lightweight.]
St. George vs. De Paul, Loyola gymnasium, 4 p. m.
St. Rita at Mount Carmel, 4 p. m.
[Heavyweight.]
St. Rita at Mount Carmel, 8 p. m.

The survivors in the race for the Chicago Public High School league lightweight and heavyweight basketball championships will meet tomorrow. The dates and sites of the semi-final games, two in each division, were selected yesterday at a meeting of coaches and officials. A. H. Pritzlaff, director of physical education, said the finals will be held either Friday or Saturday, the sites to be announced later.

In the lightweight division Roosevelt will meet Austin at the latter's gymnasium, while Fenger and Bowen will clash in the other game at White City. In the heavyweight contests, Parker will play Bowen at White City and Lane Tech will meet Lake View at Loyola university gymnasium.

The Fenger-Bowen lightweight game and the Parker-Bowen heavyweight contest will be played as a double header on the south side court. The lightweight game will start at 4 o'clock, while the heavyweight contest is scheduled to start at 5.

Three playoffs to decide sectional honors in the Chicago Catholic High School league will be held today. The teams concluded regular sectional schedules last Friday. The winners and runners-up in each of the three sections will compete in an elimination series for the championships Friday.

STATE FUNERAL HELD IN SENATE FOR T. J. WALSH

Archbishop Curley Says Last Rites.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—The dignity befitting a state funeral and the colorful ritual of the Roman Catholic church marked the services held today in the senate chamber for the late Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, who, but for his sudden death last week, would have been attorney general in the Roosevelt cabinet.

President Roosevelt sat in a seat of honor close by the silvery coffin where it reposed, banked with flowers, in front of the presiding officer's rostrum.

On the rostrum itself Archbishop Curley of Baltimore, in the magenta vestments of his churchly office, read the service.

It was the second occasion in congressional history that Roman Catholic services had been held in the senate, the first time having been on Jan. 11, 1893, when services were held for Senator John E. Kenna.

Supreme Court Attends.

The black robed justices of the United States Supreme court and the gold braided commanders of the military and naval services formed a background for the family and friends of the late senator grouped beside the coffin.

Center of the group was the widow, bride of only five days when she awakened to find her husband dying in their drawing room on a train bound from Florida to Washington. Widow of a wealthy Cuban, Senora de Truffin had married Senator Walsh in Havana only a week ago last Saturday.

On one side of the widow sat Marcial de Truffin, son by her first marriage; on the other, Mrs. Emmet C. Gudger, daughter of the senator by his first marriage; and John Walsh, the late senator's brother.

Widow and daughter were heavily veiled.

Gives Brief Eulogy.

All were assembled when the senate doors swung open to admit the brilliantly vested processional of churchmen. At the head walked the Rev. ZeBarney T. Phillips, Protestant Episcopal chaplain of the senate; next a boyish crucifer in robe of black, flanked by scarelt gowned acolytes. Accompanying Archbishop Curley paced high Catholic prelates from Washington and Baltimore.

Archbishop Curley spoke in brief eulogy of the dead senator, and his words recalled the legislative battles in which Tom Walsh of Montana was a leader. They brought back memories of the days when he was chairman and the other senator from Montana, Burton K. Wheeler, now seated with the funeral committee, was prosecutor of the committee to investigate the oil scandals.

"I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith," Archbishop Curley repeated the words of St. Paul.

Even so, he said, Tom Walsh might have repeated them.

The service over, the casket was taken to the train for the journey to Helena, Mont., where Senator Walsh will be buried among the people he had represented for twenty years.

Following the burial the widow will return to Washington, where, she said, she probably will make her home, to follow the plans her husband had made.

"I want to try and stay on here, and as far as possible, create the kind of a life we hoped to have together," she said.

OSCAR FOREMAN, FORMER BANKER, IS DEAD AT 69

Son of Pioneer Who Founded House.

Oscar G. Foreman, former banker, died yesterday in his home at 1350 North State parkway, after an illness of several months of anemia. He was 69 years old.

Mr. Foreman was born in Chicago Nov. 1, 1863, the son of Gerhard Foreman, who founded a banking house here in 1862. The son started to learn the banking business as a messenger for the First National bank.

Son Takes Over Bank.

In 1883 he joined his father's bank. Two years later the father retired, transferred his interests to his sons who conducted the business as a family partnership until 1897. In that year the institution was incorporated as a state bank under the name of the Foreman Brothers Banking company.

Mr. Foreman became vice president of the new bank in 1897. In 1915 he became president. Eight years later the institution was reorganized as the Foreman National bank and the Foreman Trust and Savings bank, the latter chartered by the state. Mr. Foreman became chairman of the board of both banks.

Merger Ends Bank Career.

In 1929 the Foreman banks merged with the State Bank of Chicago as the Foreman-State National bank and the Foreman-State Trust and Savings bank. Mr. Foreman became chairman of the executive committee of the two banks. His career ended with the absorption of the merged institution, which was the third largest in the city, by the First National bank, June 8, 1931.

Mr. Foreman was president of the Illinois Bankers' association in 1909, the Bankers' club in 1920, and the Chicago Clearing House association in 1923-'24. He was a member of the Union League, Mid-Day, Standard, and Iroquois clubs.

He is survived by two children, Gerhard and Madeline Foreman. His wife, Mrs. Fannie Mandel Foreman, died many years ago. Funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel of Rosehill cemetery.

EDWARD F. HAMM DIES AS FAMILY SPEEDS TO SIDE

Edward F. Hamm, president of the Blakely Printing company, died suddenly yesterday at St. Augustine, Fla., as his wife, Sarah, and a son, Fred, were speeding to his bedside. They arrived last night, unaware that he died while they were on the way.

Mr. Hamm was 66 years old and lived at 123 Melrose avenue, Kenilworth. He was born at Burlington, Ia., and after starting in the printing business in Cleveland, came to Chicago in 1892. He joined the Blakely company in 1903. Since 1929 he served as its head.

Mr. Hamm was also president of the Traffic World, an official railroad and shipping publication, president of Franklin Tyopthetae, president of the Traffic Service corporation, and a member of various organizations. He belonged to the Indian Hill club, the Union League club, and the Chicago Athletic association.

Besides his widow and son, another son, Peter, and three daughters, Mrs. Rush C. Butler Jr., Mrs. Homer Robertson, and Miss Harriet Hamm, survive.

Elizabeth Cashman, Settler in Hyde Park, 86, Dies

Mrs. Elizabeth Cashman, 86 years old, one of the first residents of Hyde Park before it became a part of Chicago, died in her home at 7224 Calumet avenue, last night, of complications which developed when she fell from a chair, Dec. 15, and fractured her hip. She and her husband were among the first three couples to settle in Hyde Park. She came to Chicago from Ireland in 1849, when she was two years old. A brother, Patrick Saunders, now dead, was an alderman forty years ago. She lived with Frank O. Cusak, her grandson.

JOHN N. KVISTAD, TOWN COLLECTOR OF LEYDEN, DIES

John N. Kvistad, collector for the town of Leyden, which includes five northwest area communities, died yesterday at his home, 2209 North 72d court, Elmwood Park. He was 41 years old. Mr. Kvistad served several terms as Leyden collector and previously has served as town clerk. Between noon and 2 o'clock Thursday, Mr. Kvistad's body will lie in the Messiah Lutheran church, 2700 North Harlem avenue. Burial will be at Mount Emblem cemetery. Surviving him are his widow, Ragna, and three children.

Rites for Albert W. Craig, Bank Veteran, Tomorrow

Funeral services for Albert Wilcox Craig, veteran employé of the old Central Trust Company of Illinois, will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow from the Rogers Park Masonic temple, 1716 Lunt avenue. Mr. Craig, who was 71 years old, died Sunday in the Evanston hospital. He was employed for 25 years by the Central Trust company, retiring in 1929. His widow, Mrs. Florence Craig, 211 9th street, Wilmette, a daughter, Miss Virginia Craig, and a son, Raymond, survive.

A. Storgaard, Forest Glen Park Commissioner, Dead

Anders Storgaard, 5511 Forest Glen avenue, a commissioner of the Forest Glen part district, died of a heart attack yesterday in his home. Mr. Storgaard, who was 64 years old, was one of the earliest settlers in Forest Glen, where he took up residence 30 years ago. He is survived by his widow, Maren, and seven children.

Dr. Umberto Gabbi, 72, Italian Educator, Dies

ROME, March 6.—(AP)—Dr. Umberto Gabbi, 72, university professor, senator and president of the International Society of Hydrotherapy, died here tonight. He was 72.

Dr. Amos B. Wells Dies; Writer on Religious Themes

Newton, Mass., March 6.—(AP)—Dr. Amos B. Wells, 70, religious writer and poet, died at his home today.

Chapped Hands?

How to make them soft and smooth

Here is the economical, yet effective way modern-minded women keep their hands from chapping and getting rough.

After dish washing, and night and morning, they rub Mentholatum into the skin. This cooling, soothing ointment keeps the hands soft and smooth.

BOND GROUPS JOIN TO WAR ON HIGH FEES

Super-Committee Asks New Laws.

BY AL CHASE.

Interests identified with eighteen present and former bond houses, representing approximately 600,000 Illinois owners of $600,000,000 defaulted bonds of issues totaling well over a billion dollars, yesterday started a move to speed up and simplify the reorganization of bond issues, and reduce fees of all kinds. At this conference, attended by all of the leading mortgage bankers and real estate mortgage bond men of Chicago, as well as the heads of all important bondholders' protective groups, resolutions were adopted asking for new laws to untangle the present realty bond snarl.

GEORGE W. ROSSETTER.

Yesterday's gathering, called by Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress exposition and also head of the S. W. Straus & Co., general bondholders' committee, is to result in what to all intents and purposes will be a "super bondholders' protective committee." This is to be accomplished through a pooling of the influence, legal activities, and knowledge of the various committees into a standardized procedure which will effect important economies through radical reductions and eliminations in fees of all sorts.

Standard schedules of fees for attorneys, even lower than adopted by the bar association, and elimination of receivers' and masters' fees whenever possible, are contemplated.

George W. Rosseter Presides.

This giant Bondholders' Protective committee, it is pointed out, is in line with the suggestion by Attorney George F. Anderson, printed in last SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE that a super-committee be appointed to force publicity through audits of the accounts of the various bondholders' committees.

George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and also a member of the S. W. Straus & Co. general committee, presided at yesterday's conference. Others present were Holman D. Pettibone, Rufus C. Dawes, Louis K. Boysen, William G. Lodwick, Newton C. Farr, Dayton Keith, Avery Brundage, Arthur M. Wirtz, Joseph W. Cremin and Arthur T. Leonard.

These men represent the committees organized to protect the holders of bonds purchased through the following concerns: S. W. Straus & Co., American Bond and Mortgage company, Central Trust company, Chicago Trust company, First Trust and Savings bank, Union Trust company, H. O. Stone & Co., Foreman-State National bank, Equitable Bond and Mortgage company, Greenebaum Bond Investment company, Ritchie Bond and Mortgage company, Cochran & McCluer, Holzer, Inc., Lackner, Butz & Co., Wollenberger & Co., Sheridan Trust and Savings bank, National Bond and Mortgage company, and the Home Mortgage and Investment company.

Urge New Laws.

The representatives of the eighteen underwriting firms passed a resolution asking for new laws covering defaulted real estate bonds which will provide for their reorganization in such a way that there will be no need for receivers or foreclosures. That, of course, would do away with receivers' and masters' fees.

"In the discharge of their duties, protective committees are handicapped by laws enacted half a century ago, which fail to meet conditions of today," said Mr. Rossetter. "The result is that the owner of a farm or home is put in the same category with a corporation owning a factory or a large building enterprise.

"The average holder of a real estate bond owns less than $1,000 worth of bonds in any one issue, and individually is in no position to defend himself or enforce his rights. The group at this meeting represents this vast army of bondholders, people of small means who put their savings in real estate bonds."

Orders Pile Up for Reopening of Stock Mart

BY FRED HARVEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 6.—Deprived of its fuel—money—the Wall street machine remained stalled today. The doors of the stock, curb, and commodity exchanges were still barred to traders, pending relief in the national banking crisis, and with that situation still hazy there was no indication when the tickers would resume grinding out quotations.

Although trading officially was at a standstill in the exchanges, brokerage houses did not shut up shop altogether. Most of the activity was in the big wire houses, which kept their lines open to all cities. Business, however, was limited to receiving orders to be executed when trading is resumed. Sizable blocks of such orders were reported to have been accumulated.

Future Bids Irregular.

The trend of prices, however, was difficult to determine. Certain stocks, brokers said, brought prices 1 to 3 points above Friday's close, but at the same time other houses reported that such orders had been placed at quotations 1 to 3 points below last week's final levels. In explanation, brokers said that the former prices represented operations of nervous shorts anxious to cover while the covering was good, and that the prices on the downside were the commitments of bargain seekers, who see forced selling in the wind and consequent lower prices when dealings resume.

Meanwhile the exchange appointed a committee of seven to "deal with all questions arising out of the closing of the exchange and the suspension of deliveries."

Reopening Up to Committee.

While no official explanation was made of this brief statement, it is understood that it means the exchange will remain closed until such a time as Richard Whitney, its president, and the committee deem it wise to reopen, probably after the banking holiday has been ended.

The first action of the "big board" committee was to forbid member houses paying currency to customers on balances. In addition, the committee forbade payment by check for free margin credit in United States dollar balances, but relieved free credit balances in foreign currencies held outside of the country from this ruling.

"Fully paid-for securities are deliverable to customers on demand unless the member is unable to secure such securities by reason of the closing of safe deposit companies, transfer offices, or the fact that such securities are in transit or for some similar reason.

"Members are still prohibited from making contracts for the purchase or sale or borrowing or lending of any listed securities, whether such contracts are made in the United States or elsewhere, and are prohibited from making any contracts in unlisted securities in the United States."

GRAIN TRADERS EXPECT UPTURN IN COMMODITIES

Chicago Halts Cash Deals Tomorrow.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Soaring prices for commodities are expected to be witnessed when the leading exchanges reopen, according to the view generally expressed by leaders on the Chicago Board of Trade. The same view was also taken by eastern interests in messages to their local correspondents.

Action of the New York raw sugar market in advancing 13 points since Friday to a price level of 1 cent per pound, the highest level witnessed in many months, was pointed to as confirming this view.

Will Close Cash Grain Market.

Finding it was almost impossible to do business in cash grain without the protection offered by futures, Board of Trade directors yesterday adopted a resolution declaring that transactions in cash grain in Chicago must cease at 9 a. m. tomorrow. Another resolution prohibits members of the exchange from trading in any domestic market in which futures are used as a basis for cash grain operations or in which the exchange of futures is involved. Both resolutions are effective until regular trading is resumed.

There was a fairly brisk demand for cash corn in the Chicago cash grain market, with prices moving up ¼ to ¾ cent, compared with the sales of Saturday. Cash oats were steady, while cash wheat was nominally ½ to 1 cent higher than Friday.

Wheat Higher at Winnipeg.

Houses with Chicago and New York connections were active buyers of wheat futures at Winnipeg yesterday and prices there advanced 2 to 2¼ cents for the day, showing around 4 cents above the close on Friday. The May future there closed at 52¼ cents. Lack of official exchange transactions prevented this being translated into terms of United States funds.

Small transactions in May wheat were intimated during the day at 46 cents per bushel at Kansas City, where some business in futures was done "on the cuff," showing 3⅜ cents above Friday's close. There were no claims of trading in Chicago.

The Omaha Grain exchange voted to open the market yesterday, trading on the basis of the Chicago may option, settlements to be made on the May price basis when the Chicago futures market opens.

Rain or snow fell over the week end in parts of Nebraska and Kansas, but comparatively little moisture was received in the areas where most needed, according to private reports.

Big Banks Add Cash Despite Deposit Drain

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—Leading banks in the country actually made a net increase of 106 million dollars in their stores of cash during the week ended March 1 despite deposit withdrawals totaling 800 million dollars, the federal reserve board announced tonight.

Approximately 389 millions in cash was locked up in the vaults of the leading banks which report weekly to the reserve board on March 1. The drain on deposits was largely met by reducing loans and investments by 434 million dollars, reducing reserve balances by 215 millions and borrowing 358 millions more from the reserve banks.

Total deposits of 15 billion 881 million dollars were held by the reporting member banks on March 1. Of this total 10 billion 593 million dollars was in demand or checking accounts, and 5 billion 288 million dollars was in time or savings accounts. Much of this money belonged to other banks, however, and they withdrew some 579 millions.

The reporting member banks still had $17 billion 823 million dollars outstanding in loans and they held 9 billion 627 million dollars worth of securities. In spite of the huge drain placed upon them the large banks still had reserves amounting to 1 billion 599 million dollars.

BANK HOLIDAY MAKES LA SALLE STREET A DESERTED VILLAGE

An unfamiliar "moratorium calm" hung over La Salle street yesterday. At 2 o'clock in the afternon, when the close of the market is usually releasing hundreds of workers from their duties, the street wes nearly deserted.

The steel doors in the leading financial institutions remained closed throughout the day. Bank employés were admitted upon identification through side doors. Uniformed guards examined the credentials of persons seeking admission.

A few brokerage offices were open for a while, but no business was transacted. Nearly all of the houses shut up shop early in the day.

Although the banks appeared quiet from the exterior, it was no holiday for the clerical forces, for each day the moratorium continues builds up the backlog of work to be done.

The currency exchange bureau in the old National Bank of Republic building, 134 South La Salle street, was one of the few places which had an appearance of normal business.

CHIEF U. S. STOCKS HOLD STEADY ON LONDON MARKET

An Associated Press dispatch from London yesterday reported the leading American stocks practically unchanged on the London Stock exchange. The figures given below are based on sterling exchange at par, inasmuch as there was no official quotation on the dollar. At the last quoted price, the pound was worth $3.45½ or at a discount of 29 per cent. So the quotations below are to be judged as relatively that much higher than the normal dollar rate. Though it is predicted the pound is likely to jump to $3.61 when the dollar again is quoted. Closing prices in London yesterday:

FREIGHT GAINS COME TO HALT WITH HOLIDAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—Freight car loadings dropped 55,311 cars during the week ended Feb. 29, to a total of 459,079 cars, according to figures made public today by the American Railway association.

The decrease, halting a steady rise in car loadings noted during the preceding three weeks, was due, the association stated, to the observance of Washington's birthday as a legal holiday.

Miscellaneous freight loading for the week of Feb. 25 totaled 150,628 cars, a decrease of 2,449 cars below the preceding week. Loading of merchandise less-than-carload lot freight totaled 143,390 cars, a decrease of 15,407 cars below the preceding week.

London Deals in Money, but Excepts Dollar

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 6.—A meeting of the clearing bankers' committee today decided to deal in all currencies except dollars and South American currencies. The dealing began very sluggishly and sometimes quotations were mainly nominal.

A tendency gradually developed to offer all gold currencies against sterling, but there was evidence of renewed control in the buying of francs. Most of the day the franc held the rate of 88, compared with 87 Friday.

The Bank of England intends to do everything in its power to keep the sterling and dollar exchange rate at about $3.50, it was reported today.

Still following its policy of selling sterling and buying gold currencies, the bank today added £2,014,220 of bar gold to its stocks, chiefly through the purchase of francs. This brings the increase in its holdings since the new year to £36,835,352 and strengthens the bank's hands for acting decisively when the dollar is again quoted Friday.

World Bank Hears Good Reports.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BASEL, March 6.—Europe's central banks received the news of the dollar embargo fairly philosophically judging from telephone calls the world bank today had from practically all of them. These talks showed wide hopes that the United States would remain on gold and the conviction it could do this for foreign exchange at least by resorting if necessary to some of the restrictions Germany has adopted.

Europeans are afraid of the United States abandoning gold as England did even more than of our devaluating the dollar by one of the means whereby it would presumably remain stable at a lower level. The former, it is held, would probably force the few gold countries remaining in Europe to follow suit. The dangers of this unprecedented situation where no currency in the world would be stable are deemed so obvious as to encourage hopes they would be avoided.

France Eyes Dollar.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 6.—The bright and dark sides of the American crisis was the only topic of conversation today in the international banking colony here today as well as in French political circles.

The bright side was that if the United States goes off the gold standard, revision of inter-governmental debts

CHICAGO MART IN LIVE STOCK TO BE CLOSED

Packers Buy Direct; Prices Soar.

Directors of the Chicago Live Stock Exchange, largest market of its kind in the world, yesterday voted to close the exchange at 3 p. m., today and until further notice.

The closing was forced because of the bank holiday, which made it impossible to operate while bank deposits of packing companies are tied up. Packers had agreed Saturday to pay for livestock by check, but a hitch developed today when it was found that commission men were unable to obtain money for their services, the packers being able to issue only one check for supplies and that to the producer.

The closing was set for today so that supplies of livestock now en route might be cared for. Shippers have been warned to start no more shipments to market.

Bank Holiday Lowers Supplies.

The bank holiday curtailed the movement of live stock to all leading market centers and sent wholesale meat prices into the highest position in recent weeks. Combined receipts of cattle, hogs, and sheep at the seven leading markets for the day at 99,000 were 100,000 short of the average for the last six weeks. Only 18,000 cattle were slaughtered at the seven points, against 40,000 the previous Monday. Hogs aggregated 43,000 against 89,000 a week ago and 103,000 a year ago. The sheep run at 38,000 compared with 70,000 the previous Monday.

Wholesale meat markets were excited over the abreviated supplies. Pork loins registered the sharpest advances, selling at 10 to 13 cents per pound and showing 3 to 4 cents advance over a week ago. Lamb carcasses sold wholesale at 11 to 15 cents against 8 to 12½ cents at the close of last week. Beef was not so susceptible to the influence of the lighter receipts.

13,200 Associated Lives Insured for $53,651,000

MORE than 13,000 Associated employees have their lives insured for a total of $53,651,000 under the Associated Employees Insurance Plan.

Since the plan has been in effect, $733,500 in death and disability benefits has been paid. By far the greater portion of these payments represents assistance which the families of deceased or disabled employees would have lacked entirely.

Assurance of prompt and substantial aid is responsible for the effect on employees noted by an executive of one Associated company upon the settlement of a claim:

We received the draft in the amount of $4,000, and words almost fail me to express the good effect that it had on our entire organization to find that the insurance was paid promptly and with so little red tape.

Contented workers are the best workers. It adds to an employee's sense of security to realize that in event of death or disability, his insurance will provide for his family.

More than 90% of Associated Employees Insured

Each subscribing employee receives an ordinary life insurance policy equal approximately to his annual earnings. He also receives a certificate of participation in a group policy for a similar amount. He is thus insured for an amount equal to twice his annual pay.

Subscription by employees was voluntary. Representatives of insurance companies doubted that 75% would participate. More than 90% subscribed.

One insurance magazine described the Associated Employees Insurance Plan as "an achievement unparalleled in all the pages of insurance history." However that may be, the plan has helped meet a widespread need for insurance among Associated employees, and to that extent has made them better employees. Better employees means better service for the public.

Commendation

New York Times—

A plan for employee insurance, unique in the annals of American industry, and including the largest wholesale underwriting of ordinary life insurance ever accomplished in a single attempt.

Weekly Underwriter—

The truly remarkable part of the whole affair is that this represents a voluntary participation in the plan of more than 90% of all Associated employees.

Eastern Underwriter—

Four of the large life insurance companies have underwritten one of the most comprehensive and liberal insurance plans yet devised.

Industrial Relations—

The ordinary life idea on a non-medical basis up to the age of 56 is absolutely new applied in this way... Adoption of the plan follows more than four years of organization work and the smoothing out of numberless details.

LOAN HOLIDAY ON INSURANCE POLICIES URGED

Palmer Says Companies Need Aid.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

"Insurance companies must receive relief from the pressure on them as a result of the acute financial situation. They are entitled to it as much as banks."

This statement was made yesterday by Ernest Palmer, superintendent of insurance for Illinois, as he boarded an Illinois Central train for Springfield.

"We have been studying the problems confronting insurance companies in Illinois ever since the crisis developed. The ideal way to handle the situation would be for a national moratorium on policy loans and cash surrender payments. If this cannot be secured, the next best thing would be for as many states as possible to develop some policy with respect to these points.

In Banking Business.

"When an insurance company makes loans on policies and pays out cash in surrender payments it is just as much in the banking business as a bank. It cannot be expected to engage in the banking business under present conditions without some safe guards.

"Michigan and Indiana have legislation giving assistance to insurance company operations. Measures are being introduced in Missouri and Iowa.

"We have not yet acted in Illinois because we expect some word from Washington as to a general policy.

"In seeking relief for life insurance companies we must remember that they were organized primarily to make death payments and annuity payments. Policy loans and cash surrender payments are secondary to the main purpose of life companies and should be so treated."

No General Plan Adopted.

Officials of life insurance companies seen yesterday stated that there has been no general plan or policy adopted in the present emergency. Each company is acting according to its own ideas.

Some insurance companies are taking checks for payments, giving temporary receipts, while others are accepting the checks but giving no receipts. Some life companies are extending periods of grace. Others are applying what value for loan purposes a policy may have on the premium.

Fire insurance companies are said not to be paying claims. They have in normal circumstances from 30 to 60 days to settle claims and consequently are not disturbed to the same extent as are the life companies.

Great Lakes Dredge and Dock.

Will you kindly inform me what you can about Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company?—V. J. A.

Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company is engaged principally in river and harbor improvements, dredging, constructing bridges, etc. Most of its business is done in the great lakes and New York harbor regions.

During 1932 the management revalued plant and equipment at $7,762,000, which was $1,223,000 less than the year before. Depreciation was $476,000 in 1932 on the lower valuation, against $552,000 the year before.

Net income for 1932 was $249,000, or 45 cents a share. Net for 1931 was $1,326,000, or $2.40 a share, against net of $2,218,000, or $4.01 per share, for 1930. Net for 1929 was $1,500,000, against $1,131,000 for 1928 and $2,586,000 for 1927.

On Dec. 31, 1932, current assets [excluding investments] were $5,501,000 and current liabilities were $748,000. Working capital was $4,725,000, against $5,758,000 the year before.

Investments at cost and accrued interest included $556,000 of Lincoln park [Illinois] 5 per cent improvement bonds, $304,000 Lincoln park district tax anticipation warrants, $52,000 state of Illinois 6 per cent revenue notes and 12,000 shares of the company's own stock at cost of $108,000. These totaled $1,019,000.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 552,120 shares of no par stock. The stock pays 25 cents a quarter.

It is medium grade and somewhat speculative.

lively trade yesterday, closing only 10 to 15 cents away from the highest point of the winter. Top hogs at Chicago sold at $4.05, with the general average at $3.90 showing 25 cents advance over Friday.

Fifteen to 25 cents higher prices took in most of the cattle supply on the market. Choice 1,011 pound yearlings topped the price list at $7.25, this price being paid by Wilson. It was within 10 cents of the highest mark of the year. The bulk of the crop sold from $4.75 to $6.25, while only thin illbred stock with little yield cashed at $4 and under. Cows sold steady at $2.50 to $3.00, while heifers at $3.50 to $4.50 were strong to 25 cents higher. One lot of light weights reached $5.75, averaging 722 pounds.

Lambs Up 25 to 50 cents.

Lambs soared 25 to 50 cents yesterday under brisk competition. All interests were in the market for numbers and carried a higher list of bids for all but the plainer types. Top 78 to 82 pound fed western lambs sold to city butchers at $6.40. Large packers obtained the majority of them at $5.85 and under, getting selected light yearling stock at $5.25. Wholesale lamb quotations reached the highest point in two months and showed gains of 2 to 2½ cents over last week's close. Aged sheep brought steady prices.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Trading in produce at Chicago was relatively slow Monday owing to the national bank holiday, and transactions were largely in small lots for cash or on limited credit. Fresh eggs were quoted as unchanged, with receipts 6,395 cases, while butter was unchanged to ½c higher. Receipts 7,509 tubs. There was some trading in live poultry with the market irregular. Hens were ½c higher. Receipts 1 car and 11 trucks.

LONDON REOPENS TRADE IN MONEY; EXCEPTS DOLLAR

World Bank Finds Europe Optimistic About U. S.

will in a measure take care of itself as the debtors will see the debts automatically reduced.

The dark side was that abandonment of the gold standard by the United States would knock the lira, mark, florin and Swiss franc off gold too and that the French franc standing alone against the world could not hope to hold out long.

In the meantime Americans living or traveling in France had the first taste of that sensation familiar to all Europeans of seeing their money fluctuating in value like a wildcat oil stock. Officially the dollar was not quoted again today and the actual volume of unofficial transactions was small. French banks, when they could be prevailed upon to accept dollars at all, paid around 90 cents.

Canada Puts Dollar at Par.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., March 6.—After ruling in mid-afternoon that the American dollar for customs assessment purposes should be valued at one dollar and twenty-five cents the Canadian government this evening reversed its decision and ruled that there would be valuation at par, "until such time as American banks resume business and the exchange value of their dollar is officially quoted."

The postoffice and express agencies stopped selling money orders payable outside of Canada today.

Berlin Quotes Dollar.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, March 6.—The reichsbank continued quoting the dollar today although marks for dollars sold at the reichsbank will be paid only when the reichsbank's account in the United States has actually been credited with the corresponding amount. The dollar was quoted at 4.18 for settlement in New York and 4.17 for dollar notes.

Cuban Banks Close.

HAVANA, March 6.—(AP)—All Cuban banks remained closed today under a holiday ordered by President Machado to last until Thursday morning. All exchanges were closed.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP)—While the raw sugar futures market remained closed and will continue closed up to and including Thursday, the spot market was open as usual and a much firmer tone was in evidence with prices showing gains of 14 points as compared with the closing price of last Friday. Sales of Cuban were reported at 3.00c delivered, a new high for the year thus far.

LIVERPOOL COTTON.

LIVERPOOL, March 6.—(AP)—COTTON—Sales, 10,100 bales, all American. ACCOUNTANTS' CERTIFICATE

The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States:

We have audited your books and accounts at your Home Office, continuously throughout the year ended December 31, 1932;

We have verified the Secured Loans by examination of the notes and contracts and the collateral held thereunder; the possession of the Bonds and Stocks owned; the Cash Balances at the Home Office by count of the cash in hand and by confirmations obtained from all depositaries; and

WE HEREBY CERTIFY that the accompanying Statement of Assets and Liabilities at December 31, 1932, and the Total Receipts and the Total Disbursements as shown for the year ended on that date, are in agreement with the books of the Society; that the Total Receipts and the Total Disbursements correctly summarize the recorded transactions during the year; and that, in our opinion, the Statement of Assets and Liabilities shows the true condition of the Society.

HASKINS & SELLS,
Certified Public Accountants.

BE A LEADING BEAUTICIAN

Marinello Beauticians have always shown the way. They have many imitators—but there is nothing that takes the place of a Marinello certificate. It unquestionably establishes its holder's leadership and authority. Armed with a Marinello certificate, you can depend upon being placed in the best positions. It gives you preference because of Marinello's reputation for graduating the best operators in the profession.

Day and evening classes now forming. Liberal tuition arrangements. Free international employment service—or we will help you establish your own business.

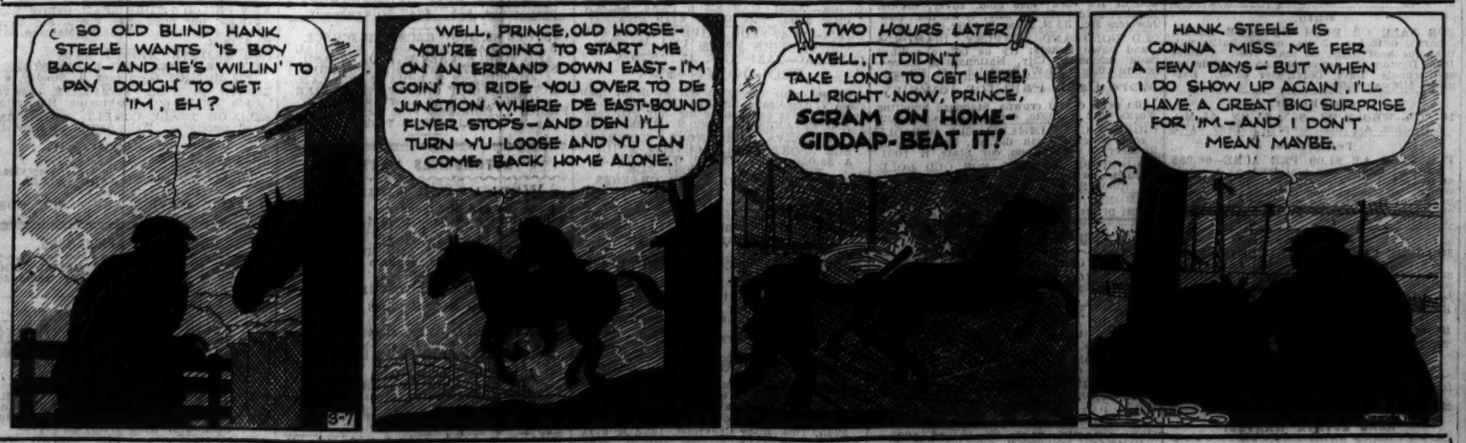
DICK TRACY—The Night Rider



SO OLD BLIND HANK STEELE WANTS 'IS BOY BACK—AND HE'S WILLIN' TO PAY DOUGH TO GET 'IM, EH?
WELL, PRINCE, OLD HORSE—YOU'RE GOING TO START ME ON AN ERRAND DOWN EAST—I'M GOIN' TO RIDE YOU OVER TO DE JUNCTION WHERE DE EAST-BOUND FLYER STOPS—AND DEN I'LL TURN YU LOOSE AND YU CAN COME BACK HOME ALONE.
TWO HOURS LATER
WELL, IT DIDN'T TAKE LONG TO GET HERE! ALL RIGHT NOW, PRINCE, SCRAM ON HOME—GIDDAP—BEAT IT!
HANK STEELE IS GONNA MISS ME FER A FEW DAYS—BUT WHEN I DO SHOW UP AGAIN, I'LL HAVE A GREAT BIG SURPRISE FOR 'IM—AND I DON'T MEAN MAYBE.

COMING TO FUNERAL. Lieut. Col. C. B. Hodges, to represent President at Cermak rites.

GEE KIDS, DON'T I GET INTO THE SECRET SIX YET!
YOU'VE STILL GOT SOME DEGREES TO TAKE CLARENCE.
YES, THE NEXT ONE IS LOOKIN' AT THE STARS THROUGH A COAT SLEEVE.
CAN'T YOU SEE 'EM, CLARENCE?
NOT YET. ALL I CAN SEE IS SKY.
WELL IT TAKES A MINUTE OR TWO, DOESN'T IT, SKEEZIX?
NOW DO YOU SEE 'EM?
THAT FOR YOUR OLD SECRET SIX! I WOULDN'T JOIN IT ON A BET.
